Calendar Remains Undetermined

Students Favor 15 Week Semester; Committee Debates Change

By Lisa Roman

Polity President Jim Fuccio asked for help in tackling the shortened semester during a general meeting of the Polity Senate Thursday.

The current calendar consists of 13 weeks of classes and one week of final exams.

Fuccio said he would like to see the 15 week calendar used again, 15 weeks of classes and one week of finals, with classes shortened to 90 minutes and 50 minutes each. Fuccio said the current calendar favors the faculty rather than the students. "Are the professors here for the undergraduates, or are they here to do research?" Fuccio asked.

Fuccio said that under the present calendar, the quality of education is not as good. In addition, "students are under a lot more pressure and there is no incentive to get involved" he said.

Students voted 1,444 to 942 in favor of bringing back the 15 week semester.

Fuccio said the extra weeks on the 15 week calendar are essential. "The extra weeks gives the student the chance to do something besides studying," Fuccio said.

Also addressed at the meeting was that although the semester was shortened and student are paying more for rooms and tuition. "Economically, we're getting short-changed, too," Fuccio said.

Fuccio asked the senators at the meeting to address their constituency and faculty members about the calendar. "As students, we should have control over what happens with our education and where our money goes," Fuccio said.

By Craig Schneider

The university Ad Hoc Calendar Committee met Friday to further prepare and discuss its presentation to the SUSB Senate.

Through carefully reviewing the proposal, the committee moved towards a deeper understanding of each of the three calendar offerings; adding new insights, and clearing up many of the discrepancies which surrounded them.

Much of the discussion dealt with the order in which to present the proposals which each senator will be given before the meeting. One idea was to present two calendars on a ballot, decide on one, and then pick the third proposal against it. This method was put aside in favor of presenting all three proposals simultaneously. The committee felt the latter gave each proposal a more equal chance.

The meeting began at 11 AM with a heated debate when Alfred Goldhaber, president of the SUSB Senate and co-chairman of the committee sparked a fire by accusing his co-chairman, Polity President Jim Fuccio of creating an unworkable and incorrect calendar. Fuccio vehemently disagreed.

Goldhaber has worked out and favors an academic calendar that would begin Labor Day (Sept. 15 exactly), breaking for a 10 day Christmas leave, coming back for two weeks of classes, breaking again for a week of studies, and then taking final examinations in January.

"This kind of calendar will give the students a greater span of time between the opening and closing of the semester," Goldhaber, "yet it will not add any more class time."

SASU to Oppose Reagan's Education Cutbacks

The Student Association of the State University of New York (SASU), announced Thursday a state-wide campaign to oppose President Ronald Reagan's 12 percent across the board education cutbacks. Some of Reagan's educational cutbacks will affect student Social Security benefits, Pell Grants (BEOG) and Student Loan programs.

Julia Leavy, executive vice-president of SASU, said that Reagan's plan proposes an additional cut of $2 billion from student financial aid which will affect 340,000 New York State students. "That's one-quarter of a billion dollars that will not be coming into New York State this year," she said.

Stony Brook University joined SASU last year. SASU's main concern, Leavy said, is to bring state-wide issues to the local campus level.

Polity President Jim Fuccio, Bruce Tashoff and Jason Schneur, Stony Brook's SASU delegates, are organizing a state-wide campaign to oppose the cuts. Included in their plan is a phone-in campaign aimed at Senator Alphonse D'Amato. D'Amato serves on the Senate Appropriations Committee and has supported Reagan's budget cutting programs in the past. The idea, Leavy said, is to get students from all state

Europeans Protest US-Soviet Arms Buildup

More than 300,000 demonstrators rallied in three European countries Sunday to protest a US-Soviet arms buildup they claim threatens world peace.

In Brussels, at least 200,000 people staged what police sources said was the largest demonstration in Belgium since World War II, while more than 50,000 marchers paraded through Paris and a similar number rallied in the eastern sector of Berlin.

Reflecting a growing tide of pacifism across Europe, the protests followed similar demonstrations Saturday that drew more than 200,000 in Rome and 150,000 in London. Two weeks ago, 250,000 anti-nuclear protesters rallied in Bonn, West Germany.

Government ministers and leaders of political parties led the three-hour march that completely jammed downtown Brussels. Officially, police said there were only 65,000 demonstrators, but police sources admitted that the crowd was closer to the 200,000 estimated by reporters on the scene.

Although Belgium's outgoing left-center coalition government was not officially supporting the demonstration, its parties all were represented by Parliament members. At least three Socialist members of the government marched in front of the peaceful cortege, together with chairmen of the Socialist and Communist parties. In France and Belgium, the demonstrators demanded dismantling of Soviet SS-20 missiles aimed at the continent and protested US plans to deploy new US Pershing II and cruise nuclear missiles in Britain, West Germany, Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands. The latter two countries have postponed final approval of the missile plans. In Berlin, about 50,000 East Germans rallied "for a secure peace and against NATO armaments," accusing the West of trying "to turn Europe into an atomic battlefield," the official ADN news agency said.

The agency said speakers called for an end to the arms race, a ban on neutron weapons and East-West talks on arms control. The United States and Soviet Union have scheduled talks to begin Nov. 30 in Geneva, Switzerland on reducing nuclear arms in Europe. Talks on controlling intercontinental missiles are expected to begin in early 1982, Reagan administration officials said.

Athens, Greece - Neither participation in NATO nor the presence of American military bases in Greece are certain to continue, Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu of Greece said yesterday.

"The American government has to recognize that there exists a Greek government which has the duty to serve, first and above all, the interests of Greek people," the prime minister said.

Papandreu, who was elected last week and also will serve as his country's defense minister, said the question of whether to stay in NATO is unique for his country because "we sense a threat from" Turkey, a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Turkey claimed half the Aegean Sea "in the air, on the sea and the continental shelf" as its territory, "a problem which has caused the Greek government... to maintain a high level of military readiness at the expense of programs for education, health and social measures that are needed to support the lower income classes," he said.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia - Reports by six girls of a golden-haired Madonna floating over a remote mountain meadow have provoked the Communist government to accuse the Roman Catholic Church of manufacturing a miracle for political purposes.

Eleven people were expelled from the Communist Party and 48 others received official warnings because they visited the site of the reported apparition, according to a Belgrade newspaper.

"It was a publicity trick, an attempt to show strength," said Radovan Samardzic, secretary of the government's Commission on Church Relations. "It (the apparition) involves the use of religion as an instrument for political objectives."

Warsaw, Poland - Declaring that "extraordinary situations require extraordinary measures," the Communist government is dispatching troops to back up local officials in some 2,000 Polish villages, it was disclosed Sunday. Accusing the independent labor federation Solidarity of "blackmail," the government also demanded an end to wildcat strikes by more than 250,000 workers.

Gen. Tadeusz Hupalowski, minister of administration, said the special military units would fan out across Poland today to "help solve local conflicts." "Extraordinary situations require extraordinary measures," he said. The government's actions did not appear to be a step toward martial law, Western diplomatic observers said.

"We are facing winter and people are anxious," Hupalowski told Polish television. "The situation is getting worse and the government is doing everything it can to make survival possible."

Beirut, Lebanon - Iran's chief justice said yesterday the courts have made "some mistakes" in the hundreds of executions ordered, but critics of Iran's revolutionary Islamic government are not being "fair."

