" PHARAOH, LET OUR BROTHERS, PHILIPPE AND EMMANUEL GO! "

By
Alain Moise and Junod Etienne

Before last December, many of us thought it was safe for groups of students to engage in peaceful demonstrations on campus. The events that have occurred since that time have proven us wrong. Last week, two members of the Haitian Students Organization (H.S.O.), Emmanuel Severe and Phillippe Valbrune were pronounced guilty of several outrageous University charges in connection with the December 4th blood drive demonstration. The rally was organized in order to peacefully denounce the FDA's since removed policy that excluded Haitians and sub-Saharan Africans from the blood donor pool. The University frowned upon the protest and their disapproval would be reflected in their future actions.

Last Wednesday, Severe received as ruling condemning him to one year of suspension from the University and on the following day Valbrune was suspended from the University for six months. They were tried together in a University hearing that should be a source of shame to the administrative body of the University.

The judiciary board consisted of five members three Black and two white. An odd ratio, considering that the members were claimed to have been chosen at random, but not so odd if one considers this claim to be a falsity. In the hearings witnesses were questioned and cross-examined by Severe, Valbrune and Public Safety. "The Public Safety's officers collective testimony was a fabricated cover up, filled with holes and inconsistencies," said Severe about the hearings. "I was claimed to have been arrested at five different times by five different officers. As Severe spoke, an empty spot could be seen where there was once a tooth that was knocked out by an officer during the rally.

It would seem difficult to take any facts obtained from such hearings seriously, much less use them to make a concrete decision about the academic careers of these two young men. Despite these and countless other inconsistencies, the judiciary board went ahead and pronounced them guilty.

The move by the University to suspend Severe and Valbrune has violated the rights of every student on campus to peacefully show their malcontent with University policies. Silence in the face of this atrocity is equivalent to handing someone your rights with a smile.

On Thursday the Haitian Students marched into a meeting of the Board of Trustees and handed the president a letter saying that they organized a "sit-in" in the Administration building and would remain there until the charges against Severe and Valbrune were dropped. The group has been in the building for three whole days and night and will continue to sit-in for days to come.

Now is the time for the community to unite and support Phillippe and Emmanuel. Their situation represents the differences between the ideals of freedom of speech and expression that we hold dear and the reality of censorship. We all must do what we can by actively participating in the sit-in and in the big rally on April 19. If silence is your choice now, it will be forced upon you later.

POLITY ELECTIONS ARE IMPORTANT

This years Polity elections have serious implications for next years funding and student actions. It is imperative that everyone votes this year and let their opinions be counted and heard. Besides there being candidates to choose, there are also serious issues that are going to be put on referendum that affect your student activity fee.

The referendum that Blackworld supports whole-heartedly is the one that asks for $5 extra to support S.A.B. S.A.B. and more importantly M.P.B. can not program in the Union Ballroom due to the edict handed down by Vice President Preston after the Special Ed concert. Since there can be no programming of concerts in the Ballroom M.P.B. now has to program in the more expensive to rent and more expensive to have sound equipment for Indoor Sports Complex. We believe that S.A.B. should get these $5 from each student, and that most of that money be used to make sure that M.P.B. can keep up its fine programming for our community.

Our candidate endorsements for offices are:

President- Dan Slepian: Slepian has proven time and time again that he is an advocate for all students and experience makes him the logical choice.

Vice-President- Tom Pye: Pye has proven his leadership capabilities as Sophomore and Junior Representative and he has shown dedication in his work.

Secretary- Wendy Wohlman: As a receptionist in the Polity office Wohlman knows her way around the bureaucracy better than many officers of many clubs and organizations.

Senior Representative- Manuel Nunez: Nunez is not out to "be a one man whirlwind." He wants total input from the whole senior class. He also wants to implement a program that has seniors of certain majors be peers to freshmen who are thinking of being in those majors.

Junior Representative- Christine Tracy: Tracy is another experienced candidate after spending this year as Sophomore Representative. She has been outspoken on many issues, including the blood drive boycott.

Sophomore Representative- Ken Bristow: Bristow has grown into his position and deserves another year to put what he has learned as Freshman Representative to work for the students next year.

SASU Representative- Todd Stephens and Martine Hall: Two hard working students that will represent us well when it is time to fight the power at Albany.

USSA Representative- Todd Stephens: Same as above, Stephens can do it on a national level also.

REMEMBER TO VOTE! AFTER ALL IT IS YOUR STUDENT ACTIVITY FEE THAT THESE PEOPLE WILL HAVE CONTROL OF!

EDUCATION SHOULD BE CUOMO'S TOP PRIORITY

By Errol Cockfield

On April 8th I attended a buffet dinner at Shorewood, President Marburger's home, which is 15 minutes away from the University at Stony Brook. The house is provided by the University and he can only occupy it for the time he is here. It is a very secluded and lavish house overlooking Long Island Sound. There were approximately 15 members of the 1990 freshman class that also attended. President Marburger said in the past he only met with students in campus government, but he and his wife, Carol, decided to change that in order to meet a larger number of students. Several faculty members were present including Fred Preston, Vice President of Student Affairs.

In the midst of many conversations, I found my way to the president and asked the question of what services would be denied due to present budgetary cuts? He replied that he would not know the full effect until the legislature passed the new budget, but he did have a rather clear idea. President Marburger said Stony Brook is facing a 9 million dollar cut and laid out what effect this will have on the Stony Brook community as we know it. There will be less classes to choose from and thus larger numbers of students within individual classes. In addition there shall be faculty firings, thus the teachers we look forward to being taught by may not be here in the future. If a faculty member leaves voluntarily, he or she will not be replaced. President Marburger admitted maintenance of the campus will decrease significantly, and he praised efforts by students on campus to save energy (for example recycling and energy conservation). Later, President Marburger made a brief speech about the present problem, but he did not touch on what would be done in the future to reverse the detrimental effects of such cuts.

The SUNY system is facing a possible cut of $160 million. Governor Mario Cuomo hopes to offset this by a proposed $500 increase in tuition which will produce $60 million (this is in addition to the $300 increase already thrust upon SUNY students). Yet let's not forget cuts to financial aid such as the $200 a year cut to TAP awards such as the Regents Scholarship, which is a $250 a year award. It is an insult to students who worked hard to receive such benefits. President Marburger expressed the opinion that the tuition increases and the cut to financial aid were unacceptable.

Many people say that tuition is still low compared to other schools. These are the people who can sit back while their parents write check after check. If they were suddenly taken from their financial and suburban eutopia, a change of heart would soon come. These are not those people who have to strive because their parents cannot afford to help. However, there are many who do not have time to sit back and relax, they must constantly work.

A large number of the students here at Stony Brook have an attitude of complacency, which should be changed if we are to see the changes we so badly want. People walk around campus complaining, but do nothing after they see problems. When society is quiet politicians have their way with the people, implementing absurd policies. The strong voices of the few may not be heard, but even the weak voices of the many will always be heard. A perfect example is the Civil Rights movement. Another example is the fact that the Berlin Wall has fallen, this was not because of a few voices, it was caused by the will of the masses.

In my opinion there needs to be a reshuffling of priorities in the United States governmental system. Too much emphasis is made on foreign policy rather than the social aspects right here in the United States. Too much emphasis is placed on military endeavors, weapons, and space programs. If I was president I would much rather see a billion dollars used to send thousands of people to college, rather than see a few astronauts go to the moon in the space shuttle and find a few nice looking rocks. I would much rather see 50 new universities rather than a thousand new nuclear warheads capable of destroying the Earth ten times over. Presidents rise promising increased social change, and they fall leaving disorder and a trillion or so added to the national debt. We have to stop thinking about how we look in the eyes of foreign competitors and start thinking about how look in our own eyes. The inside must be uplifted before the outside truly looks good.

