

Court to Decide Election Question

The Polity Judiciary will decide Thursday night what, if any, action it will take on alleged campaign improprieties in the recent race for Polity treasurer.

Their meeting, in conjunction with the Polity Election Board, is in response to charges that poll-watchers were urging voters to choose Chris Fairhall instead of Larry Siegel in the October 7 election.

Votes in that contest were never counted after the election when it was discovered by Ammann senior Owen Rumelt and Statesman Business Manager Rich Wald that a poll-watcher in Ammann College and another in O'Neill College were urging people to vote for Fairhall. The Ammann College poll-watcher initially said that Fairhall had told him to tell people that, but later said that he was joking. The O'Neill College poll-watcher said that he was acting on his own.

The Judiciary is now faced with three options, according to Chief Justice Lisa Charlack. Either they will invalidate Fairhall's candidacy, in essence making Siegel the winner; call for a new election; or accept the election as is, except for Ammann and O'Neill colleges, where a new election might be held. Under that plan, which was formulated by the Election Board, if either candidate's margin of victory is greater than the total number of votes cast in Ammann and O'Neill Colleges, he would be declared the winner. If the number of votes in those colleges is large enough to change the outcome of the election, a new election would be called.

Charlack said that, if Fairhall was found innocent and if no evidence was found suggesting further improprieties, the latter option would probably still be implemented. "Obviously," she said, "there were some problems in Ammann and O'Neill." —Howard Saltz

Garage Attendant Robbed; Third Time This Year

By Nancy J. Hyman

The University Hospital Parking garage was robbed Friday night by a knife-bearing man for the third time this year.

Michael Glazer, the cashier/parking attendant manning the Kinney Systems booth when the incident occurred, reported that at about 9:15 PM, a white male wearing a black knit ski mask entered the open door of the booth. The suspect, who was described by Glazer as being between 20 and 25 years old, about 6 feet tall and 185 pounds, then reached into his pocket and took out a hunting knife, which he allegedly placed at Glazer's throat. The assailant demanded all the money in the cash register, $233, according to Suffolk County Police.

Glazer then told him to take whatever was there.

After taking the money, the assailant, dressed in a green sweatshirt and jeans, fled through the woods south of the garage, according to the Police report. Glazer then locked up the booth and reported the incident to the Department of Public Safety. The case is currently under investigation.

Friday's incident is almost identical in nature to two robberies that occurred earlier this year. The prior incidents both involved assailants carrying hunting knives and wearing stocking masks. In those robberies, which occurred on May 29 and January 29, the suspects also ran into the woods surrounding the parking garage.

7,500 Attend 10th Oktoberfest

By Christine Castaldi

Tabler Quad celebrated its annual Oktoberfest this weekend, with two nights of partying that included two bands, more than 125 kegs of beer, and over 7,500 people.

Beginning on Friday night with the band Pretty Baby and concluding Saturday with the group Volunteers, the festival continued its 10-year-old tradition.

"We served 132 kegs of beer," said Edward Friedman, a resident assistant (RA) in Douglass College and the beer organizer for the Oktoberfest. "This was the most beer we served in the past four years." In addition to beer, food was available.

Mark Saltzman, one of the student security guards at the event said "approximately 7,500 students came to the Oktoberfest on Friday and Saturday nights."

According to Bruno Savo, the treasurer for the Oktoberfest, "As of now it looks as though we broke even financially with the Oktoberfest." However, there were some minor disturbances with the selling of the beer, Savo said. "Some of the beer sellers were giving too much beer away to their friends, but other than that there were no real problems," he said. "For the most part everybody did a fantastic job."

"All the people who worked on the security did a great job," Savo said. "Everyone who entered the Oktoberfest had to

During this year's Oktoberfest celebration, there were a few additional expenses. According to Savo, "There needed to be a state clean-up team in order to thoroughly clean up the Tabler Quad cafeteria." "In addition to the state clean-up team, there were some students who Venerable. According to Sullivan, "They all did a great job." "It looks now as though there never was a two day party, that's what a great job they did," she continued.

One student, Mary Ellen Sullivan, was the head of the state clean-up team for the workers and also for the students. The state clean-up team consisted of six workers from Tabler Quad who were coordinated by Herman team in the area, which was then followed by a talent show. Several students participated in the talent show and according to Sullivan, it was a huge success.

According to Savo, "the main reason for this state clean-up team was to enable Stony Brook to pass a State Health Inspection law."

Manila, Philippines — A bomb exploded yesterday at an American travel agents' conference in the Philippines, injuring at least 18 people, including five Americans. Keynote speaker President Ferdinand Marcos, whose military regime has been the object of terrorist threats, escaped unharmed.

Authorities said the bomb apparently was planted in a delegate's bag.

Minutes after the explosion, a woman claiming to represent the April 6 Movement called a Manila news agency and took responsibility for the blast. The anti-Marcos group has claimed responsibility for past bombings.

Presidential guards immediately formed a wall around Marcos, seated 20 rows from the blast, while dozens of delegates fled three-foot flames and smoke.

Vancouver, Washington — Mount Saint Helens showed no signs of settling down yesterday after five outbursts of steam and volcanic ash in 48 hours, even though a lava plug was forming rapidly in the throat of the volcano's crater, scientists said.

"We're still in an eruptive phase," said Susan Russell-Robinson, a geologist with the United States Geological Survey.

About ten hours after the plug, or dome, or hot semi-molten rock began forming in the crater, a deep earthquake too weak to measure was recorded late Saturday night, said A.B. Adams at the University of Washington geophysics center in Seattle.

Joe Sears of the Federal Emergency Management Agency said scientists agreed yesterday that it was "not a deep-focus quake that would signal that activity has come to an end."

State and Local

Buffalo — Two black leaders urged yesterday that United States Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti come to Buffalo to take part in the investigation of the unsolved slayings of six black males in three weeks.

Dan Acker, president of the Buffalo Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), told thousands of black and white people at a "Buffalo Unity Day" rally in front of City Hall that Civiletti and other Justice Department officials should come to Buffalo because all resources "are needed to solve these dark days that are before us now."

The Reverend Charley Fisher III, executive director of BUILD, a local black group, urged that Civiletti "personally come here to oversee this investigation and stay here until that killer is caught."

BEOG Awards Delayed; Albany, Applicants Faulted

By Themba Ntinga

Students expecting Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG) awards may not receive their money until November.

The delay in students getting their checks is, according to Director of Financial Aid Bob Gileece, a familiar problem.

"The Student Eligibility Report form, which is filled out by the student," Gileece said, "is sent by us to Albany where it is processed, and then around August and September the student is informed of his or her eligibility, but the checks do not arrive until sometime in November. The delay is caused by the processing in Albany."

Another problem that leads to the delay of the checks, Gileece said, is that students fill out their applications late. Applications are to be filed with the office of Financial Aid by July, he said, but some applications are received much later.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Art Seminar

A six-week Feminist Art Seminar will be offered this Fall at the University.

Led by Priscilla Van Laarhoven, it will be an instruction and resource workshop for women artists on campus and in the community. The objective of the seminar is to facilitate the woman artist's identification of herself as both a woman and an artist. The discussions will be useful and wide-ranging, and a number of studio projects may be undertaken by the seminar group.

This special seminar, sponsored by the Union Crafts Center, will meet on Thursday evenings from 8 to 9:30 PM, beginning October 23. The fee is $8; enrollment is limited.

The numbers to call for more information are 246-3657 and 246-7107.

Downey to Speak

Congressman Tom Downey (D-West Islip) will be on campus today. Downey, currently seeking re-election to a fourth term in Congress, will be speaking at 3:30 PM in room 326 of the Stony Brook Union.

Downey is coming ostensibly to speak on behalf of his colleague, Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman (D-Brooklyn), the Democratic candidate for United States Senator, but he will also be available to answer questions about his own campaign and what is happening in Washington.

Downey, a former Suffolk County legislator, was first elected to The House of Representatives in 1974, at the age of 26. A liberal Democrat, he was a leader of the movement to open the Democratic National Convention this summer.

Mouse Broth

An article last week in the University's faculty newsletter, "Current," offers a "mouse broth" prescription for making large lecture classes as rewarding as small ones.

It comes from Elof Carlson, distinguished teaching professor of Biology and frequent winner of best teaching polls among campus students. Carlson has regularly taught introductory level lecture courses for 200-500 students in his 12 years at Stony Brook.

"Organize material as a story with a continuous theme," he says. "Use point/counterpoint repetition, analogy, even a cliffhanger at the end!" Analogy's where the mouse broth comes in. Carlson used it in a recent lecture to explain the differing philosophical positions of scientific reductionists and holists who, respectively, say any matter can and cannot be torn apart and put back together. "If one were to imagine putting a mouse in a blender, what would you get?" said Carlson opening his reductionist/holistic discussion. "Mouse broth? Could you put the mouse components back together and get a self-assembled mouse?"

Professor Honored

Alan Ross, professor of Psychology at Stony Brook, was honored by the American Psychological Association at their 88th Annual Convention held recently in Montreal.