In an interview broadcast by Tehran Radio, Ayatollah Abolkarim Ardebili, who heads the Supreme Court, also said judges who had made mistakes would be punished.

He said those who have criticized the executions "should come and read these people's files, to see what they have done, to see where they come from. I don't want to say that there haven't been mistakes in the past, but compared to the amount of work done, even if there is a small percentage of wrongdoing, it will be pursued and those responsible will be brought to justice."

The official radio also reported that Iran's fundamentalist Moslem regime arrested 35 more leftist guerrillas and sent a delegation to Lebanon and Syria to discuss claims of US intervention in the Middle East.

Ardebili's comments appeared to refer to Amnesty International, the London-based human rights organization that asked permission to send a delegation to Tehran to talk to officials about the executions. Amnesty claims that Iranian firing squads have executed more than 1,800 people since the ouster of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr on June 22. The government has reported 1,425 executions.

Washington - If it were not for slums, poor people would not have a place to live, an urban economist says, claiming that deteriorating neighborhoods are a necessity in most big cities. The poor cannot afford to buy or rent better housing, especially at today's high interest rates, and create a demand for housing deteriorated enough to fall to a price they can afford, Anthony Downs says.

That demand, Downs says in a book, "Neighborhoods and Urban Development," perpetuates slums at the same time that public officials and most of their constituents view them as something bad that should be eliminated.

The book, being published Monday by the Brookings Institute, concludes that slums will continue to be a vital part of urban life until the general public is willing to subsidize adequate housing for the poor.

Danbury, Connecticut - The devil gets his day in court this week in a case authorities call "a routine murder" and the defense attorney calls a clear-cut case of demonic possession.

The case involves a husband-wife team of nationally known "demonologists," a 13-year-old boy some say is possessed by the devil, the efforts of Roman Catholic priests to rid the boy of the spirits and a curly haired teen-ager named Arne Cheyenne Johnson who challenged the demons to take him on.

That teen-ager, Arne Cheyenne Johnson, stands accused of murder and Martin Minnella, the defense attorney, plans to argue that the devil made him do it, literally.

Chicago - New York state, interested in preserving business for its Atlantic ports, is using obstructionist tactics to prevent improvements in Great Lakes shipping, a prominent Illinois senator charged this weekend.

Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) said maritime interests should "wage war on New York" to keep the St. Lawrence Seaway open for a longer time each year. Percy attended a conference that was to explore ways to make shipping more profitable and efficient on the Great Lakes, where such activity has declined in recent years.

Uniondale - Nassau County police said a building used to store court records and other documents was destroyed in a fire this afternoon, and a volunteer fireman has been charged with arson.

Police said the fire destroyed the contents of hangars one and two at Mitchell Field, a former air base in Uniondale. The metal structures themselves remained standing.

Police Spokesman Daniel Parker said one of the converted aircraft hangars was filled with "row upon row of crated records."

New York - A fire bomb shattered the Fifth Avenue windows of the Egyptian government's tourist office at Rockefeller Center and gutted the interior early yesterday. No injuries were reported, police said.

An anonymous telephone caller to The Associated Press and other news agencies claimed responsibility in the name of the Jewish Defense League. The caller to the AP, at about the same time the bomb exploded at 4:30 AM, said he wanted the "Camp David accord to be buried with Sadat." Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was assassinated Oct. 6.

New York - A problem-plagued "alternative fuels" rally that began in California lurched to a conclusion in New York City this weekend, won by a pickup truck fueled with wood chips.

Promoters said B.J. Alvarez of Hendersonville, N.C., reached the final checkpoint - Columbia University in Manhattan - Saturday afternoon. The vehicles that trailed were fueled by ethanol, methanol, corn and sunflower oil, and solar batteries. The event, which began last weekend with more than 50 vehicles, was plagued with misfortune from the outset.

Study Program Abroad to be Expanded at SB

By Christine Castaldi

Students from Stony Brook, Suffolk Community College and high schools in Suffolk County, spent July in Rome to engage in an intensified academic study program. Professor Mario Mignone, director for the Department of French and Italian, was selected as the program's coordinator by the Department of International Programs.

The Department of International Programs is the center for coordination and administration of programs and activities which are educationally international in interest and scope. "Our aim is to develop as many programs for our students as possible," said Raymond Jones, director of the Department of International Programs. "We are in a phase in our history of global international dependence - and it is important for Stony Brook to interact with other nations."

Jones said Stony Brook has become a cosmopolitan environment. There are over 900 foreign students on campus representing about 90 countries. Of the total, in the spring, there were 543 graduate students and 366 undergraduate students. Fifty percent of the foreign student population comes from three countries - Iran, India and the Republic of China.

The program was not just an academic learning experience for students. "Summer study in Rome provided a comprehensive learning experience," said senior Karen Darin. "I was able to learn the Italian language in conjunction with first-hand contact with the culture. The program, therefore, gave more than just an academic experience, it gave a human experience as well, and it was a lot of fun."

Jones said that Stony Brook is currently developing study abroad programs in Africa, the Far East, Japan and Thailand. He said the African program will focus on anthropology and sociology. The programs in the other areas will focus on agriculture.

"We would also like to provide foreign opportunities for faculty members so they can pursue higher degrees," Jones said.

Stony Brook just established the Office of International Education in 1969, to develop opportunities for undergraduates to pursue programs of study overseas as part of a SUNY-wide program of study abroad. However, as part of an administrative reorganization within the Department of Curriculum, Instruction and Advisement, the Office of International Education was phased out this fall, and the Office of International Programs assumed responsibility for the administration and development of study abroad programs.

"Stony Brook is a university that is somewhat unique," Jones said. "Since we have advanced so far in our 25 years of existence, as a fast growing university, we are interested in developing good relationships with other countries, as well as increasing our exchange programs abroad."

Dinner Dance to Fund FSA Scholarship Award

By John Wicks

The Faculty Student Association (FSA) will hold an award dinner dance on Sunday, Nov. 8, at 5 PM at The End of the Bridge Restaurant in the Stony Brook Union.

The purpose of the dance will be to raise funds for the FSA Scholarship Award. The award is given to students who have made outstanding contributions to the quality of student life at Stony Brook to students who "each year dedicate large portions of their time - time which is taken away from their personal and academic work," FSA President Richard Bentley said.

According to Bentley a committee is formed to nominate and decide upon a student who is worthy of the award.

Last year's winners were former Polity President Rich Zuckerman, for his work in the development of the Commuter Advocacy Referral Service, and Eric Brand, for his efforts in the creation of the Stony Brook Press. Bentley said the award had not been given in two years so last year they chose two. Each recipient received $250.

The immediate aim of the dinner dance will be to replenish the fund, which determines the amount of the award, Bentley said. In the long run, he said, it is hoped that the awards dance will become a tradition at Stony Brook - one which will serve to enhance future student participation.

FSA President Rich Bentley said the purpose of the award dinner dance is to raise money for the FSA Scholarship Award which is given to students who have made outstanding contributions to the quality of student life at Stony Brook.

Eric Brand, a founder of the Stony Brook Press and Former Polity President Rich Zuckerman (above) were the recipients of last year's $500 FSA Scholarship Award. Two winners were chosen because the award had not been given in two years.

Informal Lectures on Publishing Offered

A series of informal lectures on books has been arranged to introduce a new University-Community Fellowship Program.

Nancy Mullen, of Setauket, who has managed the Corner Book Shop near campus since 1962, has been appointed the first fellow. Lester Paldy, dean of the Center for Continuing Education (CED), said the program was created "to develop new relationships between the university and the wider Long Island metropolitan community."

CED is sponsoring the program in collaboration with the departments of History, English and Sociology and with support from the Stony Brook Foundation.

Paldy explained, "The program will bring to the campus persons whose expertise and knowledge can compliment the resources of traditional university departments." Fellows, serving as volunteers, will be provided with office space and staff support to plan programs, meet with students and faculty on an informal basis, and participate in the academic life of the departments in which they reside.

Mullen has organized "Talks on Books," a late afternoon series that has begun and has brought to the campus people with extensive experience in the publishing industry. This series, Paldy said, will interest authors and potential authors, students, faculty, members of the community considering careers in publishing and others who share these interests.

The series will cover topics ranging from publishing and being published to book production and marketing. Each talk will be given in the Auditorium, Room 101, of the Humanities Building at 5 PM. Refreshments will be offered at 4:45 PM. Question periods will follow talks and career opportunities may be discussed.

Scheduled to speak on Thursday is Gladys Topkis of Yale University Press, who will cover professional and text editing.

Al Margolies, vice-president of production and design, Viking-Penguin, will speak about how books are manufactured on Nov. 5.

On Nov. 12, Dorothy Harris, permissions manager at Doubleday & Co., will lecture on copyrights, contracts and other aspects of the sale of book rights.

There will be a panel discussing the current state of the industry on Nov. 19. Panelists, representing the various kinds of publishing houses, will include Christopher Kerr, sales manager at Oxford University Press, Brenda Marsh, sales manager at St. Martin's Press and Nettie Bleich of John Wiley & Sons.

George Booth, New Yorker cartoonist and artist, will give an illustrated talk Dec. 3, on his experiences in having several books published by major houses.

The series will resume in February after the winter recess.

Meantime, Paldy said, other events will be arranged as others are appointed under the University-Community Fellowship Program. Each fellow will serve for one year.

The program's aim is to provide "more symmetry in the relationship linking Stony Brook to Long Island and the metropolitan region," Paldy explained. "While it is widely accepted that a university such as Stony Brook has an important public service mission, it is not usually recognized that we are surrounded by talented persons who could contribute to the academic life of the University if appropriate ways could be found to identify them and create settings in which they could work. This volunteer University-Community Fellowship is designed to help make such arrangements possible."

Reactions Mixed to Reagan's Education Views

By Christopher Potter
College Press Service

It was an event that would "pay rich dividends in the future," President Jimmy Carter predicted.

It was "a remarkable, glorious day for education," Vice-President Walter Mondale enthused.

At least that's what they thought 16 months ago, when beaming politicians and educators gathered at a "Salute to Learning Day" to christen the brand-new U.S. Department of Education.

Now, President Ronald Reagan has rendered the department moribund, a victim of his resolve to dismantle it.

Fulfilling a campaign promise, the President is expected to recommend either that the department be demoted to agency or foundation status, that it be returned to the U.S. Dept. of Health and Human Services (which used to be the Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare before education programs were moved to their own cabinet home), or that its agencies be divided among a number of existing cabinet departments.

Reagan and his fellow conservatives have never hidden their dislike of the department, which they call a bureaucratic intrusion into state and local affairs. Indeed, the first bill to dismantle the department was introduced in Congress in October 1979, before Carter even had a chance to sign the bill creating the department into law.

More surprising than Reagan's proposal is the lack of alarm of college officials around the country. They generally greet news of the department's demise with cautious approval or, more typically, outright apathy.

Those most opposed to dismantling the department are Washington, D.C. college lobbyists.

"We'll fight this move to the end," vowed Bill Stafford of the National Education Association (NEA), the teachers' union that had lobbied for three decades for a cabinet-level education department.

Many viewed the department's establishment as Carter's political payoff to the NEA.

"Every other country in the Western world has a secretary of education," Stafford asserted. "We need someone up there minding the store, or there's no telling what Reagan might do. The department just hasn't had a chance yet."

"It's clear [Reagan] intends to dismantle the public educational system as it now exists," Stafford contended. "This is nothing new for him. He'd like to go back to his early days, back to the little red schoolhouse. He thinks, 'If I made it on my own, why can't everyone else?'"

Interestingly, the NEA's arch-rival American Federation of Teachers (AFT), which originally lobbied against establishing the department, now favors the department's continued existence, albeit mutedly.

"It's better than nothing at all," said AFT publicist Scott Widmeyer, who his organization would approve returning education programs to Health & Human Services. "The AFT doesn't like the idea of a federal agency telling state governments what to do. Yet we don't want all the power to go back to the states, either. Local interference would be much worse than anything the federal government might do."

John Mallon of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities agreed. "There're just so many problems with state and local government as regards education that we'd hate to lose the kind of overseeing agency that we have now."

Yet general reaction among college administrators outside of Washington doesn't seem nearly as worried.

"I don't think it would have much effect on our university," observed Albert Jones, presidential assistant at the University of Georgia. "If abolishing the department would help do away with federal intrusion into state education, that would be fine."

"I don't feel the loss would have any significant effect on us as long as some form of body remains in Washington," added Indiana University Vice-President Kenneth Gros Lewis.

Columbia Vice-President Gregory Fusco is skeptical about the importance of a cabinet-level department. "Higher education as a whole never has been very concerned about a department of education, thus it's unlikely there will be much opposition [to its demise].

"It's the federal programs themselves that are important to us, not the organization of government bureaucracy," he said.

Oklahoma Vice-President Gerald Turner agrees. "In some ways, less government attention is better. It means less red tape."

[Stony Brook University's director of financial aid, Jack Joyce, said "I have an idea we'll end up with just as much red tape regardless of the decision." He said that the dismantling of the department might make student and school aid programs safer from the Reagan administration's planned budget cuts. "When they're all pulled together in one department they're a little easier to carve," he explained.]

Smaller schools seem as unconcerned as the larger ones. "We're on solid private footing," said Robert Haslun, presidential assistant at Oberlin College. "I don't think abolishing a department will mean abolishing the government's interest in education."

"It's doubtful [abolition] would have any effect on us," added Barbara Lawrence of Middlebury College in Vermont. "We're pretty self-sufficient."

"There's no evidence that having a cabinet-level department directly over education has been a gain or a loss," pointed out Assistant Vice-President Sam Baker of the University of Illinois. "Policy is made in Congress, not the education department, yet there's nothing apparent that the department's been effective even as a lobbying organization."

The prevailing administrative apathy seems best summed up by Glen Grant, assistant chancellor at California-Berkeley. "I doubt that there's any opinion on this one way or another here, even on a personal level. I just don't think having a department of education makes any difference."

Short-sighted Cuts

The Reagan Administration's proposals to reduce funds for federal education and health and social programs in 1982 by 12 percent are short-sighted and insensitive to students' needs.

The proposed cuts would essentially eliminate 340,000 students from various programs offered in New York State. The reduction in funds for Guaranteed Student Loans alone would amount to a loss of $500 million. New York State, which receives about 24 percent of federal loan money, would be hardest hit. Julia Leavy, executive vice-president for the Student Association of the State University of New York addressed the heart of the matter when she said, "It is obvious that President Reagan and Senator D'Amato have no conception of the degree that these cuts will hurt not only students, but all people."

In addition, because of the Administration's love affair with big business and its extravagant spending on weapons of mass destruction that are not even justified by any unified and coherent national defense policy, it is ludicrous to see the Reagan administration refusing to provide for something as fundamental as education.

With this in mind, we urge all students to oppose this proposal by participating in Student Action Day, Oct. 28. We implore students to either write or call Senator D'Amato expressing their disapproval over Reagan's proposed cuts.

These cuts affect all of us.

"DO YOU DO SPINE TRANSPLANTS?"

-LETTERS-

Minority Rule

To the Editor:

Did you know that since 1948:
1) The largest turnout of the Voting Age Population (VAP) was 64 percent voting in 1960?
2) That in the last three Presidential elections less than 55 percent of the VAP voted?
3) The President-elect to win the greatest share of the VAP vote was Johnson (38 percent)—in 1964?
4) That in 1948, the President -elect received votes from only 25 percent of the VAP?
5) That in three of the last four elections, the President-elect received votes from less than 28 percent of the VAP (Nixon in 1972 was the lone exception)?
6) In 1974, only 42 percent of the VAP voted for Governor?
7) In three years (1954, 1966, 1974) the elected Governor received votes from less than 25 percent of the VAP?
8) And (finally) that the N.Y. Governor-elect with the greatest percentage of the VAP votes was Rockefeller (29 percent) in 1958?
No? I'm not surprised. In the election on Oct. 15, only 12 percent of the Stony Brook students voted. On the referenda on Oct. 21, only 18 percent of them voted (It appears that college students are more apathetic than the general population).

So to all those people who were afraid that the majority would dictate to the minority, don't worry. It happens to be the other way around.

Drive Safely

To the Editor:

First of all I'd like to take this opportunity to commend the Department of Public Safety for doing a very good job with such a limited staff and budget. However, I feel there is much left undone. The most important of which is traffic safety. I have personally witnessed three extremely close calls, with pedestrians being narrowly missed. All three vehicles were (in my estimation)—traveling well in excess of 40 MPH. I have also observed numerous cases of reckless driving and moving violations. Students are certainly not the only offenders, faculty and staff must also share some of the blame. All too often green campus vehicles can also be seen traveling through the campus roads at excessive speeds. I feel that Public Safety should reasonably enforce the campus speed limits. By reasonable enforcement, I mean that speed limits should be enforced without the pettiness that occurs all too frequently in law enforcement. I do not wish this letter to start a rash of speeding tickets for 31 MPH outer campus roads. Nor do I wish to see a two week crusade against speeders and reckless drivers. I do hope the speed limits will be enforced all semester, especially in front of the Union.

In closing I would like to relate to you something I hope you will remember each time you start your car. Last Friday my nine year old nephew, Chipper, came to Stony Brook to visit me. He got off the bus at 4:37. Chipper ran across the street waving a sleeping bag in his right hand (as a greeting) while carrying a gym bag in his left. The next few moments were a blur. Chipper was struck by a speeding car passing that bus. The Ambulance Corps arrived and took Chipper to University Hospital.

He died there a short time later.

After slightly composing myself, I did the hardest thing I've done in my life. With a pain in my heart and a throat constricted with grief, I called his mother and father.

Fortunately, the tale I've just told you is not true. Had this story been true immediate action would be taken: let's take that action before a tragedy like this is allowed to occur. Please, don't let it come true for your nephew, relative, or friend.

Drive safely.
Hindsight is all too often better than foresight.

To Be Young, Gifted and Black

What Will Reagan's Cuts Mean to Black Students?

By Bill Rouselle

("To be Young, Gifted and Black" will appear as a monthly column in Statesman).

With the beginning of the 1981-82 school year, we will examine the current status of blacks in higher education in this month's column. While the survival of black colleges remains the most vital issue confronting black students, the Reagan budget cuts in education could have a more long range and devastating impact on education opportunities for black students.

According to the Commerce Department's Census Bureau, about one million blacks were enrolled in college in October 1980. While the one million black college students figure is nearly doubled the 1970 black student population (522,000), it is no where near the proportionate number of black college-age young people in the U.S. population. Census figures indicate that blacks comprise 11.5 percent of the nation's population and 14 percent of the country's college-age population of 18 to 24 year olds. However, only 12 percent of college-age blacks attend college. In 1976, black students accounted for only 9.3 percent of the total higher education enrollment. In 1980, that percentage was down to 8.8 percent of the 11.4 million total college enrollment.

These figures indicate a percentage decrease in blacks attending college. It is yet impossible to concretely determine the impact of various desegregation efforts on this decline, but the figures do indicate that more and more black college students are enrolling at black college campuses while the overall enrollment percentages continue to decline. One can only assume that the decrease is coming from a decline in black enrollment in white institutions and an increasing white student enrollment on black college campuses both of which could be linked to desegregation efforts.

The Reagan administration appears to have a commitment toward increasing money available to black institutions (i.e., Title III monies, the second largest source of funds to black colleges, is proposed to receive a $9.9 million increase in the 1982 budget, one of the few increases in the Reagan education budget). The Republican administration is also taking a public position in support of the continued existence of black colleges. There have been recent settlements in desegregation cases in North Carolina, South Carolina, and movement toward a settlement in the critical Louisiana case which prompted the initial Adams vs. Califano suit that laid the basis for massive desegregation efforts during the decade of the 1970's. While these settlements seem to soothe some fears about mergers and destruction of black colleges in those states, Reagan's policy of shifting responsibility for social and educational programming to the states (federalism) could make state governors, legislatures and boards of higher education "the overseers of a new plantation system," according to Tony Brown, in an article which appeared in the August/September 1981 issue of The Black Collegian magazine.

Brown therefore issued a call for organizing on a state by state basis in 15 states in 1981 to mark black college survival efforts. Plans are underway for demonstrations, marches and organizing efforts in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia directed at state office holders to gather support for increased funding and resources to assure the practical survival of black universities.

Meanwhile, the Reagan budget cuts in other education program areas could have a more devastating impact on black educational opportunities. According to the Chronicle of Higher Education, "a key element in the Reagan budget plan is a set of proposals to revamp student-assistance programs for which middle and upper income students have been eligible since 1978. Under existing law, families earning less than $25,000 a year are required to contribute up to 14 percent of their disposable income. The Reagan plan would require them to contribute 20 percent of their income to education costs, and wealthier families may be asked to pay even more.

"The Administration also called for an end to present federal policy of backing loans to students, regardless of their families' income. The loan-reform plan would reduce federal subsidies even for the neediest students, by ending the federal policy of paying the interest on loans while borrowers are still in college. To cut cost in the new guaranteed-loan program for parents, President Reagan proposed increasing the interest charged from 9 percent to market rate interest (currently over 20 percent).

"Yet, another source of federal aid to college students would be cut off entirely, under an Administration proposal to eliminate Social Security payments to students. President Reagan recommended that no new beneficiaries be allowed to enter the program after August 1981, and that payments to the 800,000 students already receiving benefits be reduced by 25 percent a year until recipients reach the age of 22."

The impact of these "reforms" in student assistance programs on educational opportunities for black students will be watched closely. While many surmise that black students will continue to receive substantial assistance since they are generally from low income families, the actual implementation of these reforms could mean that many needy students will not get grants and even more will not be able to secure loans with market interest rates ranging in the 20 percent category.