S.U.N.Y. TRUSTEES APPROVE PERPETUAL TUITION HIKES

By Sean Springer
Student Leader News Service

Albany- The SUNY Board of Trustees approved a policy calling for "indexed tuition"-a nice way of saying that tuition will go up every year forever-at the board meeting held at SUNY Central Thursday, March 28.

The policy, officially proposed by the Board's Committee on Revenue and Tuition Policy but largely engineered by SUNY Chancellor Bruce Johnstone, calls for students to pay "approximately 25 percent," but not exceeding "one-third of the per-student costs of education," according to the report issued by the committee.

"Indexing" means that tuition will be automatically linked to inflation, and literally increase every year until the American dollar begins to deflate in the U.S., which is not expected for centuries.

While paying one-third of educational costs may seem like a bargain, it represents a massive, sudden increase in educational expenses.

Students during the Fall 1990 semester paid 11 percent of their costs, the mid-year tuition hike increased the percentage to 16 percent. Governor Mario Cuomo's proposed $500 tuition increase will place tuition near the 25 percent rate.

Other costs, including dorm rent, will also continue to increase dramatically.

The report's principle for tuition to "rise to levels comparable with the share of educational costs borne by tuition in public colleges and universities in peer states," was criticized by student trustee president of the Student Association of the State University (SASU) Judy Krebs, who said that the "cost of rice in New York State is more relevant" to the state's costs of education than other states' cost of education.

In other words, Krebs is suggesting that costs of education in other states is totally unrelated to the cost of education in New York State.

Johnstone unintentionally echoed that sentiment when he told members of the press that New York State "tends to be more generous" than other states to public programs.

The policy report called for

SUNY to "remain affordable, and therefore accessible, to all New York residents through a combination of reasonably low tuition rates, State and federal need-based grants," and student/parent contributions, but offered no solutions to the current budget predicament of cuts to aid simultaneous with significant tuition increases.

"These provisions shall not prohibit the establishment of a schedule of reasonable fees," the report said, although vaguely stating that fees "should not be imposed in lieu of tax support or tuition."

The policy of Community College tuition will remain unchanged, with up to 33 percent of per-student costs paid by students, but not exceeding the tuition rate at state-operated campuses.

THE FUTURE OF POLITY

By Joe Mignon as told to Dwayne Andrews

It has been a year full of different experiences being Polity Vice-President. The Senate was interesting and politically diverse. The senators were active but they could have been more active. They need to realize that they represent the student body. Their purpose is to voice the concerns and issues of the entire student body. Future senators must realize that they could be the most powerful force behind any cause that affects students and they need to keep us [the Polity council] in check.

Polity has served the campus community well this year with the big issues like the Parking Fee, Tuition Hike and Buss Fee. Polity has kept the students up to date on new occurrences in these situations. I wish SASU (Student Association of State Universities) would have kept us more informed with what's going on up in Albany. The student body has to keep SASU delegates more accountable.

My experience with student clubs and organizations has been a learning experience. I feel that some groups in Polity are just a waste of students money. I enjoyed being the Homecoming chair. I think if it did not rain during Homecoming weekend, given the planning that the committee had done, this year would have been the best Homecoming the University at Stony Brook has ever seen. Students need to get more involved in the planning of Homecoming because the bulk of the money that goes into it comes from the Student Activity fee. I was also chairperson of the Black History Month Semi-Formal committee, I have worked with the Africana Studies (AFS) outreach program, sat on the AFS planning committee, arranged the Student-Faculty Sports Challenge Series and sat on the committee to plan Black History Month.

I have to say that this student government is very unique compared to others across the country. In my four years here at Stony Brook if there is not a strong Student government next year students will lose a lot of control of what they have right now.

I will not be running for office next year because I have been involved with Polity for the past three years and have sacrificed my schoolwork. I feel that being next year will be my last year I need to get my grades up in order to pursue my post-graduate goals, which include grad school. I might not have a position next year, but Joe Mignon is going nowhere. It is important to note that African-American and Latino students need to stay involved in Polity. I would say that this year has been revolutionary year just from looking at the make-up of Polity this year. We had a Black vice-president [myself], a Black Freshman representative [Ken Bristow], a Black treasurer [Naala Royale], a Black comedy/speakers chair [Sean Joe], a Black executive chair of S.A.B. (Student Activity Board) [Patrick Thomas] and a Bahamian secretary [Mike Halkitis]. This is a precedent we set this year that has to continue.

The future of Polity is in the hands of the perspective candidates. Common Sense is equivalent to nonsense. Common Sense is nothing but a pseudo-political party, but I respect their tactics. I don't think you have to be part of a political party in order to work for the students. In this climate of mis-education the truth awakens change.

It has been a great year working with Naala, Ken, Mike, Dan Slepian, Tom Pye, Alyson Gill, Christine Tracy, Hugh Lawrence, Sean, Scott Levine, Brian Dooreck, Patrick and the whole Polity staff, even though a lot of the fun was taken out of it.

Remember be "political not hypocritical."

U.S. REP UPSETS USSA CONFERENCE WITH ANTI-GAY STATEMENTS

By Sean Springer

Washington, D.C.- An uproar over what has been called homophobia and heterosexism from a U.S. representative occurred at an opening session of the United States Student Association (USSA) 22nd Annual Legislative Conference on Friday, March 15.

The session included a number of speakers on the reauthorization of the Higher Education Act of 1965. The incident occurred during a question-and answer session with Representative Thomas E. Petri (R-Wisconsin).

According to USSA, Petri was asked about hate crimes legislation and safety on campus.

Petri is quoted by a USSA press release as saying, "I voted against the law legalizing homosexuality. I think it should be illegal. It wrong. I'll be honest with you- you know [that] you do have to set standards. If you want to call it discrimination, it's legal."

Several students who were present at the opening session questioned the accuracy of the quote. Petri, reached by Student Leader, would not disavow the statement, but said that "misunderstandings do occur."

Following the representative's statement, chants of "shame" by numerous delegates reportedly reduced the session to chaos.

Petri, whose district includes the University Of Wisconsin at Oshkosh, a school of 11,000, is a member of the House Committee on Education and Labor, and the Higher Education Subcommittee.

According to Petri, a University of Wisconsin student asked a question in reference to the Reserve Officer Training Center (ROTC) program ban on homosexuals.

Petri said that he was interrupted before he could give his complete response, but did say that he "was not in the business of promoting homosexual rights."

Petri said that homosexuality was illegal when he was in the state legislature, and no revision of that statute came up during his term there, but said, "At the time, I probably would have voted against revision."

Petri pointed out that he was a co-sponsor of last year's Hate Crimes Act, which is intended to give special attention to bias-related crimes, and said that he would support "reasoned inquiry," involving public hearings with Pentagon officials to review the ROTC exclusionary policy, but was unable to communicate this to the students,

"I guess I approached the question from the wrong end," he said.

LAVLALAS AT STONY BROOK: APRIL 19

TONES OF SEDITION BY DWAYNE ANDREWS

The sentences that were handed down by the Student Judiciary to Emmanuel Severe and Phillippe Valbrune were definitely unjust and many people agree with this statement. I have conducted a series of interviews with members of the Haitian Students Organization regarding the DAY OF OUTRAGE planned for Friday April 19, 1991, from 10AM to 4PM at the Stony Brook Fine Arts Plaza. According to these students, the bulk of the support which the HSO is expecting for this demonstration is from the outside Black, especially Haitian, community, in the New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut area.

For the HSO, such a tactic is essential because April 19th, comes precisely on the eve of the historic April 20th, 1990 demonstration of Haitians protesting the racist FDA policing listing Haitians and Sub-Saharan Africans as groups at a high risk for contracting the AIDS virus. In this demonstration, reportedly the most populous in New York City in nearly 20 years, about 150,000 Haitians took part. For the entire Haitian community living in the United States this demonstration has been and still is a source of renewed pride and empowerment in the United States, especially in New York City where it is estimated that nearly 400,000 Haitian immigrants reside.

With regard to their strategy for making this "DAY OF OUTRAGE" a success, the Haitian students told me that since the past week and weekend they have physically gone out to their community and the larger black community, through the radio, television, and print media, thoroughly explained the current injustice to which they have been subjected to by an intransigent Stony Brook administration, and practically handed the case over to their community, religious and business leaders. The theme, LAVALAS, which they have used to launch the demonstration throughout the Haitian community is the same which brought Haiti's current president, the Rev. Jean Bertrand Aristide, to power with about 70% of the votes. The term LAVALAS literally means flood in English, but in recent Haitian terminology it has been used to refer to human masses such as the one which brought Father Aristide to power and the one which on April 20th, 1990 marched from downtown Brooklyn, over (actually shaking) the Brooklyn Bridge, and landed in lower Manhattan. Within the Haitian community the Kreyòl slogan which they have used to launch this LAVALAS is: 20 AVRIL 1990 LAVALAS LA TE DESANN NAN MANHATTAN; 19 AVRIL 1991 L AP DESANN NAN STONY BROOK which literally translates into "April 20, 1990 the LAVALAS came down on Manhattan, April 19, 1991 it will come down on Stony Brook.

The students have assured me and Blackworld that the support which they have thus far received has been overwhelming, truly much more than they expected. On Wednesday, March 3, the University announced the first suspension and the H.S.O. began demonstrating, and had contacted RADIO TROPICAL and RADIO GINEN, both 24 hr. Haitian radio stations. Calls of support and requests for interviews from other media have not ceased coming in. So far they have discussed the case on numerous Haitian radio programs on the Medgar Evers radio station in Brooklyn which reaches the heart of the Haitian community, have appeared on Haiti Diaspo and Koumbit Tele-Magazine television programs, received a lengthy and thorough interview on Moment Creole on WLIB, and have prepared a taped appeal to the African family announcing the demonstration which is played numerous times daily on WLIB. They have spoken at a huge New Alliance Party rally in Manhattan where they received the support of well known black activists Rev. Al Sharpton and Dr. Leonora Fulani, they have contacted the well known December 12th Movement, the Black Consciousness Movement, the Flatbush Front Line Collective, as well Haitian community, church, and student organizations. In solidarity with two other cases of overt racism which have occurred on the Stony Brook campus, the HSO has extended an invitation to both Dr. Ernst Dube, a South African exile who taught at Stony Brook for nearly ten years, until he was also exiled from the Stony Brook campus by this very same University President, John Marburger, and Quincy Troupe whose attempted "lynching" occurred not so long ago that the campus would have already forgotten, to come and speak at the rally.

The HSO has made available to the BlackWorld a copy of a letter which they have sent out to nearly 200 organizations, churches, and businesses which they have, they say, good reason to feel will be very sympathetic to their cause. This letter reads as follows:

April 7th, 1991

Dear Friend and Sympathizer,

As an organization/church/business which supported, morally and physically, the April 20th, 1990 LAVALAS which came down on Manhattan, we would like to make you aware of a related injustice which has been dealt to the Haitian and black community at the State University of New York @ Stony Brook, and to ask for your active support in helping us realize another "April 20th" here at Stony Brook on the eve of the anniversary of this historic demonstration on Friday the 19th of April, 1991.

As we had done since 1987, until the December 5th, 1990 FDA reversal of its racist ban on Haitians and Sub-Saharan Africans, the Haitian Students Organization and their supporters organized a boycott of a Blood Drive which was held on our campus on the 4th of December, 1990. While the members of the HSO and their supporters were peacefully marching and chanting, they were savagely and brutally attacked by the University Police. Many students were assaulted, some were choked, some were bruised, one student's eyeglasses were smashed and another's tooth was broken. Out of this incident two students, Phillippe Valbrune and Emmanuel Severe, were arbitrarily arrested from the group and charged with both University and criminal charges.

While they are scheduled to appear in Happaug District Court this Friday April 12th, 1991 to answer to the charge of 2nd degree riot, the University announced last week its decision to suspend these two students for one year, from September 1991 to September 1992. Since the publication of this announcement, there has been widespread protests on the campus and as of Thursday April 4th, we, along with our supporters, have effected a TAKE OVER of the administration building. Our demands are for an end to Public Safety Brutality, the removal of all charges, both University and criminal, on the files of these two students, and for the annulment of all decisions based on these fallacious charges.

Since it seems that our protests alone are not enough to convince the University, we are calling for an "April 20th" style DAY OF OUTRAGE to take place on the campus on Friday, April 19th, 1991, where the entire community will take the bus, the train, and car pools and come out EN MASSE to the Stony Brook campus to "explain" our demands to University President John Marburger, phone #516-632-6265, just like 150,000 Haitians "explained" crystal clear our discontent to the FDA last April 20th.

Just as you supported April 20th, 1990, in every conceivable manner, from making transportation available to the larger community to your actual presence, we are making an appeal to you to do the same effort in making this FRIDAY APRIL 19, 1991 LAVALAS at SUNY @ Stony Brook a reality.

For the Haitian Students Organization,

The administration here at the University at Stony Brook might just get a taste of true student empowerment on April 19th. It is time for people to show that they are not afraid to stand up for what is right and there is strength in numbers.

SENIORITIS STRIKES THE BROOK

IT'S LIKE THAT

BY TROY
CALLAHAN

Ahh! Here we are heading in to the middle of April, the final stretch of the spring semester. It is at this time of the year that many students on the Stony Brook campus fall victim to a most dreadful disease. It spreads like the plague, first consuming the mind and then the body, leaving its victim totally decimated and utterly useless. This infamous disease is known scientifically as acute brain inactivity due to an information overload induced by a regional warming trend, but is more commonly known as the most infamous "Senioritis". Fortunately for us, a cure has not been found. One must simply let the disease run its course and pray that it will not be fatal.

This strange disease is highly contagious and is not confined to merely the senior population. Every year large numbers of juniors as well as underclassmen come down with the disease, and the numbers are always on the rise. This year it has been predicted that the Stony Brook community will be hit especially hard. Experts say that the erratic weather patterns of late have caused a total chaos-mass confusion type hysteria among Stony Brook students leaving them more vulnerable to Genuine Draft attacks, a sure sign of the dreadful disease. It has been reported that during the recent heat wave, an increasing number of students have been seeing visions of the beautiful island of St. Ides (in the convenient forty ounce size) after making the long journey from Javits to the Union. There have also been several cases of the Red Bull reported as being seen on campus as well.

So does this mean the end of all intelligent life in the land of Stony Brook? I don't think so. Administration don't play that. I have recently discovered (while drinking a forty) that Campus Life Time is actually an experiment in mass group therapy devised by the psychology department for the administration here at Stony Brook. We are the prototype for a new nation wide program at universities everywhere. Whole campuses will receive therapy at one time during the week, greatly reducing the need of individual counseling sessions for students which means big savings for colleges and universities across the nation. Marburger and the Psychology department will receive millions if the plan works and all we get out of it is better grades.

Well I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take it any more! I say we all go join the Hatians in their sit-ins in the administration building and demand a piece of the action. Maybe we could try to work out some sort of tuition rebate, or possibly some sort of deal where every student who participates in Campus Life Time and still makes it to class will receive a coupon for a free six pack of Genuine Draft and a bag of Doritos. Maybe we could even work out a deal where a student could save up his coupons and at the end of the semester opt for a keg. The possibilities are limitless.

I think we should approach some of our favorite elected Polity officials and see if we can't get them to try and get the ball rolling. I'm sure Dan Slepian and the rest of the crew up in the union like the idea of a keg party as much as the next man, and at this time of the year they should be more than receptive to the ideas of their constituency. And if you happen to be reading this Dan, I think you should personally thank me for such a wonderful campaign idea. Why should things make sense all of the sudden anyway? I kind of like certain things being misunderstood.

Well folks, just remember where you got this exclusive first. I believe we can all benefit from this situation and turn this dreadful disease into a very positive thing. Remember, as long as we have a disease called senioritis, Stony Brook can be a nice place to live.

The state reportedly spends $ 145,834 per year for rental of office space for the Dept. for Historic Preservation, while two floors of their nearby Waterford offices are going unused, as the division is laying off employees.

Last year, most divisions of the state Department of Taxation and Finance moved from their World Trade Center offices into a state-owned office building in Brooklyn, but the Tax Appeals Board stayed and continue their $117,000 rental.

PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT

TO THE WHITE FEMALE THAT CALLED EMMANUEL AND LEFT A RACIST MESSAGE

CLASSIFYING US, AS NIGGERS AND CONDEMNING
HSO'S HUMAN RIGHT TO PROTEST, I THE PHILOSOPHER, IN A STATE OF INTELLIGENCE WILL EXCLAIM THIS:

DEAR CHILDREN OF RACISM...WHITE SUPREMACY, BEFORE YOU OPEN YOUR MOUTH AND LET IGNORANCE
FLOW FROM IT FOOLISHLY, PLEASE UNDERSTAND IF YOU CAN, ONE THING:

THE WHITE MAN MADE NIGGER BUT
GOD OR ALLAH MADE
THE ORIGINAL MAN

FROM HIS IMAGE AND AFTER HIS LIKENESS.

SO TELL ME WHO'S THE REAL NIGGER?

EDUCATION 101: NIGGER TO THE WHITE MEANS SAVAGE.

NOW, SINCE THE WHITE MAN CREATED A SAVAGE, THIS TELLS ME THAT HE MUST BE A BEAST HIMSELF. FOR ONLY A BEAST CAN CREATE A BEAST!

LIKE ONLY A GOD CAN CREATE NOTHING BUT A GOD....

BEHOLD THE VISION

The article that you are about to read was a nightmare that I dreamt on MAY 5, 1989.

The actual location and bus number was amended for security reasons. WELCOME TO THE TERRORDOME!

My brother and I were cast into a mental reality of madness, conspiracy and genocide. The conspirators were the patriotic factors that represented the Red, White and Blue colors and shade of the American flag... The City, State and Federal government of New York.

We were in Harlem taking the Bronx 7 bus down 125th street proceeding towards Lenox Avenue because my brother mysteriously resided in that area. Not paying attention, the bus drove pass my designated stop and I notice some laughter in my brother's face for he knew. I said Hotep to my brother and got off the upcoming stop...125th street on 8th Avenue.

Abruptly while walking upward on a hill, blue and white police color and shade helicopters infested the sky like a "swarm of devils with wings." These devilish aerodynamic instruments of so called Justice, Freedom, Equality were releasing rocket like objects that disintegrated on impact. I spoke aloud and said, "They are killing us!!!"

That's when I ran, as fast as my adrenalin permitted me to run. Running like a messenger against the arms of time, I reached my neighborhood to bring a warning wrapped in the event that I had witnessed. I was between 128th and 129th street on Convent Avenue... As I passed through the block, my eyes fell upon one of the rockets, that did not activate...explode or vaporize. Thoughts filled my head...I wanted to take the rocket back to Stony Brook, as evidence of premeditated genocide. It laid on the ground, as if someone or something wanted me to examine the object more closely, so I did. The deadly rocket of genocide was twenty-four inches long and three inches wide. The body was painted in a red color with a black label with white writing glued to the body that stated: Toxic Biological Weapon. After reading this revelation, the rocket had a chemical reaction which melted away the plastic container, unleashing deadly contents into the atmosphere. I recall inhaling some of the poisonous gases because it happened spontaneously. I then swiftly ran to the corner of 129th street on Convent Avenue where I approached several older adolescents. I related to them, my whole encounter and instructed them, to evacuate the area. subsequently, beside me was a portion of the rocket that failed to disintegrate completely. What remained was the nose and a part of the body.

Glancing up the sidewalk, my eyes encountered a community resident of apartment building 2000. I immediately rushed towards him, with the information of genocide, that was inside-in a haste to come out. The tenant stood tolerantly to my right, as I pointed up in the sky at the helicopters, expounding at the present atrocities being committed by the United States of White Supremacy. In the course of my discourse, it was apparent that one of the "machines of death and destruction" was suspicious of my presence because the vehicle was gradually moving towards us. Being somewhat afraid, I ran up the block and the helicopters eventually landed.

On the left side of the helicopters came a Caucasian police woman, holding in her left-hand a white plastic bag filled with toxic biological rockets. Joining her on the right was her partner, a male Caucasian. They converged on my neighbor and the woman asked, "Do you, sir, know of any sewers in this area?" He answered Yes. She, then asked, "Can you dump this bag in it for us?" He answered No. Two or three seconds later, the male officer drop down on his left knee, while simultaneously retrieving his revolver from out of his holster. Aiming it steadily towards my neighbor's chest area. She posed the question again, "Will you dump this in the sewer!?" Again, he answered No!-very firmly and unintimidated. Shortly after his response, the kneeling officer, punctured his chest and stomach with two bullets from his revolver, at a close range. Stunned and appalled, I fled for my apartment building. I opened the door and got on the elevator, trying to escape my mental reality of madness, conspiracy and genocide! My goal was to convince myself that it was only a dream or was it?

"In a White Supremacist System where injustise and deceit is the Supreme Law of the Land here and elsewhere, the worst crime a member of this Elite can committ is getting caught!"-The Philosopher.

"When White America sees a Black Man or Woman that Speaks too loud, Stands too tall and Thinks too much, they are left with two alternatives: they will either reach for their guns or throw away their keys to your new home-like concentration camp in Hell: The Prison System!" -The Philosopher.

What role does White Woman play in a White Supremacist System?

"Since White Supremacy is governed by White men like the U. S. Government, the number one threat to this system of government are Strong Black men who Challenge Fear, Educate the Ignorant and Demand JUSTICE!" -The Philosopher.

Why are their more Black men in the Prison System of America than in college?

Is there a War on Drugs or a War on Blacks?

THINKING OF LOVE.

Sweet summer days are gone my dear,
But our love is here to stay,
We will seek to find love's peace of mind,
With the passing of each day.

How sweet life seems with its lovely dreams,
And me holding you so close to me,
And it can be said from the thoughts in my head,
Our love will flow as smooth as a stream.

Our love cannot hide nor can it be denied,
For the feelings are strong in our hearts,
My dear you are so fine,
You drive me out of my mind,
Let love stay between you and me.

THE DECIEVERS

The original racist bastard of old.
Great father of those devilish whims.
Although now dead, your bones are cold.
Were you alive, I'd separate your limbs.
Scan the tyranny you have begun,
Only Lucifer sends you any smile.
Even in death I suppose you shun,
Any negro spirit, any African style.
I know you will enjoy hell's fire,
At the end of judgement day.
Because your premier desire
Was to see my race in disarray.
"Nigger, Nigger" was what you said.
That's nowhere close to my name.
Ethiopian, Egyptian, African bred.
Behind my title is a hall of fame.

by
Errol Cockfield.

When we're together
Time does not stand still
But the stillness lies
In the peaceful harmony
Of our hearts
We're not as one
But as two coexisting
In a world of many existences
You mean so much to me
My happiness is ..... You
And times shared
Forever will be
Lasting memories.

JEWEL OF A SMILE.

What kinds of gifts can
The jewel of a smile deliver
Given a feeling of solitude.
An ancient fortress ridden
Deep with all of what is sweet tasting,
Delicious, fun loving repercussions of Breaded batter dipped tastiness.

How about the reassurance of,
Knowing that the pride that rests
Inside of you comes through in your talents.
Maybe if you recognize the fact that
Pride runs as deep as the smile that
Cuts through the binding grip of insolent
Depression and silence.

If you can accept with as is
You can believe in your heart and in
Your smile that is real, lovely and true.
Draw yourself a map that will point
You to the "X" that marks the spot where will you find me.

The jewel of a smile
It is, as how you see it
The jewel of a smile.
As is.
The purest form of any substance
Known to man.

Immortality

How I envy the bullet because it never dies.
Not even when it hits a wall or fly's between a person's eyes.
Yes I despise the bullet, because there will never come a day, when a bullet is placed in a coffin and mournfully buried away.
You too envy the bullet, that's why it's such a sensation.
It can kill, without dying. Now that's cause for celebration.
Oh what a curse it is to have a bullet of your own, because once it enters your flesh it will never leave you alone.
Maybe something's wrong with me, maybe my head isn't on straight, but I envy the bullet, because never dying must be great.
Boy! I despise that bullet. Look at the way it changes people's lives.
It's a tool of destruction, yet, it never dies.
But I am a mere mortal made of flesh and bone and in spite of all the things I've said,
I'd rather die like man than live forever with a bullet of my own.

YOUR FRIENDSHIP.

Caring is something
Nothing to be taken for granted
Friendship is another thing
Not to be taken advantage of.
I care about you
And you're also my friend
Your idea of friendship
Is where caring ends
I may not be up to your standard
But I want you to know
You're losing a great friend
And even more
Friendship and caring
Must be combine
Or life in this world
Will just be a mime.
Don't say to me,
"You're my friend"
And then treat me
Like a nobody
My heart will always
Have a place for you
As somebody or as
A nobody.

Begin to increase with assuredness
So assured that outright pouring ensues

WRONG TIME WRIGHT LOVE.

I try to express my love for you darling,
And you say this could never be,
Because of our situation at this time,
I'd be barking up the wrong tree.

You say that if things were different,
We might have a love that is strong,
But at this time the way that you see it,
The time for live is all wrong.

But keep on loving me forever my darling,
For one day you soon shall see,
All the love in my heart that's waiting, sweet lover,
Till the moment I can set it free.

MIDNIGHT DANCE

Look how she dances on the lamp lit street
Feet tapping gracefully to an internal beat.
Tap tip tap, dum di dum.
As if her soul was an African drum.
Her "ELEGANCE" exceeds the mount Kilimanjaro.
Her "GRACE" beats the maidens of Pharaoh.
From her calm came storm
And I indulged her dark skin's parade.
What once was a timid form
Became an adventurous cascade.
Just a girl swaying
With the stars as her guide.
Knowing and saying
"My ancestors did the same with pride."

by
Errol Cockfield.

THE STAR

I praise your name,
You have won fame,
For now you are a star.
Now in the sights and pretty lights,
I worship you from afar.
Once you were so close to me,
We had the whole world in our hands,
But now your fans have taken you away,
And it's more than I can stand.
We had a loving courtship,
That was sweet and so devine,
I thought your love would be with me,
Till the very end of time.
I know this is what they say,
I should have known it would be true,
For now I miss the one I love,
And my heart keeps wanting you.

RESEACH SCIENTISTS CREATE NEW MELANIN PILLS

By: Dr. Y. T. Man

Six research scientists at Harvard University has developed a pill that produces melanin in the skin of people suffering from melanin deficiency. Scientists hope that the pill will be an alternative to sunbathing. This way the high level of skin cancer related deaths and sun burn cases can decrease.

This is a medical breakthrough in modern medicine. The idea for this new drug came from a 1980s movie called Soul Man. A movie where a young white high school graduate, uses pills to make himself appear "Black," to qualify for a minority-based college scholarship. Now that being "Black" is in style in America and aboard, these scientists plan to capitalize on the beauty of being "Black."

Researches at Harvard have already tested the drug in America and Europe and demand for the drug is high.

Do not be surprize if you see on shelves in drug stores near you a product called "Black is Beautiful." This package will be released in 1992. Enclosed will be the melanin pills, the do-it-yourself-Collagen-Needle-Injections to make your lips thick and more synthetic medicine / devices to make the buttocks more rounder. Coming soon...MELANIN at a discount store near you.

"As beauty standards change, some White women are seeking large, voluptuous lips with injections and cosmetics"

"First they took our music, now they want our lips! What next?

This is a common lament in Black America today--from urban centers to suburbia to Hollywood. As the media shout the names of White stars with generous lips and those purported to have had their lips enlarged with injections, one cannot help but wonder what the heck is going on.

NO...I DO NOT THINK SO!

ABRACADABRA

From White to BLACK

For decades now, but especially in recent years, an increasing number of White entertainers have tried to adopt our musical style and imitate our rhythm, and some of them have been commercially successful (Elvis Presley, Tom Jones, Madonna, George Michael, Michael Bolton, New Kids On The Block, and Vanilla Ice, to name a few). Moreover, in an effort to be fashionably tan, many pale-skinned Whites have severely damaged their skin and risked cancer by lying in the sun until they have turned darker than many of the Black people they still consider inferior.

And now they want our lips!

Our lips? Surely not the same lips that were ridiculed in racist caricatures throughout the centuries? Not the same lips that until recently kept beautiful Black women off the pages and covers of slick women's magazines? Not the lips that were the butt of racist jokes in millions of living rooms, boardrooms, ballrooms and private dining rooms? The same lips that were maligned so savagely that some Blacks were ashamed of them? Yes, it is those same big, luscious lips that are now all the rage, so much so that White women are running to doctors, begging to have their thin bird lips enlarged...."

HERE'S HOW TO ORDER

"...There are a number of ways lips can be augmented, and the most popular method appears to be with collagen injections, which cost between $1,500 and $2,500. After a sensitivity test, the lips are deadened with novocaine shots, followed by collagen injections that make the lips plump up. The doctor then squeezes the lips into the desired shape before the collagen sets. For a week the lips are swollen.

