HERE AT STONY BROOK - Monday, Feb. 13, 1984

Theme up and under...and out

Hi, everybody!

How many times have you listened to music and thought to yourself, "I'd like to write a piece"? Most of us have such a yearning. So does our guest today, John V. Klopotoski. The difference between John and us is that John has written music. We'll hear a bit of his new Symphony in three parts and talk with the composer.

Later in the program, we will talk about the growing role of women in government. Women in New York State occupy many <sup>of</sup> important positions, and many of these women have been trained at the W. Averell <sup>HARRIMAN</sup> College at the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

The composer who has written a symphony in three parts is a doctoral student at the State University of New York at Stony Brook. John Klopotoski is himself a musician and a performer. He <sup>teaches sax</sup> plays guitar <sup>of</sup> and sings ~~to~~ to earn a living ~~as~~ <sup>Jazz's</sup> ~~nightclub performer~~ ~~and~~ That's important music to John. So is classical music. John, ~~before~~ before we hear some of the symphony, let's talk a bit about you. Has music always been a part of your life?

MORE

This is the political season and candidates for president of the United States are all over the place. So far as I know, they are all males. Candidate Jesse Jackson has come out strongly for a woman on the Democratic ticket for vice president. In short, women are not prominent, to understate the situation, in national politics. But they are there, and the role of women is growing. Especially ~~at the college~~ are women taking on major positions in local, regional and state government. ~~The~~ The W. Averell Harriman College for Policy ~~Analysis and~~ Analysis and Public Management at the State University of New York at Stony Brook takes a special pride in the number of women who have graduated there and gone on to important positions in government. With us today are ~~the~~ <sup>three</sup> Harriman College representatives. Suzanne G. Rinaldo is ~~an~~ <sup>faculty member</sup> assistant professor at Harriman and is heading up a special program at Stony Brook called "Women in the Public Sector." Professor Rinaldo, will the ~~be~~ first woman President of the United States come out of the Harriman College program? ---Also here from Harriman today is Michelle McTernan, assistant to the dean, ~~at Harriman~~, Harry ~~Winters~~ <sup>Winters. Mrs.</sup> McTernan, you have the pleasure of helping keep track of Harriman graduates as they move into professional life. <sup>SUSIE KARNBACH-HUSSON-sub.</sup>