NYPIRG: Against Students' Interests?

By Thomas Hawkins

On Thursday, Oct. 15 a person accosted me while walking through the Union. "Vote Yes for NYPIRG" he said. I asked him what it does. He said, "Oh, lots of things." I tried to ask him what, but he had already stopped two women by then. This within 15 feet of a polling place.

This action could have been done by an over-zealous supporter of NYPIRG or a person who has no affiliation with it. So I passed it off and went about my business (even after I was stopped by a "Vote Yes" person right by the South P-Lot polling area.).

But after reading Statesman of Oct. 16, I decided otherwise. The Statesman article concerned the action taken by the Polity Judiciary, invalidating the NYPIRG and athletic referenda due to the fact that "the voting students were unjustly deprived of their right to have views expressed regarding the issues involved." The thing that got me going was the statement by NYPIRG Project Coordinator Jim Leotta, who said "The Judiciary and the Election Board both voted to invalidate the referendum...over NYPIRG's protest."

Mr. Leotta, how can you and your group print such a statement as "Defend Student Voting Rights" while everything you do and say is opposed to that very principle (defend them when they agree with you?). A well informed electorate is a right; one that must be encouraged and nurtured, not hindered and abused. Your own statement speaks louder than mine.

Mr. Leotta, if I am to pay money that I've worked very hard for into your organization, I would like you to have set goals. But you have none and that is dangerous to the public. From a Viewpoint written by yourself in the Oct. 15 edition of The Stony Brook Press "...an active role in solving the many (?) social problems which exist in the surrounding community." But in your very next sentence you state "NYPIRG has grown in a short time to become the Nation's largest..." Community? Nation's largest? Please Mr. Leotta, my head spins enough in MSM 231, I don't need your doubletalk to help it.

Due to your statement I looked into one of the issues NYPIRG backs. What I found left me frightened and wondering who benefits from this group.

NYPIRG claims a major victory for the passing of Suffolk's "Bottle-Bill" (all returnables) and the group is pressing for statewide approval. The bill will, according to NYPIRG, "decrease litter, conserve resources and drive down prices on bottled goods." These statements, as I found out after doing my own research, border on fantasy. There is a real world out there NYPIRG, and the state of Michigan is its name. For you see Michigan has such a law and has had accurate studies made of its effectiveness.

Litter- Michigan's litter control budget has grown from $1.7 million to $2.2 million in the first two years (Michigan Dept of Natural Resources) and total Michigan litter has increased by 10 percent (Environmental Protection Agency).

Natural Resources - Before the law took effect it required 75 gallons of fuel to deliver 1,000 cases of soda. It now takes 99 gallons (Can Manufacturer Institute study). Before law, four gallons of water per 1,000 oz. filled, now 22 gallons (Midwest Research Institute). Prices - In June 1979, the Michigan accounting firm of Ernst and Whinney found consumers paying 36 cents more for a six-pack of soft-drinks and 30 cents more for a six-pack of beer (avg.). And in a 1980, General Accounting Office study they found an $850 million saving due to unreturned bottles (money consumers lost). Add to that increased production costs - $1.3 billion.

Mr. Leotta, why didn't your group state that the "Bottle-Bill" would create more jobs. It stated the opposite of everything else. Is it because such diverse groups as the GAO, EPA Dept of Commerce and the AFL-CIO all agree that the passage of "Bottle-Bills" nationwide would eliminate jobs - lots of them. The AFL-CIO predicts 60,000.

It took me two days to find this out.

One person. Alone. For this NYPIRG wants $120 per year, per student. That's $120 times 16,000 (app.) $67,000. Mr. Leotta, when it is obvious that you are deceiving us or that neither you nor your group knows anything about what you are fighting for, serious questions must be asked.

- 1) What is our money doing?
- 2) Where is it going? (or to whom?)
- 3) Where do you get your statistics?
- 4) Why are you lying to the people who fund you?

A serious re-evaluation of NYPIRG should be started immediately (Dr. Marburger, Jim Fuccio). So much money, taken from so many, should be spent in a more productive manner. Ideas such as a study on the feasibility of starting a business school or the enlarging of the Union may be starters.

This "Bottle-Bill" thing is just what I happened to pick up on because NYPIRG has been heralding it this past semester. Who knows what havoc they have wrought before. But their deceptions got to me.

Committee Debates Calendar Change

Fuccio argued for an academic calendar that would begin prior to Labor Day, and run 15 weeks concluding with finals, and then has a Christmas vacation. Some of Fuccio's defense was based on his belief that students do not want to have the pressures of studying over the holidays. Fuccio also said that there are many students who wish to work over Christmas vacation.

The third proposal leaves the calendar much the same as it has been, a 13 week semester which was not discussed in detail.

After the opening conflict between Goldhaber and Fuccio, the rest of the committee began working and each proposal was heavily scrutinized.

The committee discussed the difficulties of beginning before Labor Day. Getting off campus housing, the losing of the special Labor Day trips, bonuses for workers and conferences that professors and teaching assistants would not be able to attend were cited as reasons for beginning classes later in September.

Difficulties were also cited for the calendar that ends after Christmas was the amount of students' retention during the ten day holiday vacation. Also mentioned was that students who work during the winter interim will have less time and teacher conferences are held during this break.

University Registrar William Strockbine, a committee member, in reference to the pre-Labor Day calendar said "In 1979, after trying it for two years the pre-Labor Day proposal was rejected unanimously."

SASU Opposes Budget Cuts

schools to phone D'Amato on the same day and voice their opposition to the cutbacks. "A state-wide phone-in will have a tremendous impact because they will see how organized we are," Leavy said.

Also on the agenda, Leavy said, is a letter writing campaign. Envelopes and paper will be provided in the lobby of the Stony Brook Union for students wishing to write their senators urging them to oppose further financial aid cutbacks.

Tashoff said the dates for these campaigns will be announced at a general interest meeting tomorrow at 8 P.M. in the Polity Conference room.

Tashoff said he is hopeful about SASU's plan of action. "It is very important for the students to make it known to Senator D'Amato that these additional financial aid cuts are intolerable, he said. The mandate from the people is to oppose these cuts."

"The only way to put pressure on the politicians is to do it on a grass roots level," Fuccio said.

Free Contraceptives Given To Students

Urbana, Ill. - The University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana has initiated what may be a first among American colleges and universities: Its health center has begun distributing male contraceptives upon request.

"Actually, this is nothing new," said Dr. David Owen, associate director of McKinley Health Center at the university. "We've been informally distributing condoms provided us by local druggists for some time. The only real difference is that now it's an official program through our family planning clinic, which has already been providing female contraceptives."

According to Owen, the program will provide condoms for any male student who is officially registered and has paid his health center fee. Female students would also be allowed to obtain condoms for a non-student male partner.

"We would have started the program a year earlier," Owen claimed, "but our director at the time was afraid of a possible adverse reaction both from the general community and from pharmacists in particular, who might feel we were stealing some of their business." A new director subsequently approved the plan, and "thus far we've had no adverse reaction at all," said Owen.

Owen thinks the Illinois program may be the only one of its kind currently operating on American campuses. "We inquired around, and didn't come across anyone else who does the same thing. At this point, we may be unique."

Therapists Needed

"If 50 registered respiratory therapists flew into Shreveport Airport at 8 AM, by noon they would all be hired!" according to Sam Fletcher, assistant director of respiratory therapy at Schumbert Hospital, Louisiana.

There's a severe shortage of respiratory therapists (RT's) throughout the U.S. The 100 schools that train RT's simply cannot produce graduates fast enough.

"You can't beat the salary or the opportunity for only two years of school," said George West, director of respiratory care at Massachusetts General Hospital, and president of the American Association for Respiratory Therapy. Entry level positions for accredited RT's run at the $16-20,000 level. Rapid advancement and unlimited mobility are guaranteed.

The profession is only a dozen years old, yet the RT is already indispensable in the emergency room, intensive care unit, neonatal (newborn) department and on emergency transport teams. Working closely with doctors and nurses, RT's struggle to save or improve the lives of heart attack victims, asthmatic children and people suffering from chronic lung disease. When the "LifeFlight" emergency medical copter rushes to a distant accident, or a child with third degree burns arrives at the hospital, or a toxic gas leak causes a community disaster, the RT is there, a proud member of the professional health care team.

For Offbeat Scholarships

"It's a common misconception that scholarships are only awarded on the basis of financial need or grades alone," said Daniel Cassidy, president of the National Scholarship Research Service.

Cassidy, founder of the two-year-old company that uses computers to provide college students with individualized lists of grant sources, did quite a bit of scholarship sleuthing for himself while he was in college. "I was able to attend the University of San Francisco and Yale on $20,000 in grants," said Cassidy, "but even with that much money, I still had to sell my car to finish."

In fact, there were - and are - all kinds of scholarships available. For example:

A Seattle judge set up a scholarship for reformed prostitutes.

A Pennsylvania college offers four scholarships to needy left-handers.

The University of Arizona has scholarships for rodeo riders.

A Texas foundation offers scholarships of up to $2500 to help foster better relations between the citizens of the Lone Star State and the people of Sweden.

The trick, of course, is finding out about those and other kinds of aids. Cassidy advises students to make use of all local scholarship reference sources. "Start with your financial aid office, then your instructors and local clubs and business organizations. These people generally know what's going on in the community," said Cassidy.

His company, National Scholarship Research Service (NSRS), assists graduate and undergraduate students in locating scholarship sources in their field of interest. Of the $1 billion in educational assistance offered last year, $135 million went unclaimed. "Most," said Cassidy, "simply because people didn't know who was offering it."

NSRS charges a $35 processing fee for its research service. Cassidy says that an applicant generally receives from 30 to 50 scholarship sources on their printout, along with additional listings of organizations that have further information on the applicant's career fields.

College to begin Training Of Air Traffic Controllers

Norman, Okla. - In what is apparently a speeded-up effort to permanently replace striking air traffic controllers, the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has awarded a $10 million contract to the University of Oklahoma in Norman to participate in an ongoing controller training program run by the FAA in Oklahoma City.

The school is at least the second officially contacted by the FAA to train new air traffic controllers. Negotiations have been continuing between the agency and Florida's Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University to train students for controllers' jobs left vacant by the 12,000 strikers.

The FAA, which had been notably closed-mouthed about its Embry-Riddle connections, is making no secret over the purpose of its contract with Oklahoma. "The new program is due to the illegal strike by PATCO (Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization)," openly admitted Tom Ross, director of FAA training at Oklahoma. "We were asked by the FAA along with a number of other institutions and corporations to provide training programs and teachers to replace controllers who have been discharged."

Ross said the university and the FAA have had a working relationship since December, 1970, when the school contracted to provide a management training school for the agency. The school's involvement was increased in 1978 to provide the initial phases of an air traffic controller training program.

"We were selected [for the new program] on a competitive basis with other institutions," said Ross. "A lot of other schools expressed interest, although I don't know their numbers or identity. That's privileged FAA information." Ross was unaware of the coincident program at Embry-Riddle.

The director considers the new contract conclusive proof the federal government means what it says about its permanent dismissal of the striking controllers. "If you or I were in the same situation, we'd play it the same way," he asserted. "It's strictly legal."

The bulk of student training will be done at the Mike Monroney Aeronautics Center at Oklahoma City. Ross said students will spend 20 to 22 weeks completing the course, although it will take another three to four years to reach the level of qualified journeyman controller. "We're just providing the first few steps," he said.

'Pseudo-Drugs' Stir Nationwide Controversy

By Christopher Potter
College Press Service

"They sell like crazy," said an editor at High Times magazine.

"They're some of the most dangerous drugs on the market today," said an Illinois public health official.

"We're giving the public foods, not drugs," claimed a company president.

The controversial objects in questions are so-called "legal body stimulants," pseudo-drugs which have reportedly been sweeping college campuses in popularity the past year or so. The products, which by and large are quite legal, usually take the form either of "look-alike" capsules and tablets designed to resemble amphetamines, Quaaludes or cocaine; or butyl nitrite, an oxidizing agent marketed as "liquid incense-- that buyers inhale out of a small bottle.

The capsules and tablets usually contain a combination of caffeine, phnylpropanolmine (an antihistamine) and ephedrine sulfate. They provide users with enough of a "high" to satisfy them as being the genuine article, though the bogus pills cost dealers far less than do genuine amphetamines. The pills provide the stimulant equivalent of "perhaps two cups of coffee," said a Food and Drug Administration spokesman.

Inhaling butyl nitrite, or "liquid incense," triggers a brief increase in blood pressure and heartbeat, causing the user to feel giddy and euphoric for about two minutes before returning to normal.

Fly-by-night pharmaceutical companies reportedly have been springing up like wildfire during the past year, flooding the college market with pills and incense, often advertising openly in campus newspapers with promos for large helping of stimulants. It is questionable for the moment just how prevalent student use of the legal stimulants and look-alikes has become, or how dangerous, if at all, such products actually are.

"I haven't heard of these drugs hitting our campus," said student counselor Kent Poey of the University of Massachusetts. "We haven't really seen anything around here," said William White, director of psychological services at Cornell. "It couldn't be very big among our students."

"I've heard no mention of it," agreed University of Michigan staff psychologist Evie Gauthier, "though maybe it's just that we're not asking about it. Maybe kids who are into it aren't coming to us."

"I've been reading reports in newspapers and magazines that indicate

'Legal Body Stimulants' Resembling Cocaine and Butyl Nitrate Sweep Colleges

legal stimulants are being abused," said Sam Taube, associate dean of students at Stony Brook. "However, we've had no reports of their abuse on campus."

"I've never heard of such incidents on this campus," said Terry Weiss, a counselor from the Bridge to Somewhere Counseling Center.]

initiated legal action to prohibit sales of look-alikes. "And there are others that probably haven't been reported, simply because people didn't realize what had triggered the victim's reaction."

"There have been some deaths confirmed," agreed Chris Smith of the Food and Drug Administration, "although some of those may have been deliberate benign substances you could find, as benign as tap water," exulted W. Jay Freezer, San Francisco based manufacturer of Rush, the most popular butyl nitrite inhalent. "The chemical gets nowhere near the brain."

"About 20 states have conceded [in court cases] there is no problem with Rush," said Freezer, who claims his product is now legal in every state except Massachusetts and Georgia. "In effect," Freezer proclaimed, "we're the third legal hedonistic product in America, along with tobacco and alcohol."

Marc Bernstein, whose MSB Associates manufacture stimulants such as Toot, Zoom and Relax-U, takes almost a guru's attitude toward his products. "Zoom was first extracted from exotic plants by South American Indians," he claimed, while "Relax-U is a synthesis of foods used in ancient times. Its ingredients are similar to dietary preparations taken by millions of people."

"It's difficult to prove a new drug is dangerous," admitted FDA's Chris Smith, "but there are other measures we can take." Generally unable to make a case on drug abuse grounds, the agency is now pursuing a different angle, counterfeiting. "The phony drugs are designed to look exactly like the real thing," said Smith, whose agency seized the products of nine different stimulant manufacturers in a surprise raid Sept. 30th. Most of the companies were located in New York and Pennsylvania, with the town of Milroy, Pennsylvania fingered as "the center for most nation-wide stimulant activity," by Smith. Smith traces stimulant manufacturing to around 1975, selling almost exclusively to truck drivers. "It wasn't until the past year or so these things caught on around college campuses, partly due to the general diet pill craze among college kids."

Dean Latimer, associate editor of High Times magazine, is skeptical about the stimulants' value. "These things will keep you awake, impair your diet, and you'll build up a total tolerance within two weeks," he scoffed. "I used to be a speed freak, and taking this new stuff is like taking two or three cups of Turkish coffee. It doesn't do much of anything."

'Our product is . . . as benign as tap water.'

-W. Jay Freezer

Statesman Michael Will de Laforcade

On the other hand, Bill Olson of the University of Colorado counseling service saw an increase in usage during the past year. "They were pretty popular last spring," he noted, "although we haven't had anyone come in experiencing problems, strung out on the stuff."

"There have been at least five deaths nationwide as a result of caffeine drugs," contended Dr. John Spikes, chief toxicologist at the Illinois public health department, whose state recently suicides."

"You'd have to be cautious of repeated usage of [butyl nitrite]" warned Dr. Charles Sharp of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, citing evidence of a number of deaths among homosexuals who, he said, are the most frequent incense indulgers. By and large, though, he conceded "most people can probably get by without problems."

Dodgers Lead Series, 3-2

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles - Pedro Guerrero and Steven Yeager hit consecutive home runs off Ron Guidry in the seventh inning, giving the Los Angeles Dodgers a 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees yesterday and a 3-2 lead in the World Series.

The Dodger Stadium 56,115 erupted in thunderous applause and cheers as the Dodgers continued on a comeback trail that began in the National League West Division series against Houston.

The saga of the underdog Dodgers continues tomorrow in Game Six at Yankee Stadium, where the Series began. It was also the stadium where the Yankees built a 2-0 lead over Los Angeles.

The Dodgers, however, have won three in a row in Dodger Stadium, forcing the Yankees to accomplish an unprecedented feat if they expect to win their 23rd World Series.

No team has ever won the World Series by winning all four games at home.

Jerry Reuss, the Dodgers starter and loser in Game One, held the Yankees to four hits in Game Five, although he was not overpowering. It was Guidry who looked the stronger of the two until the seventh inning.

Guidry had struck out nine, including Dusty Baker to start the seventh. As the crowd sat in silence, patiently awaiting the awakening of their Dodgers as had happened so frequently before, it came on the second pitch to Guerrero.

The Dodger right fielder was 3-for-15 before the seventh inning of yesterday's game. But he slammed an 0-1 pitch from Guidry deep into the left-centerfield bleachers, tying the game.

Guidry then worked the count on Yeager to 1-2 before the Dodger catcher launched the ball into the stands at nearly the same spot where Guerrero's wound up.

The homers, the ninth hit consecutively in World Series history, gave the Dodgers their third straight victory.

Los Angeles will send Burt Hooton, the loser in Game Two, against Tommy John, the winner of the second game, when the Series return to New York.

The only run off Reuss, 10-4 during the regular season with a 2.29 earned run average, came in the second. Reggie Jackson doubled on the first pitch of the inning, and Bob Watson was safe when second baseman Davey Lopes dropped his grounder for an error. Jackson went to third on the play and scored moments later, when Lou Piniella singled into left-field, driving a grounder between third baseman Ron Cey and shortstop Bill Russell.

Lopes tied two World Series records in the fourth inning when he committed two errors on one play and his second and third miscues of the game. The errors tied a record for the most in any game by a player of any position.

The two errors on one play also tied a Series record for second baseman, committed in 1905 by Dan Murphy of the Philadelphia Athletics and tied in 1973 by Mike Andrews of the Oakland A's.

The inning was probably New York's staunchest threat against Reuss after the second. Reuss walked Watson on four pitches to start the fourth and Piniella then hit a bouncer to Lopes' left, the second baseman bobbed the ball twice, then dropped it for one error. When he retrieved it, he threw the ball past first for another error as Watson wound up on third and Piniella went to second.

Lopes pulled the mitt from his hand and motioned as if to throw it into the dirt.

However, Reuss began to wriggle from the jam when Rick Cerone grounded to short and neither runner was able to advance. Reuss then walked Aurelio Rodriguez intentionally, bringing Guidry to the plate with one out and the bases loaded.

Guidry laid down a bunt that headed straight for Reuss, and the pitcher's throw easily forced Watson at home. Willie Randolph hit a hard grounder to Steve Garvey at first, and Garvey took the play himself, ending the inning.

In the final five innings, Reuss faced only one over the minimum number of hitters.

Dave Winfield got his first hit in 17 trips to the plate during the Series with one out in the fifth.

SPORTS DIGEST

Giants Defeat Falcons in OT

The giants, whose 4-12 record gave them the No. two pick in the draft after the Saints picked Rogers, got a 40-yard field goal from Joe Danelo with 5:40 to go in overtime to beat the Atlanta Falcons 27-24.

Danelo's field goal came after Brad Van Pelt fell on a William Andrews fumble at the Atlanta 31. The victory in the rainy, 45-degree weather was the third in a row for the Giants, now 5-3, who trailed 17-7 in the third quarter.

Cey Beaned by the Gpose

Los Angeles - Ron Cey, Dodgers third baseman, was taken to a Los Angeles hospital for observation and X-rays after being beaned by New York Yankees relief pitcher Rich Gossage in the eighth inning of yesterday's fifth game of the World Series.

A collective gasp went up from a Dodger Stadium crowd of 56,115 when Cey took a 94 MPH fastball from Gossage, one of the hardest throwers in the major leagues, on the lower left side of his batting helmet. Cey crumpled to the ground and lay there for several moments before he was helped from the field by the Los Angeles trainer and several teammates.

The third baseman, who was transported by ambulance to Centinela Hospital, never lost consciousness. As he left the stadium, Cey held an ice pack to his left-forehead.

Cowboys Over Dolphins

Danny White completed two touchdown passes in a 31-second span late in the fourth quarter to rally the Cowboys over the Dolphins. White overcame a 27-14 Miami lead with a five-yard touchdown pass to tight end Doug Cosbie with 3:48 to go and, after Dennis Thurman intercepted a Dave Woodley pass, a 31-yard scoring toss to fullback Ron Springs with 3:17 left.

The victory was secured in the final eight seconds when rookie defensive back Mike Downs intercepted Woodley at the Dallas 42.

