3. WISE Student Awarded Anne Sayre Scholarship Prize

Women in Science and Engineering (WISE) has named Varsha Jain, a sophomore majoring in Biomedical Engineering, as the Anne Sayre Scholarship Award Recipient. One $500.00 scholarship is awarded yearly to an outstanding WISE student who demonstrates the drive and intellectual commitment of Anne Sayre, the late author and Stony Brook lecturer whose book, Rosalind Franklin and DNA, brings to light Rosalind Franklin's discovery of the structure of DNA. The scholarship fund was established in 1998 with an endowment by Anne Sayre's husband, David Sayre. The award will be presented at a banquet dinner on April 18 in the SAC. The keynote speaker is Liliana George, senior chemist at Estee Lauder. Carrie-Ann Miller, Director of WISE, Joseph Auner, Associate Provost, and Yacov Shamash, Dean of Engineering, will present opening remarks to an audience of faculty, administrators, community leaders, and students. Varsha Jain will read from her winning essay.

14. Public Feelings Symposium, Thursday, April 21, 2-5 PM, Humanities Institute, Melville Library, E4340

The term "public feelings" refers to the work of a loosely aligned feminist academic collective who are attempting to address feelings of apathy and depression in public political culture while also attempting to re-invigorate feminist work in the academy. Their stated intent is to oppose "the facile splitting of thinking and feeling" in political activism and academic scholarship, and to explore the nexus of affect, citizenship, gender, race, sexuality and political activism in American society. The symposium will involve three short presentations followed by a discussion. The three presenters are: Ann Cvetkovich, Professor of English and Women's Studies at UT Austin; Lisa Duggan Associate Professor of American Studies and Gender Studies from NYU; and Ann Reynolds, Associate Professor in Art and Art History at UT Austin. Co-sponsored by Women's Studies, HISB, and the Comparative Literature and Cultural Studies Program.

1. Establishment of Friends of the Ashley Schiff Park Preserve

Dr Ashley Schiff was a dedicated and popular professor of political science and avowed naturalist. In the early fall of 1969 he died suddenly and in 1970 former U.S. Interior Secretary, Stewart Udall and Stony Brook University President John S. Toll dedicated the 26 acre woodland that we we know now as the Ashley Schiff Park Preserve. In order to raise funds for maintenance of the park, student scholarships and to develop educational outreach programs and nature walks for the university, former alums and the community the Friends of Ashley Park Preserve has been established. For more details regarding walking tours, history and membership please visit our table at EarthStock 2005, outside of the SAC, April 22, 2005 or contact Mary Woodward at 632-9849.

8. Korean Animation Film Series: Wonderful Days (Sky Blue) At Wang Center Theatre Tuesday April 19 7:00 PM Free

In 2142, civilization has collapsed under the weight of environmental pollution. Scientists and elite members of society live in the city Ecoban, powered by a system that converts pollution into energy. Outside Ecoban, refugees led by Shua, secretly plan the violent overthrow of the city. Pitted against Shua are Simon, Ecoban's security chief, and Jay, a fiery female agent, both of whom share a secret history with Shua. In groundbreaking visual style, which combines 2D, 3D, and live-action miniature animation, this science fiction epic was a hit at this year's Sundance Film Festival, and is already considered a modern classic. ### 12. Chuck Brodsky, writer/performer of songs about baseball, to appear at The University

Cafe, Sunday May 1st at 2 P.M.

With the baseball season underway, The University Cafe presents Chuck Brodsky, a singer/songwriter who has specialized in songs about baseball figures (known and little-known). Whether the topic is Philadelphia Phillies player Richie Allen, or Eddie Klepp, the first white baseball player in the Negro Leagues, Brodsky's insights create vivid portraits. These songs (collected on his CD The Baseball Ballads) were the basis of three concerts he performed at the National Baseball Hall of Fame.

Chuck Brodsky follows the story-telling path of writers like Bob Dylan, John Prine and Woody Guthrie. He moves from satire about contemporary culture ("Blow em Away," his well-known song about road rage), to commentary about the loss of civil liberties ("Dangerous Times,") and powerful works of optimism ("We Are Each Other's Angels.")

Opening is Little Toby Walker.
