

Colleagues,

In honor of Women's History Month, the next installment in the Provost's Lecture Series is "Women in Academia: 21st-Century Challenges." The discussion of this important topic will be led by Evelyn Hammonds and Abigail Stewart on Tuesday, March 21st.

Hammonds is Senior Vice Provost for Faculty Development and Diversity, Professor of History of Science, and Professor of African and African American Studies at Harvard University. Her areas of interest and expertise include gender in science and medicine, and African American history.

Stewart is the Sandra Schwarz Tangri Professor of Psychology and Women's Studies at the University of Michigan and director of the ADVANCE project. She is the former director of the Women's Studies Program and of the Institute for Research on Women and Gender.

This lecture, co-sponsored by the Department of History, the Department of Psychology, and the Program in Women's Studies, will begin at 4:00 p.m. and be held in the SAC Auditorium.

Please pass along this invitation to any students or community members you feel may be interested in attending.

- Robert L. McGrath, Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs
