1. Apply for a Tinker Field Research Grant!

Latin American & Caribbean Studies at Stony Brook University announces

Tinker Application Workshop

Wednesday, February 18

12:50 - 2:10 PM (Campus lifetime)

Social & Behavioral Sciences, Room N-320

If you are planning to apply, come meet with the Director as he takes prospective graduate applicants through the process of applying for Tinker Field Research travel grants for Summer 2009.

This travel grant is open to MA and Doctoral Students attending Stony Brook University in any field or topic of Latin American and Iberian Studies. The Tinker program encourages new global scholarship by supporting preliminary travel and exploratory fieldwork by graduate students in the process of defining their future research and/or Ph.D. proposals.

Accepting applications until March 2, 2009!

4. Tour the Melville Library

Take a tour of the Melville Library's main public service areas. Learn about our collections and services and get some freebies while you're here. Meet us @ the Central Reading Room, Melville Library. All tours run about 30 minutes. Tuesday, February 17 @ 12 PM. Register @ <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

Submitted by: Fiona Grady/Lib

5. Where are the Journal Articles

You've been asked to write a research paper using at least three journal articles from peer-reviewed journals. What does that mean and how do you find them? This workshop will go over: where to find the articles; how to find out if an article is or isn't peer-reviewed; and which databases are best for which subject matter. Wednesday, February 18 @ 1:30 PM. Register @ <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

Submitted by: Fiona Grady/Lib

6. Extra. Extra. You Can Overcome Frustration with Newspaper Research.

This session examines ways to find current and historical articles in newspapers. We'll look at online indexes and collections of digitized newspapers, as well as explore old-fashioned ways to dig in the newspaper archives. In this workshop, you will: become familiar with the odd nature of newspaper indexing; effectively search online newspaper indexes; effectively use non-online resources for locating older articles; find, display, and print articles from the library's online newspaper collections; and find, display, and copy articles from the library's microformat collection of newspapers. Thursday, February 19 @ 1 PM. Register @ <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

Submitted by: Fiona Grady/Lib

7. Financial Literacy "Train the Trainer" Educational Workshop for faculty, staff, or graduate students

This free workshop, Friday March 20, 2009 from 10 a.m. to noon, will train participants to be able to provide financial literacy programming for our students. Light refreshments will be served and all materials are free. Participants will be asked to offer one financial literacy presentation to students by the end of the following academic year. Participation is limited. Please contact Barbara Fletcher, 632-6712 (Barbara.fletcher@stonybrook.edu) by March 6 to confirm registration. This program is supported by the 2007-2008 HESC grant awarded to the Office of Financial Aid and Scholarship Services and is part of an on-going financial literacy initiative at Stony Brook.

8. Reduce student anxiety and frustration by clearly communicating your expectations of them in your course

Monday, February 16, 12:30pm to 2pm

As an educator you often read and hear that you need to include learning objectives in your course planning and communicate them to your students. But what are they? What do they achieve? How do I write them? Are they necessary? Learning objectives are the foundation of your course. Once they have been identified and written, the entire course will be written around them. They define the course structure, the readings, the textbooks, the commentary, the study questions, and the examinations or other assignments for credit. They help students understand the purposes of your course and related learning activities, as well as help them to select your course. Learning objectives enable students to judge the success of their course performance and provide you with a measureable tool to compare overall student performance from semester to semester.

9. A picture says a thousand words: Create and edit images to enhance your course content

Monday, February 16, 3pm to 4:30pm

This workshop is intended to be an introduction to Photoshop and GIMP, a free and open source image editing program which has been compared favorably to Photoshop. One of the most powerful features of both GIMP and Photoshop are layers, however, these can be the source of frustration for first time users of photo editing applications. In this workshop you will create an image with layers which can divide an image into its semantic elements. Once you have created an example it can easily be converted into an interactive image like the ones found here:

http://129.49.101.216/SIMPL/?online\_examples These examples can also be brought into Stony Brook's Blackboard Learning Management Software.

11. Effectively and efficiently take notes, organize and retrieve information using your laptop: Using a Tablet PC

Wednesday, February 18, 2pm to 3:30pm

A demonstration of using a Tablet PC and Microsoft Office software to take notes at meetings or during classes. Convert your handwriting into printed text, add images and video, draw graphs and formulae with OneNote. Integrate appointments and tasks with Outlook. Annotate on top of PowerPoint presentations, spreadsheets or Word documents.

12. Determine whether students are learning as you expect: developing tests to measure how well students have achieved your learning objectives

Tuesday, February 17, 1pm to 2pm

Linking learning objectives and grading procedures is one of the most effective strategies to motivate students' learning. This workshop will focus on how to develop tests and exams to reflect the learning objectives described in your syllabus.

13. Focus, and reflect on, your teaching: The first step - how to Write a Statement of Teaching Philosophy

Wednesday, February 18, 3pm to 4:30pm

Having a defined and written teaching philosophy is important for career purposes, personal reflection, professional promotion, and classroom relationships with your students. In addition, a defined philosophy helps you to make decisions about the design and delivery, grading approaches etc within your courses.

