Stand With The Finest

In Stony Brook's Early History It Was Mandated By The Late Governor Nelson Rockefeller And The Board Of Regents, That This Institution 'Stand With The Finest In The Country.' Thirty Years Ago, Since The University Moved From Its Original Location In Oyster Bay, The School Grew And Prospered To Do Exactly What It Was Intended To Do.

The 1992 Specula Reflects Stony Brook's Goals And Records The Past Year's Events And Sights. The University At Stony Brook Is Known To Have Faculty That 'Stand With The Finest.' While Attending Stony Brook We Also Found That Our Sports, Academics And Students 'Stand With The Finest.' But Most Importantly, During Our Years At Stony Brook We Have Found Our Friends, Friends Who 'Stand With The Finest.'

Homecoming

You know it's autumn when you feel an uncontrollable urge to come back to Stony Brook and catch up with old classmates, haunt your favorite spots, cheer on the Patriots, run for scholarships, and party, party, party. "Nostalgia" is the password when the Stony Brook Alumni Association invites you to attend Homecoming, October 16-20, 1991.

Plan to arrive early on Saturday to register. Then you can be on hand when we present awards to the outstanding professor and distinguished alumnus at a special ceremony. You'll probably want to stay for brunch—we've invited the parents of our future alumni, too. We've also planned two informative workshops: Packaging the Resume and a career-planning session. For more information and to register, contact the college secretary at (516) 338-2222. Meet with your advisor to discuss your plans.

Groups show off their insignias in the Banner Competition.

Under The Big Top

Homecoming 1991 was a day of victory for the Patriots and all of us here at Stony Brook. This year's theme was "Under The Big Top"; with a carnival atmosphere Stony Brook drew it's largest Homecoming crowd in its history: 1,684 students, alumni, and guests filled the stands with enough spirit to help carry the Patriots to a 14-6 victory over Wesley.

The game itself was only part of the day ahead at Stony Brook. The street was filled with crafts and games for everyone to enjoy. Before the game the Stony Brook Spirit Parade helped to put the day in motion. This was the longest homecoming parade ever remembered at Stony Brook.

"This was my first Stony Brook Homecoming and I was very impressed. It helped to convince me that Stony Brook has the spirit I'm looking for." - Jennifer Ballard, Freshman

OF DUTY

If You Want To Stand With The Finest . . .

Stand In Line!

For years we have done it. We studied, taken tests and written papers, but going to Stony Brook really means waiting on line. From Admin to the bus to waiting for a laser printer we all share one thing in common, that is waiting on line. It always seemed like no matter when you got there, there it was, the snaking row that had the speed of an ice-age glacier. Where ever you happen to tread it followed you like your shadow. Even in the morning sometimes you had to wait for a shower. As the years went by the lines just grew. Remember the morning to obtain those precious extra graduation tickets? Not only was it long, but unruly and unorganized. The office of Conferences and Special Events gave us the epitome of what it was like going to Stony Brook. Hardship to obtain what we wanted, but after it was over it seemed all worth it.

Gaining Momentum

Drives Continue Without Protest

April 8, 1992. After several attempts, Stony Brook managed to hold a blood drive without protests from various groups. Protests were held the last two years due to the FDA's discriminatory policy of not accepting blood from people with sub-Saharan descent.

However, the protests took its toll on this drive. According to the director of Long Island Blood Services, they were only able to collect a few hundred pints of blood at best. Stony Brook, usually a stronghold for blood donations, looks to donate close to 1,000 pints. The momentum of the drive was affected and it may take a few more drives to build up the donations again. Many people did not know of the drive due to the lack of support it received in the organizational aspect.

Food!?!

ARA In DAKA Out

In the summer of 1991 DAKA's contract expired with the university. ARA took over and received mixed reviews. In the beginning they showed their best and their food reflected it. But as with DAKA, as the time dragged on so did the quality of their food.

Another addition to the new contractor came along a new meal plan. This integrated meals with declining balance and provided flexibility. Still there were several people who did not budget their money efficiently and had hundreds of dollars to spend in the last couple of weeks before the end of school.

Ghosts And Goblins

Halloween Terrorizes Stony Brook

Various programs took place across campus on Halloween this year. "Terror in Toscanini" was one such program given by an RA in Toscanini College, Christine Herde. This program consisted of three back to back horror movies in the study lounge.

The day itself was filled with fun loving students "dressed to kill" (literally that is). The campus was a myriad of ghosts and ghouls all out to trick and treat. Being that Halloween was a Thursday night many off campus clubs held Halloween bashes that were attended by many Stony Brook students.

Bridge Opens After Long Wait

EOB Reopens

Thursday, November 6, 1991. The End Of The Bridge Restaurant opened its doors for the first Thursday night this fall semester. Since the new food service Automated Retailers of America (ARA) succeeded DAKA, the popular Stony Brook night spot could not serve alcohol until this anticipated night. ARA waited for months to get their permit, and in the meantime the whole entire campus had a dry bar.