Ross, director of the Clinical Psychology Training Program at Stony Brook, received the Distinguished Professional Contribution Award in Clinical Child Psychology. In his acceptance address, Ross emphasized the importance of research on behavioral disorders of children, pointing out that such research must satisfy not only the needs of the scientist for significant data, but also the needs of the clinician for information of clinical relevance.

A Yale graduate in clinical psychology, Ross has worked extensively with children, mainly in clinical settings. A nationally recognized authority on learning disorders, he is the author of several books on the subject, including Learning Disability - The Unrealized Potential (1977).

The annual convention of the American Psychological Association provides psychologists a forum for presenting scientific and scholarly work as well as exchanging information and experience relating to the application of psychology.

Public Safety Officer Assaulted

By Nancy J. Hyman

A Shirley man was arrested after he allegedly punched one Department of Public Safety Officer in the chest and threatened two others with a four-foot-long car jack early Saturday morning.

Julio Aguilar was asked to move his car, which was parked near the Benedict College Day Care Center, by Public Safety officers at about 4 AM Saturday. He then got into his car and drove rapidly towards the officers' car, according to Public Safety reports. Officer Edward Cooney then asked for Aguilar's license and registration after which Aguilar opened his trunk and produced a car jack.

According to the police reports, Aguilar approached officers Herbert Petty and Stephen Varga holding the car jack in both hands. He started to wave the jack in the air stating, "I'm going to kill them." Aguilar then resisted arrest by swinging out his arms. He kicked, and eventually punched Cooney in the chest with his closed fist, Public Safety reports said.

Aguilar was arrested and charged with Resisting Arrest, Harassment, and Menacing.

Auto Overtakes

An automobile accident left a car overturned in a gully near the Graduate Biology Building off of South Loop Road Saturday night.

Michael Lally, 18, was driving his car on South Loop Road between 9 and 10 PM Saturday when it skidded on the wet pavement causing it to turn completely around, the Department of Public Safety reported. Lally's car then hit the curb sideways and overturned, ending up on its roof. Lally, who is a Stony Brook student, was not injured in the accident.

Ambulance Corps; Top Priority

Although the Stony Brook Volunteer Ambulance Corps is in service at this time, it is uncertain as to where future funding for the Corps will come from. The Corps is currently operating on an initial allocation from Polity, an allocation which was predicted to last about 45 days. They are now in the third week of operation from that allocation.

We feel that the Ambulance Corps should be number one on SUNY Central's list of concerns. The Corps is such an important asset and service to the campus community that it seems ridiculous to omit it from any type of budget, or to even consider to do so.

While it is true that the Stony Brook campus community can be served by ambulance corps from the neighboring towns of Setauket and Stony Brook, the convenience of having our own campus ambulance corps is immeasurable. In a medical emergency, delays in response time can mean the difference between life and death.

We understand that, in order for the Stony Brook Volunteer Ambulance Corps to operate, it needs funding. We can also see the problem in having Polity foot the entire bill. Somehow, such financial woes must be overcome so that such an important asset to the campus community can continue.

LETTERS

Cosmopolitan University?

To the Editor:
This is a letter to call your attention about a most peculiar situation that has arisen at Stage XII D, third floor. The story is the following: after posting a couple of signs announcing it, a female bathroom, currently used by about 20 females, was changed to be a men's bathroom.

The reasons why this decision seems unwise and irregular are:
• The hall is predominantly female (90 percent) and the immediate rooms closer to the bathroom are all occupied by females.

• The decision was taken without any consideration, poll or consultation to the users, whose opinions were completely ignored.

• The decision was made in the middle of the semester, over the past weekend holiday, when many residents were off of campus.

The reason why I choose to call your attention to this is not only on behalf of the users of this particular bathroom, but because the bathroom incident reflects the authoritarian way decisions are made, and furthermore, it also reflects the actual impoverished living conditions in the hall, whose residents, mostly foreign, in this particular case happen to be third world foreign students or non white females.

One could expect, however, that a cosmopolitan university such as this, which prides itself on being an international academic community, would provide adequate facilities. A place to go to the bathroom, for instance, would seem a minor, yet fundamental one.

Inaccurate Words

To the Editor:
The lead editorial for October 3 suggests that the SUSB Senate might have "obtained some student opinion first, before acting." The editorial implies that a) the SUSB Senate is "the administration," b) the SUSB Senate does not involve students and c) students hadn't an ample opportunity to inform one another of this pending legislation. None of these three implications is correct.

I suggest that Statesman address itself to student members of the SUSB Senate and ask that they be more vocal and more informative representatives, if that is a problem. Or, Statesman might complain about "faculty" action, since faculty members outnumber all other groups on the SUSB Senate.

Public information is not well served when Statesman, whose writers and editors should and usually know better, fall into the careless use of inaccurate portmanteau words. "Administration" is certainly one of these. Statesman can help increase accountability and consultation by pointing the finger accurately and specifically when the occasion warrants it.

Phils Beat Royals Lead Series 3-2

Mike Schmidt powered a two-run homer, then triggered a ninth-inning Philadelphia rally with a single as the Phillies, true to their postseason form, came from behind for a 4-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals in yesterday's pivotal fifth World Series game. The victory, after two straight losses, sent the Phillies home for Tuesday night's sixth game with a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven game Series. They will bid for their first World Championship with ace Steve Carlton facing Kansas City's Rich Gale.

It was another case of a late-inning effort for the Phillies, a Comeback Gang throughout the National League playoffs and first two contests in the 1980 Series. But the Phillies had to survive a serious ninth-inning scoring threat by the Royals.

Weather Observatory)

Summary:

The storm which generated rain this weekend will anchor itself north of New England funneling in a steady supply of cool autumn air for us during the present forecasting period. However, as far as the drought is concerned, little relief is in sight. The best we can look forward to is some clouds and possibly a light shower over the period resulting from a series of minor upper level disturbances passing through the area.

The southwest will be characterized by dry stagnant air gradually increasing the level of smog for many cities in that region. Elsewhere, a storm beginning to gain strength in the northern Rockies may be our next weather maker. However, it remains to be seen exactly what effect this system will have upon our weather.

Today: Any morning clouds giving way to partial sunshine, breezy and crisp. Highs 53-58.

Tonight: Becoming partly cloudy with the chance of a brief shower, breezy and quite cool. Lows 34-39.

Tuesday: Varying amounts of clouds and sunshine with an afternoon sprinkle possible, remaining breezy and cool. High in the mid 50s.

Wednesday: Partly sunny, not as cool Highs near 60.

Pats Play Poorly

By Frank J. Estrada

The Stony Brook Patriots Soccer Team visited Kings Point Saturday morning to play the United States Merchant Marine Academy Mariners. They returned home with the second loss of the season added to their record, and now stand at 7 wins, 2 losses, and 1 tie.

The final score was 1-0, but the game was not as close as the score reflects. The match should have ended 5-0 against the Patriots as they displayed their worst performance of the season. Perhaps the Pats could not handle two road games in three days. Perhaps they couldn't handle the pressure of keeping up a great season record. Perhaps they couldn't handle a good game the morning following an Octoberfest night. Whatever the reason, they lost the game and lessened their chances for regaining their Metropolitan Intercollegiate Soccer Conference crown.

The Stony Brook defense kept up its usual high caliber of play as it coped with plenty of pressure from the Academy's offensive attacks. The Brook has an excellent department of defense but defense alone will not win games, a team also must be able to score goals. Having only three shots on goal in the entire game shows how dismal the Patriot attack force was.

"We lacked running and communication," said midfielder Caesar Campbell. Patriot coach Chris Tyson said, "we have to reorganize ourselves again because we didn't play up to our capabilities." To summarize the reason for the loss, forward Jabez Grant won the award with "Everybody has a bad day sometimes."

The Patriots will be breathing fire tomorrow at 2 PM on the Stony Brook soccer field as they host the Southampton Colonials. If Stony Brook beats Southampton by three goals or more, the Patriots will automatically become the Suffolk Cup champions. Two weeks ago, Stony Brook beat the Colonials at Southampton 3-1.

Women's Tennis Bounces Back

By Steven Weinstein and Ira Penzner

Coming off two consecutive shut-out losses, the Stony Brook Women's Tennis team bounced back and went on to defeat Wagner College by the score of 5-2 Friday.

"This was the best match of the year," stated a very pleased coach Tom Fahner. Six of the matches went to three sets and all the girls looked really good out there. All the work they put in is beginning to pay off."

The match did not start very well as top seed Mary Ann Ryan lost in a tiebreaker to Wagner's Karen Ragucci, 6-4, 2-6, 7-6. Ryan played well and showed no effects of the ankle injury she sustained earlier in the week.

The Patriots' number two player, Diana Merlino, defeated her opponent, Linda Attigrani, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2, while Candace Farrel set back Wagner's Joanne Moore, 6-2, 7-5. Stony Brook's fourth seed, Lisa Roth, had a tough match with Diana Lagomarsino, but she came out victorious, winning 7-5, 7-5. Terry Delgado of Wagner faced Roni Epstein in the fifth match of the day, but she was nipped by Epstein, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1.