"Some women take a further step and undergo the Paris Lip routine, which involves additional collagen injections that are supposed to give a more defined Cupid's bow. The procedure costs an additional $300 to $600.

"Collagen is a natural substance made from bovine (cow) protein. Some people are allergic to it, but the most are not. The collagen harmlessly dissipates into the body within three to six months, depending on the individual.

"Dr. Hicks, the Black plastic surgeon, says he prefers to augment lips with fat from the patient's abdomen, which is more readily accepted by the body. He says he only had one Black patient who wanted larger lips. "She had fair skin, very thin lips and actually looked Caucasian," he says. "She wanted fuller lips, cheeks and nose."

"A third method to enlarge lips use silicone injections, which Dr. Hicks does not recommend. "There are just too many problems with silicone," he says. "It travels around in the body, becomes firm and hard, and can cause some tissue destruction. And it is difficult to remove once injected".

ANALYSIS OF C.P. TIME

By Nicole Yvette Highbaugh

You are probably asking yourself what is "C.P. Time?" C.P. Time stands for "colored people" time. Why? African Americans, who the whites have for years called "colored", seemed to always arrive or start something late. This term has been given to us, and for years, African Americans have fought to get rid of this image. But it is still happening, not only in New York City, but also here at Stony Brook.

There have been many events held at Stony Brook sponsored by Black organizations that have started later than the time printed on their signs. For example, on December 1, 1989, there Kwanzaa was to be held at the U.N.I.T.I. Cultural Center. According to the posters that were put up, the event was supposed to start at 6:00 P.M. It did not begin until almost two hours later. The host of the event told the audience that the reason for the holdup was because the dance troupe that was scheduled to perform did not arrive yet. Even when they did arrive, almost an hour and a half later, the show still didn't start until another half hour wait.

In 1990, there was a reggae show starring Shelly Thunder and Sister Carol. The show was supposed to start at around 8:30 P.M. The show started almost two hours later. The reason, according to one of the security guards was because the band members did not arrive yet. In the meantime, many students, most of them ticketholders, were getting restless and fed up. Fortunately, there was no violence.

Last semester, the Malik Sigma Psi Star Search which was supposed to start at 8:00 P.M., started almost an hour later. Even the Black History Month Semi-Formal on February 23, 1991, which was supposed to begin at 7:00 P.M. started late. That was the time they put on the posters. That was the time decided by the Sponsors. So what happened? At 7:00 P.M., the program did not start. Then it was 8:00 P.M. and still no show. People who were arriving were angry and restless. Some, like myself, ran from their rooms, missing dinner just to make it to the event on time, only to starve for hours.

The semi-Formal did not start until ten o'clock, three hours late. The event was enjoyable, as well as the food and music, but by the time the event ended and the floor was being converted into a dance floor, many people left because they were too tired and too angry to stay.

All of these events have two things in common. First of all, they were all sponsored by Black, or African-American organizations. Second of all, they all started very late. African-Americans have complained that they don't like being branded with "C.P. Time", but if these organizations don't get their act together and start their events on time, some if not all of their events will fail.

If you want to get rid of this C.P. terminology, get your acts together and start your events on time. When you say that your events are going to start at 8:00 P.M., for example, do not start setting up your props and letting people in at that time. When the events start late, especially an hour late, people get fed up and leave. C.P. Time is nothing but a curse that will be with us as long as we live unless we stop beginning our events late.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THANKS TO THE MISS C.S.O. CONTESTANTS

To The Miss C.S.O. 1991 contestants,

On behalf of Gail Hemans, Martine Hall, C.S.O. board and it's members, we would like to thank you for making the 1991 pageant so successful. We thank you for your patience, time and dedication.

Even though you encountered some frustrating times, you stuck with us and that means more to us than you will ever know. I hope that every contestant will let this campus know that C.S.O. is not what people proclaim it to be, a bully.

I want to thank each and everyone of you for the friendship and growth we developed over the past month and a half. In my eyes, we had ten winners, not one. Congratulations to you all my Miss C.S.O. 1991. Miss Guyana wear your crown with great pride.

CONCERNS OVER R.H.A.

To whom it may concern,

During the week before R.H.A. was to conduct the vote on forced consolidation I spoke to Ruthie Ginsburg who is the president of R.H.A. and the chairperson of the room rate review committee. At that time she told me that the vote was to take place during the following week and she showed me exactly what the R.H.A. representatives would read in reference to forced consolidation for the residents to vote on. Upon reading this information, I noticed the following problems.

1) Residents would not be given the opportunity to vote for or against forced consolidation itself. We would be only be given the opportunity to vote for or against double singles which would incorporate forced consolidation. Residents should have the opportunity to vote for or against double singles and then if double singles are to be made available, residence should vote whether or not forced consolidation should be incorporated into the double single policy.

2) What the R.H.A. representatives were to read indicated that not having forced consolidation would cost residents an additional $19 a semester. In reality this is the cost of not having a double single policy at all.

3) According to R.H.A. if double singles were not to be made available it would cost students an extra $19 a semester. They also said that this $19 amounts to an 8 1/2% increase in rent. It in fact amounts to only a 1 1/2% increase ( $19/1250 = .0152$ ).

I pointed these problems out to Ruthie and she told me that she agreed with me. She asked me to rewrite the material, separating the double single vote from the forced consolidation vote. She told me that if I did this she would use the version that I write for the vote. I did what she asked me to do but she disregarded what I wrote and still used the original version.

I don't know why she disregarded the material that I wrote but what really puzzles me is that she went ahead and conducted the vote using the 8 1/2% figure. Since I showed her the mistake it could not simply have been a careless mistake. It seems to me that it was an intentional attempt to mislead the residents and to manipulate the outcome of the vote.

Yours truly,
David Robin

REFLECTIONS ON THE WAR

By Nicole Yvette Highbaugh

When news that the war in the Persian Gulf was over arrived, there was joy and pain. Some families learned that their loved ones were killed while other families waited for the return of the troops.

As the war ended, many people were excited to see that there was not a large number of fatalities. The troops in the Gulf are coming home, not only to their families and friends, but also to a nation in recession.

Yes, this is a nation in recession, a recession made worse by the war. Many jobs are being cut because of the budget problem. Many educational programs, especially at institutions like the University at Stony Brook, are either being cut or on the verge of being cut, to ease the budget gap. And while the jobs and programs are being eliminated the cost of tuition, food and other necessities are going up. Several students are withdrawing from campus because they and/or their parents can no longer afford the thousands of dollars to get an education.

When the ground war began on February 23, families who had loved ones in the war stood by and waited for word on any injuries or fatalities. It was very scary. The most frightening part about this war was that most of the troops were under thirty years of age. Not only were engineers, school teachers and construction workers in the war, but there were also college students, some of them in their final year, who now had to put their plans on hold.

Just as the nation was preparing for the worse, it happened. The Persian Gulf War was over and the troops were coming home to their families. People praised President Bush for stepping in and "saving" Saudi Arabia. He delivered a state address recently and received a standing ovation. He was credited with saving Kuwait and winning the war.

The ironic thing about this whole ordeal is that next year is 1992, the year voters in this nation get to re-elect Bush, or elect a new president of the United States. It seemed somewhat coincidental that this war started and ended this year. It is also ironic that Bush is the one that praised the troops and said that he supported them when in fact he put them there.

Many students, including students of the University at Stony Brook reacted to the news of the war being over. Kimberly Obermeyer, a sophomore, felt relieved that the war is over and proud to be an American. "I feel we gained something and we can leave Vietnam behind. I fell bad for the people in Iraq because it was Saddam [Hussein], not them," she said.