Many neighboring night spots flourished with the closing of the Bridge, like the new Spanky's, Carrington's and the Park Bench. The Student Activities Board, took action and provided free shuttle busses (dubbed the 34-7 Express) to and from many stores, bars and clubs. SAB wanted to reduce the inevitable increase of driving under the influence of alcohol by offering this service.

Many people filled the bar and danced to tunes spun by DJ Ross. Not too many things have changed, but they were strict on the number of people let into the bar. A maximum number of about 300 persons were let in at one time. When there were more, they had to wait until someone came out. Also prices from the previous year changed. The students were faced with $5 pitchers, $1.50 taps plus a $2 cover.

Many things have changed, including the Bridge's name to Eddie O'Brians (part of the time).

Gloribel, with drink in hand, struts her stuff on the first night at the Bridge.

The EOB was filled with good times and memories that were shared among friends.

Providing the entertainment was DJ Ross.

Norman Goodman

Salt and pepper flavored tobacco was smoking from his Captains pipe and out of his mouth as he rested his bearded face on his hand. Norman Goodman was sitting behind his desk and working on his newest book in his office in the S/BS building. When you first see him he looks like a stereotypical professor, but really is more than that. He teaches sociology courses specializing in marriage and relationships, but what makes him stand out as a professor is his involvement with the University community.

Prof. Goodman leads a very busy life. During the interview he was interrupted a couple of times on the due to other business he had to take care of. After he got off the phone and we continued our discussion he has stated some of his philosophies on education and the Stony Brook education specifically. He believes in an 'active education' for a student where he tries to combine his lectures by raising topics, encouraging questions and letting each other talk to one another in a class discussion. Just listening to a professor speaks is an easy way for a student to lose touch with class and therefore like to try to get a question and answer discussion going. However, due to the general slide of economics, he feels that an effect of this is a changing class body. When he first started teaching he remembers an argument with a fellow professor how bad it would be to let the class sizes increase to 35 from 30 students. Now he finds himself in the situation teaching 15 times as many students. "Large classes are the product of the economics of higher education in all universities," states Prof. Goodman. Even though this is the case, Prof. Goodman tries to get to know the students in his classes and out side his classes. He is a Faculty Master in O'Neill College where he has office hours and tries to get to know some of the students. Most people do not get to meet a professor in such an informal setting. He also tries to get to as many residential programs and building legislative meetings as he can. He states, "By and large the students and faculty do not take advantage of each other. The University experience is more than what most people make of it. They should engage in some sort of common activity outside the classrooms, whatever it may be."

Some of the things that Prof. Goodman may be seen going to is the University Senate where he is a member, his committee meetings for the search of the Dean of Physical Education and committee for Division I athletics. In the summers he may be working with New Student Programs as a General Faculty Advisor. Next year, however, he plans to go on sabbatical and work on his book. He plans to continue to smoke his pipe which was a gift from students back at O'Neill College where his involvement makes him far from being a stereotypical professor.

He has the titles of Assistant Director of the Stony Brook Union for Media Services, General Manager of WUSB radio and instructor in the Theater Department, but anyone and everyone calls him 'Norm.' As a graduate of Stony Brook Undergrad in 1973 has been an integral part in the founding of WUSB-FM. Back then WUSB was an AM station and by 1977 it was converted into FM. He has always worked for the Stony Brook media in one way or another and says, "When students are dedicated to the media it is really exciting." Being closely involved with the student media has made Norm very active with the students and the outside community. He is Chairperson of the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System, a member Alumni Association Board of Directors and oversees the Stony Brook Chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists. Whenever he is talking he finds his role as being a representative for Stony Brook and enjoys talking up Stony Brook. For a 'science and math school' he feels that the media has not suffered at all and actually flourishes due to the involvement of the dedicated students that run the papers, radio and hopefully the TV station.

The TV station has been always trying to get a start since cable TV was installed in the rooms. This is one of the major projects Norm is hoping to see get off the ground. Funding is a major problem as with everything. His other major project has been in the workings for years now. What he is working on deals with putting up a new, more powerful transformer for WUSB. This has created many legal dealings and red tape he has to deal with. The transformer would create much more exposure for WUSB and Stony Brook and maybe get more people involved in one way or another. Norm stresses that students need a little bit more initiative and need to find a mix of academics and extracurricular activities. Since he was an undergraduate here he enjoyed working and learning as a student, now he enjoys helping and watching students work and produce the finished product may it be in print or on the airwaves.

Jack Kreiselman

Artist-in-Residence, Jack Kreiselman, directs the University wind Ensemble and Orchestra. He has played his clarinet all over the world including the NY Philharmonic, Stuttgart Ballet, BBC Symphony, Bolshoi Ballet and Metropolitan Opera. He has an impressive international experience that he brings to Stony Brook.

Mr. Kreiselman conducts the Wind Ensemble and Orchestra. He has opened the groups to the faculty and community as well as the students. He feels, "it brings better quality musicians together." Because he is a very laid back conductor and the time requirements are not too much, he feels his program is advantageous for people who want to keep playing and cannot give up all the time of a heavy commitment. Mr. Kreiselman is very down to earth even though he is the man with the baton. The people who know him and work with him called him 'Jack' as soon as they met him. Despite his easy going nature, he still seems to make his groups perform to their potential. The man with the baton knows his duties and takes control. However, he often steps to the wings in order to let another conductor guest conduct his group. In one concert there may be as many as three different conductors. His philosophy to this is it gives the conductors to show their stuff to an accomplished group.

His participating in the program, 'Music Maestro Please', has allowed talented high school students to participate in his groups, letting just another dimension enjoy and expand their love for music.

Prof. Joseph Lauher

Professor Joseph Lauher of the Chemistry Department is one of the most dynamic and popular professors on campus. Many students first experiences with Prof. Lauher is in the introductory chemistry class, CHE 131. Unfortunately, for many, this was many students first college exam ever. Four years ago students scored in the 30's (out of 100), but still received a C. After that exam the students were finally introduced to college academics. You could say that Prof. Lauher taught many students how to actually become a college student. The averages of the tests rose, people recovered and after their experiences over, Prof. Lauher can easily be termed as one of the best teachers a student could have.

Energetic may be one adjective to describe Prof. Lauher's teaching technique. To get the students attention for Halloween, traditionally Prof. Lauher dressed and stripped his street clothes to reveal his costume.

Prof. Lauher is currently researching crystallography and is a member of Sigma Chi Beta fraternity. He can be seen often in the Student Union socializing with students, a trait that fits Prof. Lauher perfectly.

Dr. David Burner

Dr. David Burner of the History department has been at Stony Brook for 25 years. He says he likes all students, it has been a very rare occasion for him to dislike a student, and I think most of his students feel the same about him. Among other courses, Dr. Burner teaches History 107, America in the 60's. A popular course, it is also a very controversial course which has the potential to offend just about anyone, yet Dr. Burner presents it such that it is understood and most commonly, not taken offensively. His teaching style might differ from other professors due to the fact he has physically taught more than one course at one time using multimedia to aid his lessons. Students are attracted to his courses for the reason stated above and also because when they enter his class they have the confidence that they can perform well. Dr. Burner is currently writing a book for Howard Press and his experiences in the 1960's have influenced his decision to teach such a class.

Howard Sussman

A 'Scholar in Med,' Howard Sussman has been very happy with his college career. The Valedictorian of Levittown's MacAurthur High School was accepted into the Stony Brook School of Medicine, via the Scholars of Med program, at the end of his sophomore year. This allowed him to get, "a license to spread myself thin."

Mr. Sussman has a list of honors to rival anyone. He was President and Vice-President of the Pre-Med honor society, AED, a Sigma Beta member, Phi Beta Kappa, Golden Key Senior Scholar Award winner and conducted genetics research for two years under the guidance of Dr. J. Peter Gergen. Even though it seems academics is the only thing that Mr. Sussman is about, after getting to know him he is much more than one-dimensional.

There are two more dimensions that Mr. Sussman stated he was very proud of. In order of appearance in his life, they are his music and his fiancée, Sherry Nathan. "I am leading two separate lives," states Mr. Sussman, referring to his music on the weekends. He plays piano professionally for a wedding band. So when the weekends come, he get "decked up in his tux and doesn't care about his genetics test." When the week resumes, on the other hand, he goes into his academic mode. During his membership in AED is when he met his soon to be wife Sherry Nathan (SB '91, SB MED '95.) They are both going to Stony Brook Med School, but are one year apart and have conflicting academic schedules. They are going to squeeze their wedding and honeymoon during the spring break 1993.

Mr. Sussman came to Stony Brook over Cornell mainly because of geography and economics. He states, "academically I made the most out of Stony Brook . . . the things I am most proud of are academics, music and Sherry." In no particular order, these three things make Howard Sussman a truly three-dimensional person.

Otto Strong

He's the tall guy who is seen when anything newsworthy is happening on campus. And no he doesn't play basketball. He wrote for Stony Brook's 'Statesman' and decided it was time for him to create 'USB Weekly.' "[Otto Strong] is an example of somebody that has an idea and does it and not just thinks about it," declares Media Advisor Norm Prusslin.

His brain child, 'USB Weekly', started in an empty dorm room with the help of Liam McGrath and a few others from the Statesman staff. It was more than just an idea, it became Mr. Strong's obsession. Countless hours were put into making the first issue and it took weeks before it actually hit the presses. Mr. Strong had to become somewhat a personality and politician to get the funding needed to get a paper created. By the end of his Junior year his fantasy became reality, USB Weekly was born.

As the next year rolled around he was face with similar problems and funding. An empty dorm room also was not good enough to hold all the equipment and computers they did not have. Again Mr. Strong found ways to hold his baby over water. A couple of issues churned out and the paper finally got an office, even though it was in the dungeon of Central Hall. He managed to scrape up enough money to rent a computer, build a darkroom and write a few more of his famous 'Funny Bone' Articles. But just as things began to roll it was time to graduate and look for a school and/or job.

After the nerve racking admissions procedure and waiting period, Mr. Strong was accepted into one of the best journalism programs in the country, Columbia School of Journalism. He decided to turn the acceptance down after landing a job with the Los Angeles Times.

8:30 AM shadows

With a cigarette hanging from his mouth and with the looks of his unshaven face is a person who stayed over the Christmas break, while everyone went on vacation, to watch and run the radio station, WUSB. One of the busiest people on campus was WUSB's Programming Director, Hal Freidet. To get a feeling of what he is about all one had to do was call up his room in Whitman. Due to his activities he seemed never home while his answering machine rattled off directions to the people involved in the groups he managed.

In the past year Mr. Freidet put in up to 60-90 hours a week just on running the radio station, and in his spare time was Whitman's Legislative treasurer, The President (Admiral) of the now traditional Roth Quad Regatta, organized the Committee on Cinematic Arts (COCA), worked with the Division of Campus Residences, was an Orientation Leader and Supervisor of the Residential Security Staff. When asked how he managed he simply stated, "It's rough." When he came to Stony Brook he wanted to get involved with as many aspects as possible. Because of his desire to stretch his schedule out his only free time was at night and once every two weeks he would spend his night doing his own Heavy Metal radio show, "Hard and Heavy Hal." In addition to his radio show and programming duties he is trying to produce a compact disc indicative to the music WUSB plays, from new and somewhat local bands.

He has grown to love Stony Brook very much, but states he, "is sorry to see the academics/programs going down hill due to the budget cuts." Mr. Freidet will continue to work with WUSB until he can land a job somewhere at a radio station that can afford to pay him.

"In this dog eat dog world of ours we've all have been a bunch of wieners for long enough. It's time for us to become Hot Dog," Hal Freidet's view on life.

Hal Freidet

A typical class except everyone is awake.

The line(?) is for extra graduation tickets. How this system needs to be changed!

Dan Slepian

Well how many other things could be written, printed or said about the man who will be the subject of this essay? Dan Slepian, if you did not know, probably is best known for his involvement with Polity, the undergraduate organization that is in control of $1.2 million dollars of activity fee money.

Mr. Slepian, Dan or as his first posters for Freshmen Representative read 'Dan Slepian' started his illustrious career as an import from White Plains and grew up in the hall of James D-1. His Polity work always gotten in the way of intramurals where he was a McDowell Cup winner as a member of the James D-1 Mad Dogs. Some of his best memories involved things not dealing with Polity like hanging out with the boys playing basketball and an occasional water fight which flooded the whole hall.

Being elected Vice-President for his sophomore was the building block to becoming the youngest Polity President in Stony Brook's history. His last two years were spent as President of Polity. Some of Mr. Slepian's projects included installing 'Blue light phones' in South-P, choosing the new dining service, hosting the radio show 'Polity Perspectives', and during his Junior year was the official coverboy for Stony Brook's 'Statesman'.

After graduation Mr. Slepian is pursuing a career in broadcast journalism and just landed a job with NBC television.

Todd Stephens Christine Herde

Todd Stephens graduated from Stony Brook in May. Along with his classes, Todd has many various commitments on campus. His life at Stony Brook has been anything but boring. Todd was a representative for both the United States Student Association (USSA) and the Student Association of State Universities (SASU). His most important job in either these position is to represent Stony Brook students at the important organizational meetings. Todd has seen many changes at Stony Brook over his four years here. He says some of the changes have been good, others have been bad. For all but one semester and one summer Todd has been a Resident Assistant in Tabler Quad. His position, he feels, has allowed him enormous potential for synthesis. Todd's advice to incoming Freshmen is, "don't get too drunk, don't go to too many parties and don't fall in love with the first person who treats you nicely . . . a kind word and an invitation doesn't mean they are it."

"Goodbye Stony Brook . . . I was a much different person than a lot of people probably thought I was."