In the final singles match, Patriot Cathy Wong battled back to beat Carol Casini, 5-7, 6-2, 6-1 to clinch the victory for Stony Brook.

In the doubles matches, Ryan and Farrel defeated Attigrani and Moore, 3-6, 6-0, 6-0, while the team of Merlino and Roth lost 3-6, 6-1, 6-4 to Ragucci and Lagomarsino. The final doubles match was cancelled due to darkness.

This win ensures the Patriots of a winning season, as they enter their final match of the regular season today against Fordham University, with a record of 6-4.

S.B. Tops Siena 30-7

By Lenn Robbins

It doesn't matter if you're a singer, a lawyer, an artist or an athlete, recognition is hard to attain. Some people strive and strive for a goal and even succeed without attaining recognition. Still others perform marvelous feats, discover monumental inventions and not until long after death do they attain recognition.

The Stony Brook Football Club has a record of 4-1, their best since 1975 — the last and only time the Patriots made the playoffs in their seven year history. According to last week's National College Football Association rankings, this University has the number four ranked team in the nation, and that was before Saturday's 30-7 crushing of a very emotional Siena College squad. Still, the Patriots find themselves thirsting for recognition.

"We all have the same purpose," explained linebacker Geronimo Morales. "Stony Brook football is on the rise. We had a good year last year [7-2], and we're having a good year this year. Right now we want to gain some recognition."

If the Patriots haven't gotten the school, state and national recognition they feel they deserve, they certainly have gotten Siena's, a team that came with a purpose of its own. Two weeks ago Frank Bice, one of the Siena tri-captain's, fractured a vertebra during a game and is now paralyzed from the chest down.

"We knew they would be a little more up for this game," admitted captain Brian Fabricant. "They wanted the game for their friend but we wanted it for us. We've gotten no recognition and if we're going to, we have to win every one of our remaining games."

This week, the Patriots will play Manhattan College, the number two ranked team in the nation. A victory would virtually assure Stony Brook of a trip to the playoffs and a chance to play for the national title. It would certainly help the Patriots achieve a name for themselves.

Mitigating Circumstances

By Raymond Stallone

Based on its performance level, the football club of Siena College was apparently incapable of seriously challenging the Patriots last Saturday afternoon.

Siena had not played since October 4, when the team's all-American safety, Frank Bice, was seriously injured while tackling a ballcarrier from St. John Fisher. Bice, of Manhasset, suffered a fractured vertebra and is completely paralyzed from the chest down. Doctors at Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester, where Bice is convalescing, are not optimistic that he can ever regain movement in his legs and trunk.

"We were prepared to play football today," said Siena's split end Luke Lucarelli, following Stony Brook's resounding 30-7 victory. "Frank's injury had nothing to do with our performance. We simply had trouble handling Stony Brook's defense."

Intent on securing a big lead early in the contest in order to prevent any last-minute dramatics, the Patriots' highly regarded defense forced a fumble, interception and blocked punt, setting up three first period touchdowns.

"They weren't that strong on offense," said Patriots free safety Brian Fabricant, who picked off an errant pass for the second time this season, but was denied in his bid to become the first defensive back to return an interception for a touchdown. "Siena did not come out hitting and they seemed to lack intensity."

Lucarelli confirmed Fabricant's assertion that Siena did not approach the contest with an enthusiastic charge. "We were not fired up in the first half and Stony Brook is too good a team to allow them a 27-0 lead," Lucarelli said. "We realized that they were not ready in the first quarter and we just took it to them," Fabricant said. "This is football and you cannot let up."

Ahead by 27 points early in the first half, Patriots head coach Fred Kemp unloaded his bench by substituting liberally over the remainder of the game. Unfortunately, Kemp was forced to replace some of his most skilled players due to a wave of injuries.

Quarterback Jim McTigue went down with a twisted ankle in the second period, while split end Terry Russell and defensive back Geronimo Morales both suffered painful knee injuries. All of them vowed to be ready for the Manhattan College showdown this Saturday.

"It's the biggest game of the year," McTigue stated, "I'll be there."

"With four straight wins, we are starting to roll," Morales said. "We'll be ready for Manhattan."

Meanwhile, the Siena club, which has dedicated the remainder of the football campaign to their injured defensive captain, will quietly finish out the season whether they are ready or not.

DEFENSIVE END ED HOCTER (No. 43) controlling Siena's offense.
