Hi:

I just spoke with Jason and he told me about your shoulder. I feel so badly because I know it's very painful. My brother was having some trouble with his neck (getting so stiff) he couldn't even turn it without turning his entire body. In any case, hopefully you will be a little better by next week.

I have some things going on as usual For Black History Month, February 18, 2004 at the Wang Center 3:00 - 5:00 two authors will be coming: Candace Sandy and Dawn Marie Daniels, co-authors of "Souls of My Sisters" and "Souls of My Brothers". They are bringing a few congressmen with them, as well as Stony Brook Alums. I am in the process of firming it up so I'll keep you posted.

AND, these are the following departments for Faculty Author Readings you might want to consider:

Philosophy - Kenneth Baynes, Don Ihde, Patrick Grim

Italian American Studies - Fred Gardaphe (his new book is out Leaving Little Italy), Mary Jo Bona, Mario Mignone

Writing & Rhetoric - ?

Anthropology - Fred Grine, Bill Arens, Elizabeth Stone

Political Science - ?

Also, with the Alumni Afternoon, perhaps we can also invite the wrestler

Have a great weekend, get better and I'll speak to you on Tuesday.