-By Jennifer Ballard

Christine Herde is another graduating Senior, but not a typical pre-med student living her life at HSC. Christine was a fifth year Biochemistry major who spent her fourth year of school in the National Student Exchange Program (NSE) in Alaska. Christine's experience in Alaska has enhanced not only her career at Stony Brook, but her life as well. She spent an entire year seeing things she'd never seen and doing things she'd never done. Her parents were against her going, but she feels it was one of the smartest decisions she has ever made. She went winter camping, woke up to moose on the campus and made friends from all over the country. Along with her involvement, Christine was also a Resident Assistant for seven semesters. This position was a plus for her in many ways. It opened up her social life and helped her make a lot of friends.

Her involvement has helped her in her quest to attend medical school. Stony Brook was a challenge, but she met it head on and she knows it pays off. As with life, Christine knows you get out of Stony Brook what you put into it.

For all those students who are just starting out at Stony Brook, and for those who realize that they need to start again, here's some conventional wisdom to follow in identifying your classmates.

Bookstore

One book out of 57 that is on a freshman "suggested" reading list is not in stock at the bookstore. Believing he will flunk the semester, he contemplates jumping off the SBS building to escape cheating his family.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

Meals

Freshmen attend all meals. They take two bites then decide to desegregate the four food groups, creating dishes such as Devil's Food Cake Ravioli and Mashed Potatoes a la Mode. Sophomores, who are always hungry, eat everything on their plate. They also eat freshmen culinary specialties upon dares for spare cash. Juniors, on the otherhand

Class sizes becoming too large for learning

Education suffers; fire safety codes ignored

By Jed Kliman

The scene is all too familiar to many Stony Brook students — a hot and stuffy classroom packed with students, some of them sitting on the floor against the wall, or on the stairs in the aisle, sweating or crowding this semester.

But Douglas gave several reasons for the seeming increase in overcrowded classrooms. One factor, said Douglas, is the university-wide hiring freeze that has limited the number of adjunct professors

Kelvin Torve. Does this time ring a bell? It really shouldn't. He was the 25th man on the Mets' roster for a great deal of this season.

When major league owners reached an informal agreement to cut rosters to 24 men, I wasn't too hot on the idea. But, after reassessing the situation, I've come to realize that the 25th man usually has no business being in the majors. This situation is as the National League is adding two more teams.

Who Wants the Polity Headache?

DON'T ALLOW THIS MAN'S Ignorance to Misdemean You," reads a flyer plastered around campus last week. The filth depicts Polity presidential candidate Richard Cole as Adolf Hitler. And we wonder why more students don't get involved in Polity.

David Joachim

As Polity complains about apathy and ignorance and all that other rhetoric, it continues to promote this kind of mudslinging and hatred.

CAMPUS VOICES

By Brian King

Question of the Week:

What is the most useless thing you've learned this year?

Goodbye to Stony Bro

Of course there were some moments I'd much rather forget — times when I wished I never heard the word sportswriter. But luckily, there were more good episodes than bad and because of those good ones, I emerge from life at Stony Brook with my goals definitively intact.

SANDRA SAYS
Sandra B. Carreon

I don't think I can ever replicate what I have done here at Stony Brook — and this isn't to say I've done so much. I mean I don't think I could ever feel the same way towards my work with the people at my new school that I felt with Stony Brook and Statesman. The sports scene will certainly be different and I have already declined the opportunity to be the sports editor there.

I'll miss the treks to the sports complex, the smiling faces I meet along my path of people who recognize me from my column picture — that wonderful portion of my young life, I think. I'm accustomed to the temperature down here and especially to this chair of mine that actually touches the floor.

I'll miss the ROLM plays, a con-warded calls, the camped calls, their the discernible off or on. I'll miss the cathartic similarity in the form of Sedition every week, constrained as many assumed groupies. Most of all.

Special who was responsible. I'm convinced I deserve a lot of credit.

Together

By hanging in mid air, Jill Pessoni notches another of her 225 kills.

A young team with no seniors, took to the floors and disposed of opposing teams, like they played together for their whole lives. Led by Stasia Nikas, Jill Pessoni, Denise Rehor, Janna Kuhner, and Kristen Smith the Patriots posted an impressive 36-7 record while capturing four tournaments. They started out the season seemingly invincible stringing together 15 consecutive victories. As the season progressed, the team work just culminated as setter Denise Rehor stated, "Every time we get on the court we play more and more as a team."

Volleyball States And NCAA

By Lee Montes

Knee pads and bruises could be seen everywhere in the Indoor Sports Complex. For the first time the state championships were to be held in our new arena. Coach Tiso emphasized the importance of teamwork as they went into a weekend of intense competition. The Patriots dominated in the first day of play, not losing a single game. They continued their winning ways by sending Albany home early in straight sets. The next match against Hunter showed the team's perseverance and will to win. Cornered in a seemingly insurmountable deficit, they turned a 9-14 nightmare into an adrenaline producing 16-14 win. In their second state finals, as many years, the Patriots were denied a repeat due to a tough loss against RIT.

Soon after states, the Patriots trekked to RIT to compete in the NCAA regional tournament. Hard play and hard spikes propelled this determined team past their first opponent and set up a rematch of the state finals. The women from Stony Brook did exactly what Sara Helmer stated what they wanted to do, "We wanted to avenge our defeat." And that is what exactly what they did. A tough five set win against RIT thrust Stony Brook to the regional final against first-seeded University of California San Diego. The Patriots just missed the chance to go to the Final Four after being beaten by San Diego.

Sue Dimonda

Sue Dimonda is the Director of Stony Brook Intramurals and does her job with enthusiasm and dedication. She started four years ago when she came over from Hofstra. Her staff was made of eleven students and now is upwards toward 60. Her name 'Sue' is synonymous with the intramural program, but never refers to it as her program. She stresses that it is the staff's program and she is just there to overlook things and settle the little disputes. Her pride in her staff is very deep and runs a very organized and structured program. When she makes up the competition schedules she tries to be as flexible as possible by working around the students schedules and let the teams choose the days they cannot play. "People should realize it is a privilege to participate in the program," states Ms. Dimonda. Also it teaches a person responsibility. Ms. Dimonda's goal is to have a positive impact on someone life and have some fun.

The staff that she works with is comprised of mainly undergrad students. She takes a team philosophy for the staff and says to have fun. The team thinking is one reason the Intramural program has been so popular. It has made the staff rely on each other for support and cooperation. When she first started she remembers how for some days it was almost impossible to get an official to a game, now it is to the point where if one cannot make it someone is notified to fill in. In addition to teaching some responsibility it gives many an opportunity to find out about a prospective career. She noted a few students who obtained opportunities such as getting into an Adelphi Masters program due to the 'stepping stone' experiences in the Intramural program.

Expanding the program to include the community has been some projects Ms. Dimonda has accomplished. She has organized runs and fitness programs so everyone can participate. The Intramurals program she feels, "helps bridge the gap between students and the community." Also because she is so visible to the thousands of students that take advantage of her classes and Intramurals it lets students, "interact with a faculty member where they can't get any where else. [Students] are thrilled to death that someone cares."

Bill Zagger

Dan and Dave might have went to Barcelona for the summer olympics, but there was also Stony Brook's Bill Zagger. Pursuing a career with a network behind the scenes and maybe on TV Mr. Zagger went to Barcelona to help with the baseball statistical team. Receiving numerous honors and records at Stony Brook, Mr. Zagger took a realistic approach to sports and wants to keep involved through the media. Under his belt is the NCAA 100 yard punt return record and also the honor of being named the 'USA Today's' Division III player of the week. Under the coaching of Football Coach Kornhauser he did every thing in his power to help the team. He played defense, offense and on special teams as a punter, defensive back and center. And for Baseball Coach Matt Senk he was a solid all around player who could hit for average. Playing two sports and juggling a full time academic schedule was not easy for this multidiciplinary studies major, but he is looking forward to graduation.

A career in broadcasting is the main goal for Mr. Zagger. He had worked with Faith Daniels, the anchor for NBC's Today Show. Ms. Daniels has taught me a lot explains an enthusiastic Zagger.

His athletic ability could be traced way back from when he was a child. He recalls how his two older brothers used to beat him up and his mother used to play with him and help him out. "My brother Ricky was a big influence on me," says Mr. Zagger. Sitting in the sun Mr. Zagger spoke humbly about his accomplishments and strongly about his team accomplishments. When asked about the season, "How were YOU doing?" He immediately responded from the team's point of view. A team player is simply a term that can be easily be associated with Bill Zagger.

Strong Season With New Coach

By Lee Montes

Doubts flew among the women's tennis team in the beginning of the season. The team added new coach, Paul Dudzick, did many things in the sports realm including coaching a crew team, cross country, and being the athletic director, but he never coached a tennis team before. Dudzick, enthusiastic in the beginning of the season said this about his new team, "They know that I will help them in any way I can, but they know that I still have a few things to learn as well." And learn they did. From the first practice, the team learned that Dudzick was serious and dedicated. ". . . I had my doubts. However, my impression of him changed dramatically at the first practice. He made us work and he organized a routine that made me realize that he was a dedicated coach," commented Amy Silverman. This hard work seemed to produce a successful season with the team winning eight games against only one loss.

Leading the team overall was Perri Greenblatt, who won an impressive 14 games out of 16. She played singles and doubles many times to show her versatility. Continuing the team's success was Tanya Woelfle at first singles and Kristen Davis who, like Woelfle and Greenblatt, flipped-flopped and played both singles and doubles. Producing victories for the team seemed easy for Amy Silverman and Michelle Cunniffe. Each player won ten games each while only losing 4 and 1, respectively.

