03. Workshops/Courses/Training

1. Managing Your Research Using EndNote: Basic Skills at the HSC

Creating the bibliography is often the most tedious part of writing a research paper. Using EndNote, a bibliographic management software program, this task just became much easier. In this workshop learn: how to create & organize an EndNote Library, how to download results from a literature search into EndNote, how to insert your references into a MS Word document, and how to format your bibliography. Monday, March 2 @ 2:30 PM at the Health Science Library. Register at <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

Submitted by: Fiona Grady/Lib

2. Film Research Workshop

You think writing a paper about a movie is easy? Professors aren't the only people who understand The Matrix! We'll show you how interesting film research really is, so your parents will never make fun of you again. This workshop will help you: find where the peer-reviewed articles on film are - and aren't, search for films and scenes by image and keyword, find online film archives, and find film buffs, film blogs, film nuts and number crunching. Wednesday, March 4 @ 1 PM. Register at <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

Submitted by: Fiona Grady/Lib

3. Research Skills for Non-Traditional Students Workshop

Been out of school for a while and feeling lost? Working and going to school, and pressed for the time needed to do research? Learn how to: spend less time on research, access Stony Brook University resources from off-campus. explore the library's collection of electronic books and reference material, and use Suffolk Web and WorldCat to find resources close to home. Thursday, March 5 @ 7 PM. Register at <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

Submitted by: Fiona Grady/Lib

4. Using the Internet for Historical Research

Valuable historical information can now be found on the internet, especially primary source material. This workshop will highlight some of the most interesting web sites and web tools. Learn about: Google Books and other Online Book Collections, major Digital and Audio/Visual Collections, creating a Google Custom Search, and using Wikipedia as a way of finding Online Resources. Monday, March 9 @ 1 PM. Register at <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

Submitted by: Fiona Grady/Lib

5. Beyond Blackboard: Web Tools for Group Work

Group work is a fact of Stony Brook University life. Beyond Blackboard there are other collaborative Web tools and networks for enhancing group work, sharing content and managing projects. In this workshop learn: how to create and manage groups on the Web using wikis, blogs, etc., how to share online content and research, including using Google Docs, and about using collaborative networks for scholarship. Tuesday, March 10 @ 11:30 AM. Register at <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

Submitted by: Fiona Grady/Lib

6. Citation Data: H-Index, Impact Factors and Citation Alerts

In this workshop, learn how to: search your H-index, a measure of scientific productivity and impact, find journal impact factors and what that number represents, and set up citation alerts and find cited reference data using the Web of Science. Monday, Mar. 16 @ 1:30 PM. Register at <http://www.stonybrook.edu/library/services/instruction/workshops.htm>.

7. Showcase Your Teaching, Research and Professional Development: Design and Develop Your Professional Teaching ePortfolio

Monday, March 2, 12:30pm to 2pm

An electronic portfolio, or e-Portfolio, is a purposeful collection of artifacts and reflections saved on a website or DVD that showcases YOU. Faculty use E-Portfolios to document professional development over time, to identify patterns of growth and competencies in their chosen discipline, for self-assessment and reflection, and to share teaching methods and research information with their colleagues and students. Establish a solid professional network with your ePortfolio. It's all about you!

9. EASY Online Collaboration and Document Management: Introduction to SharePoint Sites for your Course, Department or Research Team

Tuesday, March 4, 12pm to 1:30pm

SharePoint is a great tool for sharing documents and Web hosting. File libraries can be created to store, share, and collaborate on documents. You can be alerted if someone modifies a document. A check-in/check-out system can be enabled to ensure that just one person is working on a document at any given time to prevent overwriting. Different versions of a document can be saved and restored. All documents and the entire site collection can be accessed anywhere from any computer. Additionally you have full control over who can see or do anything on your site.

15. Invite the Expert to Your Class via Interactive Web Conferencing

Friday, March 6, 12pm to 1:30pm

Open your classroom to the world. It's no longer necessary to reserve special videoconferencing rooms in order to make a connection between your class and a remote participant. With Adobe Connect or Skype, along with a simple webcam and microphone, it's possible to invite a guest lecture from anywhere in the world and connect directly from their office, lab or homes to your classroom. Teach your on-campus from out-of-town or your online course from your office. You can conference with your students from home. Interactive web conferencing provides an outstanding modality for engaging students in the learning process and permitting them to experience new learning opportunities that might otherwise be impossible.

20. EAP Lunchtime Learning: Parenting the Explosive Child

Some kids just have short fuses. Others may be diagnosed with an attention-deficit, developmental, or bipolar disorder. Regardless of the label, these children are often easily frustrated, demanding and explosive. Medications rarely fix these problems completely, rewards for good behavior may not work, and time-outs or punishments often lead to blow-ups. Collaborative Problem Solving is a new approach to parenting explosive kids that is based on this unique understanding of their problems. Come learn about this effective and clinically tested method to restoring peace to your home. The presentation includes DVD clips of therapists working with the families of explosive kids.

15. Paula Treichler presents "Media, Medicine, and the Politics of Representation," March 2nd, 4:30PM, HISB Humanities 1008

Physicians, health, and disease have been popular topics of U.S. mass media programming since the early 20th century. Their reliable educational and entertainment value as media products as well as their gripping storylines and seductive visual conventions, tend to divert us, as viewers and even as scholars, from the conditions and conflicts surrounding their production. Yet a host of media productions were directly shaped by the collaboration, competition, and conflicting agendas of these two astonishingly powerful industries. Through a series of vignettes from film and television, this presentation explores the parallel histories of 20th century mass media and medicine as well as recurrent tensions between the two mutually-dependent industries, conflicts in aesthetic and cultural values, contradictory and at times deluded positions toward art and commerce, differing understandings of narrative power, and changing social contexts. Paula A. Treichler teaches at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

1. It's About Us Campaign Ends March 30

Thank you to those who have showed their support for Stony Brook students, faculty, patients, and Veterans Home residents by donating to this year's It's About Us Campaign. If you are still considering which fund you would like to support, consider our student scholarship funds. There are more than 5,500 undergraduates with an unmet financial need of $4,300/year. You may designate your gift for the University-wide scholarship fund or to a specific college/school scholarship fund. Be assured that 100% of each and every dollar you give to scholarships will go directly to helping our students. Please join us by making your one-time gift by check or credit card or use the convenience of payroll deduction (with as modest as a $1 per week contribution) by going to www.stonybrook.edu/itsaboutus.

Tuesday, March 3, 2009, 7PM

Free admission

Like millions of Filipinos, Jess Huson wants to go to the United States but is consistently denied by the U.S. Consulate so he works as a driver for Nigel Adams, an internationally famous television host of Planet Strange. Jess takes Nigel on a tour of the strange universe that is Pinoy culture including strip clubs that refuse to serve meat on Lent, bulletproof shamans, and enterprising penitents who charge money to be crucified. In the end, Jess wrestles with a choice, to stay in the Philippines with his family and work for Adams or to risk and leave everything by heading to the United States.

Introduced by and discussion to follow with Dr. Nerissa Balce, Department of Asian and Asian American Studies.

The Advanced certificate is suitable for anyone wishing to gain in-depth knowledge of wines and spirits. Although it builds upon the knowledge gained at the WSET Intermediate level, there are no prerequisites for this course. Students will acquire a thorough understanding of the factors influencing the style, quality and price of wines from key wine producing regions of the world. They will also develop analytical tasting skills, as tasting will be part of the examinations. Register on line at our webpage.