16. Faciliate Student Participation in Your Course by Using a SharePoint Site: Store and Share Ideas, Information, Communication and Documents.

Monday, February 23, 10am to 11:30am

SharePoint is an online tool that will connect your students to your course information. It is web-based and is accessible from any networked computer. SharePoint is easy to use. You can easily create a central place online to store AND work on your documents at home, work and abroad without having to carry your computer, USB key or E-mailing yourself the files. Learn about SharePoint Document Libraries and about accessing previous versions of your files. Share files without overwriting them when collaborating with others.

17. Get organized and engage your students at the same time with Delicious

Monday, February 23, 12:30pm to 2pm

Organize and find Internet resources for your course and create active learning exercises for your classroom with delicious. Delicious stores your bookmarks online, which allows you to access the same bookmarks from any computer and add bookmarks from anywhere. You use tags to organize and remember your bookmarks, which is a much more flexible, organized system than folders. You can set up a bookmark sharing system with your colleagues and students. Delicious enables your students to collaborate on classroom resource linklogs, projects, reports and podcasts. This is a user-friendly, intuitive program that will enhance your classroom and save time with your course administration.

18. Encourage student involvement and participation in your course through mid-semester student feedback

Tuesday, February 24, 3pm to 4pm

Don't wait until it's too late to obtain student feedback to plan improvements to your course. Come to share your ideas about what information is helpful for you and your students, and learn some techniques to design your own mid-term student survey to gather the information you need.

19. Managing your classroom: You're in control

Wednesday, February 25, 2:30pm to 4pm

This workshop is for faculty of all disciplines and would be particularly of interest to our new faculty members and our experienced faculty with questions as to how to manage this new generation of college students. While most of us are comfortable with the course content we are teaching, many of us do not feel we have been prepared to teach. We are experts in our discipline, but not with managing a college classroom. We're not prepared to handle absenteeism, tardiness, cheating, and difficult students. How do we engage our students to participate in course activities and prepare them for the next level of learning? This workshop will help you set classroom expectations from the first day of class and establish a positive learning environment for your students.

21. Customer Service Workshop (1 hr lunchtime Learning)

February 20th - 12:00pm - 1:00pm

Description:

All customer interactions have an impact on the perception of your organization. Excellent customer service is more than just employees smiling and making eye contact. It is an all-encompassing approach to making excellent service delivery part of the culture of your area. Everything a customer sees, hears or touches impacts the experience.

Key Highlights:

Identify customer expectations and needs using active listening techniques.

Learn how to create a culture of service excellence for your internal and external customers.

Develop solutions to more challenging and difficult customer service situations.

Identify ways to create more customer-friendly processes.

Target Audience: This program is open to all West Campus, South Campus, HSC, Manhattan and Southampton employees.

22. Pranayam Meditation Workshop

The practice of Pranayam (rhythmic breathing) and Meditation are ancient techniques that are now universally popular to fight anger, depression and stress. Both have the capacity of freeing the mind from untruthfulness, ignorance and all other painful and unpleasant experiences of the body and mind. Hindu sages since time immemorial have also prescribed the chanting of certain mantras (verses) along with these yogic practices. Among them, the Gayatri Mantra (mother of knowledge) is considered the highest and most powerful mantras of all. The recitation of the Gayatri Mantra with devotion, along with Om and other mantras of the Vedas (ancient Hindu texts) bestows the boon of righteous wisdom and spiritual growth and development.

6. Bipolar Maintenance Study

Bipolar Maintenance Study

We are enrolling students with Bipolar I Disorder in a clinical research study. This study will assess the safety and effectiveness of an investigational medication versus placebo when added to conventional bipolar medications. The investigational study medication is currently approved by the FDA for use in adults with bipolar I disorder. Participants in this study may be able to continue on their current bipolar medications.

Participation requires attending regular study visits, at Stony Brook University's Child Psychiatry Outpatient Department, over a period of approximately one year

Study participants must be:

10 -17 years old.

Diagnosed with bipolar I disorder.

Currently on a stable regimen of bipolar medication(s), but still experiencing symptoms.

Study Participants May Receive, at No Cost:

Study specific medical care including comprehensive psychiatric evaluations.

Investigational study medication

Compensation for time and travel

All participants' information will remain confidential.

For information, contact Gregory Carlson at 631-632-8828.

2. Your Ombuds Office is Here to Help!

In its earliest days at Stony Brook, the Ombuds Office dealt mostly with issues related to construction, contractors, operations and safety, and the creation of university councils, forums, and other governance structures with elected representations from students and faculty. Today it provides confidential, informal, and impartial assistance in resolving intra-campus conflicts, disputes, and other grievances in promoting fair and equitable treatment within the University.

Visit the Ombuds Office in Melville Library or call 632-9200.