Records Shattered In NYC Marathon

By the Associated Press

New York - Alberto Salazar, who boldly predicted he would break the world record, and New Zealand's Allison Roe, a late entrant, shattered the men's and women's world marks yesterday in the New York City Marathon.

The soft-spoken, confident Salazar, in only his second marathon - he also won the New York City event in 1980 - clipped more than 20 seconds off the men's record, covering the 26-mile, 385-yard course in 2 hours, 8 minutes, 13 seconds.

Roe, who won the 1981 Boston Marathon only to be suspended for running in a professional race and later reinstated sliced more than 12 seconds off the women's record, with a time of 2:25:29.

The previous men's mark was 2:08:33.6, by Derek Clayton of Australia set May 30, 1969 at Antwerp, Belgium. The previous women's record was 2:25:41.3, by Grete Waitz of Norway in last year's New York City Marathon. The injured Waitz had to drop out of this year's race between the 14- and 15-mile points.

"I dreamed of a world record, but not of two," said a jubilant Fred Lebow, the race director.

Salazar, had put himself on the spot by predicting that he would smash the world record, with a time of 2:08, or possibly 2:07. He wasn't far off.

"I opened my big mouth again this year," said the 23-year-old Salazar, who a year ago had said he could break 2:10 in his first marathon, and beat that with a clocking of 2:09:41. "A lot of people would have been disappointed if I had not done it."

He did it - convincingly. Biding his time behind the fast early pace set by Louis Kenny of Ireland, the deceptively strong, 6-foot, 144-pound Salazar waited until the 16-mile mark before marking his big move.

At that point, Kenny had faded and Salazar was dueling Mexico's Jose Gomez, a first-time marathoner, and Poland's Ryszard Marczak for the lead.

Then, Salazar, who came to the United States with his family age 2 and is a graduate of the University of Oregon, put on a remarkable burst. He ran the next mile in an unofficial 4:33. It put him into the lead - and more than 20 seconds ahead of record pace.

After that, the smooth-striding Salazar pulled away from the record field of 16,000 entrants and his only challenger was the clock.

"I knew I would have to start pushing," he said. "I picked it the pace up and then I was confident I would do it."

He was unchallenged the rest of the way, and as he crossed the finish line in Central Park, he was mobbed by a horde of well-wishers.

SB Football Defeats Manhattan by Two Points

By Lisa Napell

In a tense and exciting fight the Stony Brook Patriots managed to hold Manhattan College to 13 points in Saturday's game, which the Patriots won by 2 points.

"It took 100 percent from everyone to win this game," said Defensive Linebacker, Billy Smith.

"There was a hurricane when we played them last year and we tied them 7-7," said Defensive End Ron Briggins. "The year before we beat them 8-6 and the year before that they beat us 8-6. If things keep going the way they are, they'll beat us 15-13 next year."

On a 25 yard pass from Quarterback Ray McKenna to Tight End Terry Russell, the Patriots scored their first touchdown on their first possession early in the first quarter. Kicker, Gus Baco, kicked the extra point to get the game off to a 7-0 start for Stony Brook.

Stony Brook's second touchdown was on a 25 yard run by Halfback Chris Brown in the last half of the second quarter. "Terry (Russell) was the whole play," Brown said. "I knew he would make it or break it. I just followed his block and ran it in. I finally know what it's like to make a touchdown, it feels good." McKenna kept the ball on a sweep to make a successful two point conversion and boost the score to 15-0.

With only 1:26 left in the half Manhattan inched past the Patriot defense to score a touchdown from the one and a half yard line. The extra point made the halftime score 15-7, Patriots.

Jorge Taylor managed to secure a total of 112 yards rushing before injuring his shoulder in the third quarter. This, added to Browns 88 and the other 30 yards gathered by the rest of the offense equals 30 yards rushing. Taylor is reported "o.k." after x-rays were taken for a suspected separated shoulder. "I'm fine" he said.

With seven minutes remaining in the game Manhattan's Kevin Cary threw an 89 yard touchdown pass to Mike Toscano. The Great Red Destroyer contained the Jasper's two point conversion attempt and with three minutes to go, Defensive Line man Mike Infranco made a fumble recovery on the Patriots 30 yard line that wrapped up the game at 15-13.

The offense gained a total of 279 yards, with three pass completions out of 10 attempts. All three were passes to Russell. "The line did really well," Brown said. "We're looking good."

Defensively the Patriots let up a total of 372 yards; 256 passing and 116 rushing, stopping 23 of the Jasper's 38 attempted passes. Line Backer Brian O'Handley caught two interceptions, on each in the second and fourth quarters. Infranco lead the team in tackles with seven, and six assists. Next in line was O'Handley with nine and three. He was followed by Defensive Back Ron Moruzzi with six and four. Defensive Back Dino Delaney got five and five. Defensive Back Tommy Brusca, with five and two. Defensive Captain Safety, Brian Fabricant, with four and six and Defensive Back, Ron Briggins, with four and two.

"If we win our remaining conference games we'll win our division," Brusca said. "I'm confident we can do it. We're on a roller coaster now and it's going up and we're not coming down till the team party after we win the playoffs."

"I give a lot of credit to Moruzi," Briggins said. "He started in his first game and he did a hell of a job on Manhattan's leading reciever."

"They had a lot of pride in themselves," Smith said. "They knew they were up against us and they really rose to the occasion, but we matched them and raised them one."

The Patriots next game will be at St. John Fisher Saturday.

Men Pats In Slump

The men's cross country team competed in a multi-team dual meet at Van Cortland Park Saturday. The course ran for five miles consisting of flat to very hilly dirt trails.

The Patriots defeated Brooklyn, 26-32. They lost to Lehman College, 18-37, Kings Point, 15-50, Patterson State, 25-30 and Southampton College 17-43.

Mike Winter took first place for Stony Brook with a time of 30:10. One minute and two seconds later he was followed by Philip Home. Bernard Harris placed third, 31:14, next was Jim Percoco, 31:15. Hank Verga followed with a time of 32:04. Ben Marsh took sixth, 32:38 and seventh was Paul D'Elisa, 35:01.

Blake Cambey and Chris Hawks did not run. "Without Cambey and Hawks scoring, we lost two meets we should not have," Coach Gary Westerfield said.

The team's record is 2-8. "The team hopes to improve upon dismal performances. This team beat Southampton in early September, and has the talent to be running much faster times," Westerfield said.

Women Pats Take First

Four members of the women's cross country team have reached their goal of running 5,000 meters in less than 21 minutes. This feat has been accomplished by eight women since the team began three years ago. Susan Liers Westerfield was the only woman to run the race in less than 20 minutes in 1980.

The Patriots placed first with 26 points out of six teams at the Nassau Community College Women's Cross Country Invitational Saturday. In the 5,000 meter course, Nassau placed second with 46 points and third was New York Institute of Technology with 62 points.

Out of 33 racers Donna Lyons placed first for Stony Brook and fifth in the race with a time of 22:04. Next for Stony Brook was Sue Corrado who was Seventh in the race with a time of 20:09. Tenth was Elena Naughton, 20:52. Debbie Murphy was 11th 20:59, 12th was Mary Bianco, 21:37, Fran Quervalu was 14th: 21:55, 20th was Leslie Price, 22:38 and Toni Swenson was 25th, 22:38.

"We are doing really well, the times are real good," Coach Paul Dudzick said.