She also felt that Bush used this war to boost his popularity for the 1992 campaign. "Even though I don't agree with him on everything," she said, "I felt it was a good move. He was lucky that there were few American casualties. I supported him but I hope he doesn't do it again. If the war would have lasted longer, it would have hurt his chances [of re-election]."

Kim is one of the several students on this campus that supported the decision to fight in the Persian Gulf. Of course, there were several students who were against it. Amira Dickerson, a sophomore transfer from Hunter College said who was born in Saudi Arabia, "A lot of my close friends and family live in Saudi Arabia. A huge burden was taken off my shoulders.

"Now that the war is over, I'm able to breathe a sigh of relief. He [Bush] wants everyone to believe that he is the one that saved the Middle East," Dickerson said. "He should have minded his own business. He was not the one who won the war, Schwartzkopf and his troops were."

President Bush took a huge risk sending thousands of troops to the gulf to fight one man, Hussein. He was very lucky that most of the troops are not only coming home alive but also coming home in one piece. I wonder how he would feel if he was over there fighting with SCUD missiles flying over his head, wondering if he would ever see his family again.

What he did was stupid. He just had to get into somebody else's business and try to be God of this planet. And for what? OIL!? He wants to solve the problems and save something, then save this nation. People are losing jobs. Universities are shutting down. Programs are being cut. Students trying to get a decent education are being put out on the streets because they can no longer afford the tuition that rose because of this sick war. But Bush wants to be a hero now so that next year, when the voters line up at the polls, they will remember how he "saved" a country from being destroyed by Saddam Hussein.

It angers many students, including myself, that he would go to such lengths to help his popularity. So allow me to state to all voters that when you vote in the 1992 Presidential Elections, remember that he pulled your sons and daughters out of school to fight in this war. Once you realize this, then you might see Bush's plan to boost his popularity so that once again he would rule this nation.

To all the troops coming home, especially U.S.B. students, WELCOME HOME!

IS THERE A DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE 60's & THE 90's

By Howdy Buford

These days in America seem to be trying times for most. Yet, it is a common belief that all is well in the great melting pot. I commonly hear phrases such as "it's much better now than it was years ago," and "we've come so far with race relations." Maybe I am just narrow minded and seek all the negatives and overlook the positives. But from what I see, there is no difference between 1990 and 1960. Let us look at some of the main issues in the sixties and compare them to the issues of the nineties.

1. Civil Rights
2. Police Brutality
3. Education

Let us start with the Civil Rights movement. What did the Civil Rights movement of the 1960's accomplish? African people are now allowed to ride in the front of the bus. Oh yeah, we can vote too, but hardly ever for a person that looks like us. The Civil Rights movement was funded, aided, and run by the American government. That's funny, because that was whom the movement was supposed to be against. Let us take for example the March on Washington. The March was intended to shut down the city of Washington for a day. Blacks had planned to lie down on the runways of airports, not go to work and just have total Black solidarity. What actually happened was something totally different. The American government sent its puppet leaders to get in charge of the March. To quote Malcolm X, they knew it was "Too Black, Too Strong." Once in charge of the March (to paraphrase Malcolm) "they told the niggers what signs to carry, what time to arrive, what time to leave, and what songs to sing - it was turned into a picnic." The fake Civil Rights movement has currently hampered the '90's Civil Rights movement because everybody thinks everything is okay. One more thing - George Bush felt it right to veto a 1990 Civil Rights Bill and Congress was debating throwing out Affirmative Action.

We all know about the police brutality of the 1960's, but most seem to overlook this 1990 version of lynching. Back then it was water hoses, dogs, sticks, and guns. Today it is stun guns, billy clubs, and more guns. Phillip Pannel was gunned down with his back turned, because he supposedly had a shiny object in his hand. Tawana Brawley was exploited when her name appeared in the media. Rape victims' names are supposed to be kept confidential. I bet none of us ever heard the Central Park joggers name. Finally, less than a week ago, Rodney King (in California) was stunned with a stun gun, hit with billy clubs, and kicked and punched. Little did these police officers know that their attack was being videotaped from a nearby apartment. How many of these incidents do not get reported or videotaped? Will we ever know?

Education has been the most subtle form of keeping Blacks in our current situation. Brown vs. The Board of Education in 1954 outlawed the deprivation of education by means of skin color. So what the powers of our country decided to do was leave out Black history, causing low self-esteem. You won't get Black history in high school. You might get it in college (if your university has an Africana studies program), if you decide to take an African history course. In actuality there shouldn't be an African history department. There should be a History department, that deals with the whole spectrum. Not just European, not just American, not just African, and so forth. It has never been like that and I guess it never will.

To me there is no difference between the 1960's and the 1990's. In fact, I am ready to say that the nineties may be a little worse than the sixties. I make this statement on these grounds - What is worse the fox or the wolf? The fox is much worse because it is sly, it is tricky, with the wolf you know what you are dealing with. In the sixties Africans in America knew what they were up against thus they knew what they had to do to survive. In the nineties, racism is much more behind the scene than it was thirty years ago. In the nineties Africans in America are getting hit in the back. Who is to say that the nineties are better than the sixties? White America, when will you stop condoning the Black ghetto? When will you stop feeding drugs and guns into our community? All in all, the only difference between 1990 and 1960 is that the 6 is inverted.

STUDY FOR MORE THAN JUST C's

By Frances M. Lewis

This campus is plagued by a serious problem. The problem that I am referring to goes even beyond the problem about a person's night activities mysteriously ending up on the gossiping tongues of the Stony Brook Union dwellers. This problem is more thought provoking and disappointing than who slept with whose boyfriend's other girlfriend's brother last semester!

The problem is that many students are not trying to obtain all of the benefits that college can offer. Many of us are guilty of studying just enough... or at least trying...

to get passing grades. Why does it seem that so few are actually trying to excel in their college studies? Inquiring minds want to know, so I am asking- Are we guilty of studying just enough to get those average grades or are we trying to excel?

I have asked a few people of their opinion about this shameful situation. I have received some interesting responses. Dwana Farrell is among the lucky few on this campus that have an excellent group of friends that are focused on their college careers. Dwana feels that students are trying to excel. "I haven't met anyone who isn't studying hard. Everyone I know really studies hard until early hours of the morning. I think they are really trying to take advantage of their opportunities." My roommate, Eiba Bello, says that studying enough to get by is not good enough for her. "I need to know that I tried my best for my own satisfaction. Just getting by means getting C's. I want to get better than average grades-- especially if I am to go to medical school". Raymond Carr and Doris Munoz are freshmen this year but, these individuals are very aware of what is happening on this campus. Carr says, "...the same efforts that I had in high school have to be more developed to meet up with the standards of the college work load". "In college, you can't get away (with just studying enough). The students are just hurting themselves. In high school you can get away with it because you are not facing the world", says Munoz.

Students have to remember that college is not grades 13 thru 16. Most of you watch television Thursday nights. This is a "Different World," not a happy-go-lucky extension of the wonder years of high school! Why settle for a C when a possible grade of a B or an A is probably a missed Tokyo Joe's party and three extra hours of studying away? Turn off the television set and think about this. Better yet, send the T.V. home and open those books!

IS THERE A WAY OUT?

By Joseph T. Wilson

There are much more civil wars and civil unrests in Third World countries than we can imagine (Asia: India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka, etc. Africa: Ethiopia, Somalia, Sudan, Chad, Liberia, etc.) Africa has the most by far. Is there a way out? The derivation of these civil unrests has an external factor, foreign aid.

The world is divided into two blocs: the Eastern bloc and the Western bloc. The leader of the Western bloc (France, Canada, Great Britain, etc.) is the United States of America and the leader of the Eastern bloc (Romania, Poland, Hungary, etc.) is the Union of the Soviet Socialist Republic (U.S.S.R.). Each of the blocs has followers they refer to as allies. Every year, each bloc appropriates large sums of funds for their so-called allies in the name of foreign aid that goes with one condition- the recipient of foreign aid cannot castigate the foreign policy of the donor country, no matter what the policy is. Violation of this rule is considered a grave offense. The penalty for violators termination of foreign aid, or interference into the internal affairs of the recipient country, or both. A country that refuses to accept foreign aid gets black-listed by both blocs.

A huge percentage of foreign aid from the Western bloc is appropriated for food items. If a country agrees to accept this so-called economic aid, it must also agree not to undertake any project that will make it self-sufficient in food production. The rationale is to make the recipient country a welfare state. Assuming the donor country succeeds in its conversion policy, it will always use that welfare status to create instabilities (political and economical) in the created welfare state- hunger. This in turn leads to civil unrest, too many people have too little to eat.

The Eastern bloc, unlike the Western bloc, does not make the recipient of its foreign aid a welfare state. It makes it a military state. It supplies everyone with guns. You can imagine what this leads to, a lawless state.

Until the leaders of all the Third World countries can put some heads on their shoulders, it is goin' to be c-h-a-o-t-i-c for a l-o-n-g time to come.

THE C.S.O. PARADE IS COMING

By Alemtsai Robinson

(done in an interview with Lester Nicholson)

The Caribbean Student Organization (C.S.O.) Parade, a yearly event, will be held on April 19, 1991 right here at the University at Stony Brook. The event is scheduled to take place from 11 A.M. to 5 P.M. Scheduled events include the Silhouette Steel Orchestra performing from the Fanny Brice parking lot. They will play in front of the Administration building and finish-up with a bang in the Union. During the steel band's performance around campus, participants will be parading around in their lovely costumes (something can be made with a charge of $15).

Besides the steel band, there will be a D.J. at the Fireside lounge to keep everyone in the swing of things. In order to make the day fun and enjoyable there will be a Reggae and Calypso contest in which prizes will be given out to the winners. But that's not all, there will also be tables set up with many crafts, T-shirts, books and souvenirs to be sold. We the members of C.S.O. hopes that everyone can come out and celebrate with us because we need your support.

SAVE TODAY'S YOUTH

by Emeka Smith

Racism today is more institutionalized than ever before. This statement makes sense when you realize that America was practically built on racism (i.e. slavery). The white racist power structure has designated the Police Department as the "guardians" of their fortune. The Police Department's function is to serve and protect their "employers" and at the same time oppress anybody else that tries to improve their way of life or standard of living.

Huey P. Newton spoke correctly when he said that, "the police are nothing more than the military wing of your oppressor."

Firstly, we must understand who is on our side in our revolutionary struggle. History has clearly shown us that the Police Department is among the enemy. They have never been able to protect the lives, rights and property of African Americans in this country. From day one until this day, they have been the number one racist, corrupt, intimidating and backward force in the Afro-

American community. It is Uncle Sam's intention to keep us nothing less than in an occupied, ghettoized police state, with "our boys in blue" as the local spies, drug dealers, and modern-day slave drivers. Proof of this can be supported by the fact that in early 1990 the N.J. State Police (who are as crooked as a boomerang and notorious for their brutal treatment of Afro-Americans) were called into the city of Newark, N.J. to help "control" the drug situation.

Since Afro-Americans are at the bottom of society's status poll and feel the brunt of racism (as we always have), we are the ones who fight the system the hardest. The harder we fight the system, the harder the system fights us. The primary focus of the Police Department's assault on the Black community is the Black youth. The powers that they realize that the Black youth will be at the vanguard of the nation's next strong thrust of revolutionary activity. We can expect nothing less than the "royal treatment" that we have received thus far.

A LOOK AT M.E.A.S.

By Tracey Creese

There are many college freshman and sophomores who would like to pursue careers in the engineering and science fields. However, when they realize just how difficult the workload can be, some end up falling out of the major. Let's face it, the engineering major has a very demanding course load. With courses like Calculus, Physics and technical courses in Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, it can be overwhelming. You must also satisfy the University requirements to graduate. Some students need the academic and moral support to help pursue their goals in these fields. M.E.A.S. (Minorities in Engineering and Applied Sciences), is a club geared to help minority students make a successful transition to pursue their goals.

The focus of M.E.A.S. is to recruit minority students and to retain those already in engineering and applied sciences. They have access to finding job fairs and job placement via the National Society of Black Engineers. They also help to provide group support with study groups among peers and test banks for courses. Through their public relations committee, they can set up job internships with big companies such as General Electric, IBM, and Hewlett Packard. Byron Glasgow is Vice President of M.E.A.S. and discussed his internship with G.E. last summer. He described it as a great educational experience as well as rewarding salary-wise.

He acquired useful skills at the company that gave him an advantage in a software engineering course he took in the fall, while other students learned about it from his internship. As Vice-President, he oversees all the committees and assists the President, Michael Mann in sharing the responsibilities of the club. M.E.A.S. also has workshops on interviewing skills. They have also had guest speakers at the meetings such as Dr. Ferguson, a professor here at Stony Brook, who discussed continuing in graduate school.

M.E.A.S.'s long term goal is to successfully help students graduate in the engineering field. They encourage freshmen and sophomore minority students interested to join. The meetings are held every Wednesday night at 7 P.M. in the Union basement in Room 072.

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF MELANIN?

By Wilfred St. Felix

I recently read an article on the chemical substance called Melanin. For those of us who are not quite certain what Melanin is, it is the chemical substance in the skin that gives us color. The more concentrated Melanin is, the darker the skin appears. The basic function of this chemical is to protect us from the harmful rays of the Sun.

It is apparent that Melanin has been around just as long as people of color have been around but it is just recently that people have taken a deeper interest in it, thus making the discussion of Melanin very controversial. This controversy is partly due to the fact that some people feel that Melanin has more than the function of protection. Some people and scientists alike feel that Melanin must have more than one function. Some of the suspected hidden functions of Melanin include, being able to channel spiritual as well as psychological powers to us. There is also strong belief that Melanic men and women have more brain power. They believe that more knowledge can be obtained and processed, making melanic men smarter. While a number of people believe this, there are others who feel that these beliefs might lead to racist attitudes.

Some other scientists and chemists feel that since the basic function of Melanin is to absorb light, and cells use that light energy to carry information, Black people are able to collect, analyze, and retain more information. Melanin is also believed to be behind the fact that most sports appear to be dominated by people of color. It is believed that Melanin is present in our muscle fibers and in the centers in the brain that controls our motor skills. This Melanin that is present in those areas provides us the ability to react more quickly to physical stimulation.

With all of these theories and assumptions about Melanin surfacing us of late, there are those who feel that Melanin is just a means of protection from the sun's harmful rays and possesses no potential for anything greater, and any attempt to make it anything more is just wishful thinking. They believe that that form of wishful thinking could lead to increased racist attitudes. But, whether these theories are proven or disproven remains to be seen. It is assured, though, that extensive research is being done in order to answer the question: Could Melanin be more than just a means of protection?
