03. Workshops/Courses/Training

1. Using the Internet for Historical Research

More and more valuable historical information can now be found on the internet, especially primary source material being digitized by libraries and research institutions around the world. This workshop will highlight some of the most interesting web sites and web tools, and discuss search methods to help you find quality historical information online. Learn about: history web sites, major digital and audio/visual collections, historic newspaper collections, Google Books and other online book collections, domain searches and other advanced searching, creating a Google custom search, and Wikipedia as a way of finding Online Resources. Wednesday, April 7 @ 2:00 PM held at SINC site in SBS (Social and Behavioral Sciences). Register @ <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

Submitted by: Yuet Tran/Lib

2. How to Use EBSCO Multiple Database Search

The library's new combined search system, Galaxy, allows you to search over 100 library resources simultaneously. Learn how to use Galaxy to quickly and effectively locate the information you need. In this workshop, you will: understand the power of Galaxy as a research and discovery tool, construct effective and productive searches in Galaxy, navigate from citations in Galaxy to the full-text available elsewhere, and email and print information from Galaxy. Monday, April 12 @ 12:30 PM. Register @ <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

Submitted by: Yuet Tran/Lib

3. Film Research

So you want to write about movies? We'll show you how interesting and wide-ranging film research really is. Learn the followings: find where the peer-reviewed articles on film are - and aren't, searching for films and scenes by image, sound and keyword, online film archives, finding reviews, organizations, schools and institutes, film buffs, film blogs, film nuts and number crunching, and what's a movie, anyway: TV, video and the internet. Tuesday, April 13 @ 1:00 PM. Register @ <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

Submitted by: Yuet Tran/Lib

4. Extra! Extra! Become an Expert at Finding New & Historic Newspaper Articles!

This session examines ways to find current and historical articles in newspapers. We'll look at newspapers available online through the library, what's on the web, and at hundreds of historic newspapers available on microfilm. In this workshop, you will: become familiar with the odd nature of newspaper indexing, effectively search online newspaper resources, effectively use print resources for locating older articles, find, display, and print articles from the library's online newspaper collections, and find, display, and copy articles from the library's microform collection of newspapers. Thursday, April 15 @ 3:00 PM. Register @ <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

5. Upcoming Safe Space Training Program April 15, 2010

What is Safe Space Training? A Safe space is a place where LGBTQ people can be themselves, be supported, be respected, be valued and receive the appropriate information and resources. A safe space is a space where it is not acceptable to use biased language or to judge people. Why should you get Involved? The truth is that we are not sensitized to LGBTQ biases in the same respect we are of biases against other minority groups. Many times biases against LGBTQ people slip under the radar. Safe Space training will give you the tools to recognize these biases and ensure that Stony Brook University continues to become a more inclusive place for everyone. Take the First Step By Becoming a Member on April 15, 2010 between 1pm-5pm at Schomberg Commons.