The Patriots closed out their season with six straight wins to end at 8-1. This well balanced team looks forward to next season to add to their winning tradition. They will lose the competitiveness of seniors Kristen Davis and Eileen Hoy. Dudzick explained that this season the

A crushing backhand was symbolic of the whole season in general. The Pats crushed their opponents and finished 8-1.

In their last home match, Tanya Woelfle and Eileen Hoy discuss some strategy before downing Hunter.

Youth Pushes Hard To Improve Season

They're Four Real

If You Look At The Stats They Couldn't Be Winners. How Can Any Team Have So Much Youth And Only One Senior And Expect To Be Competitive? Well The Patriots Have Done What Seems To Be Impossible On Paper. They Have Enjoyed A First Place Finish At The Public Athletic Conference. This Was No Easy Task, Considering They Had To Overcome The Previous Setbacks Of Coming In Fourth For The First Three Meets. Head Coach Steve Borbet Is Proud Of His Young Fine Team And Looks Forward To Next Season. They Will Bring Back Most Of Their Runners And Still Be Relatively Young.

Youth, Injuries Prevent Winning Season

By Lee Montes

Coach Sue Ryan knew what she had ahead of her when she came into the season with plenty of youth. It was going to be a year of rebuilding and gaining experience. What she did not foresee was some injuries that hampered part of the season. Near the end of the season Ryan had four starters on the sidelines. "We were not as deep as the beginning of the year," said Ryan. This still did not stop the whole team from playing as hard as it could.

The team was lead in almost all offensive categories by sophomore Sue Sheer. Sheer was helped out by assists leader Kara Lynn Wrieth. Much of the offensive pressure was also handed out by Denise LaViola. Even though the team only churned out four wins the final overall season cannot be judged by the wins and losses column alone. All the games were kept in reach thanks to some good defensive work by goal keepers Chris Foley and Lana Peterson. Their low goals against average would have not been possible without Mary Krieg, Heather Lavery or Kristen Palmisano, who led a very stingy defense.

Concentrating on the ball, Chris Cuggino pushes further upfield.

Pride And Determination Spearheaded Winning Season

The Patriots turned their whole season around, compared to their previous one. Injuries and more injuries stopped the Patriots from being successful. This season that all turned around. This young team learned from last year's ordeal to produce a winning record of 6-4.

Leading the team was a healthy Oliver Bridges, who led the team in scoring with 48 points. Bridges also continued his torrid running by breaking records he set two years ago. Quarterback Joe McVeigh led the offense in eight games as he constantly connected with Anthony Meola. Bill Zagger showed his versatility as a punt returner, receiver, and a few times passing, but Zagger shined on defense. Along with Scott Schuster they compiled an impressive nine interceptions.

Pride and determination helped the Pats go onto the field with confidence. Zagger stated, "By the end of the season we felt like we could win every game." The feeling throughout the locker room was a family atmosphere that carried out onto the field.

Eyeing the basket, Kim Douglas prepares to take the free-throw.

11-Cathy Hynes, 15-Tina Carew, 20-Kim Douglas, 21-Cathy Crean, 23-Diane Barry, 24-Lalena Heske, 25-Becky Aponty, 34-Erika Bascom, 40-Shannon Hunt, 42-Andrea Lee, 43-Jessica Arnold (C), 44-Joan Gandolf, 45-Danielle Dominick, 50-Donna Murphy, Head Coach Dec McMullen, Assts. John Horst, Shari Campbell.

The women's basketball team suffered a disappointing season, finishing at 10-15. Sophomore Joan Gandolf led the team in many categories including scoring, rebounds, minutes played and assists. Justice Arnold, a senior, missed some of the season due to an injury and therefore could not contribute to her full potential. Even though the team was on the losing end more than not, the team gained valuable playing experience and is looking for loftier goal next year. The team is bringing back twelve experienced players and nine were freshmen. According to Arnold, "We came together a little too late . . . but I think we did pretty good."

New Era

Luc Baptiste lays it in.

Breaking for position, Vernard Williams put on the moves.

Smith dishes the pill against Vassar.

The Patriots had high expectations coming off last season. They were seeded first for the state and received a bid to compete in the NCAA tournament, only to be defeated by the Yellow Jackets of RIT. However, then coach Joe Castiglie was under investigation by the NCAA and decided to graciously resign from his post. With the loss a couple of key players and getting new coach, Bernard Tomlin the Patriots were in a new era.

Coach Tomlin did an excellent job working with and earning the new players. Also the veterans had to get used to his style of coaching. Tomlin, although new to SB, was no stranger to basketball. He coached several college teams and the professional USBL team, the LI Surf.

Emeka Smith did his usual sparkling job, but usually at the face of double teams and swarming defenses. MVP Smith, who holds SB's career points record with 1,815, was known throughout the league and was always pressured. Michael Francis and Ricky Wardally saw much more playing time and picked up some of the slack, but something was missing as the team had an early exit in the ECAC Semi-finals.

Caught red handed. Wardally smudges his prints on the glass while Vassar can only be an eyewitness.

Campus Life Time Wednesday afternoon is starting to flourish with activities.

Student Union Activities' own Lou Coppertino blows 'Conquistador' for charity during CLT.

It's Tom Hammel is his 3rd home, the Humanities Building, Behind his own and Cardozo.

Some students use CLT as a time to relax and maybe find a shady spot to study.

Grad Fashions

On graduation day many thought that the graduates all looked alike. But when you took a closer look many had their own little ideas to spice up the traditional black garb. What ever was worn everyone seemed to have one basic accessory, a smile of success.

Breaking all traditions is this student with a bagel attached to her cap.

Even President Marburger couldn't escape the spring fashion trends by rapping his speech and showing his gold chains (the clock on his necklace is hidden by the podium.) Eat your heart out Flava Flav. Cap by Kangol.

The always fashionable Georgia Thomas displays her earrings for us.

Well The Year Has Ended And So Has The Yearbook. When I Took Over As Editor-In-Chief I Had No Staff, No Computers (Both Of Them Were Stolen Over The Breaks) And No Budget Due To The Free Spending Ways Of The Previous Editors (That Was No Joke.) Throughout The Summer Of 1991 I Worked To Find A Staff Among The Incoming Freshmen. By The Time Fall Rolled Around I Had A Staff, But No Money. I Cannot Thank Derron Lee Enough For All His Help In Restructuring Our Budget, Pushing The Badly Needed Referendum, Researching And Eventually Buying A Computer. Once Things Started To Get Rolling Our 'Official Photographers' Went Out Of Business During Winter Break Causing Havoc For Us, The Students And The Book. We Had To Deal With Lawyers, The Media And Worse, The Students. At That Point In Time The Whole Yearbook Was In Limbo And I Was Stressed Out. We Signed With Lorstan Studios, But The Damage Was Done And It Took Us A Few Months To Get Things In Synch. I Hope That This Will Never Happen To My Worst Enemy. But Things Always Will Work Out For The Best, I Always Tell Myself And Some How The Book Was Finished On Time. Other Than The BS, Putting Together The Book Was A Breeze And Hopefully You Enjoyed It.

Next To Thank is My Photography Editor, Andrea Anderson. Without Andrea Controlling The Photographers And Working Her Butt Off To Take Photos Herself This Book Would Be Full Of Blank Pages. I Don't Know How She Juggled Her Schedule, But The Only Way To Get In Touch With Her Was To Call Her At 3 O'clock In The Morning. I Just Wish She Will Have A Few People That Work As Hard As Her And Are Dedicated. To Laura Hollman, You're Really Cool And Really Helpful And I Appreciate All You Have Done To Get Things Done During The Year. I Wish I Was Coming Back Just So I Could Work With You Again. Jenn Ballard I Wish We Got To Work Together More, But Our Schedules Just Didn't Seem To Fit Just Right. However We Seemed To Get Things To Straighten Out Before It Was Too Late. Thanks For Your Understanding And Perseverance. Eva Pettersson You Never Complained, Did Your Best, Handed In Work That Looked Like It Was From Someone With Much More Experience Than You Said You Had, You Are Amazing. Thank You. To Brian Harkins, Cecil Hunter, John Byrns And Sara Nodjoumi Thanks For Taking All Those Pictures. To Wen-Kang Chang Thanks For Answering Our Phone And Taking All Those Messages. Jim Koschmerl Thanks For Hooking Up The Security System, Helping Me Move Those '91 Books And All Those Times You Fixed My Car. To The Rest Of The Staff Thanks For Everything, Every Little Bit Counted And Was Not Forgotten.

I Would Especially Like To Thank MaryAnn Deering, My High School Yearbook Advisor Who Taught Me To Strive To Produce A Professional Book. I Tried My Best And Frequently Was Inspired By The Enthusiasm And Dedication You Have Shown Me. Thank You.

To My Girlfriend, Teresa Howard, Thanks For Helping Me Through The Whole Year With Your Encouragement During The Low Times And Sharing The Good Times With Me. And Thank You For Just Being You.

Finally I Would Like To Thank My Brothers Michael And Nasser. Mike You Always Were My Inspiration Since I Was Young And Will Continue To Be. And Nasser I Don't Know Someone Else I Could Get To Put Stickers On Envelopes, You Don't Know What That Meant To The Book, Thanks For Being A Good Brother. And To My Mother, Who Was Always Proud Of Me And Has Done Everything In Her Power To Make My Life As Good As It Can Be, I Just Hope I Can Continue To Make You Proud Of Me.

Well I Guess This Is Goodbye Stony Brook, Columbia Dental Here I Come . . .

Yours Truly,
