Visitors Fire Shots in Tabler

Police Arrest 7 for Burglary and Assault

By Amelia Sheldon and Irwin M. Goldberg

A gunman with an "Uzi-type" weapon opened fire from a crowd in Tabler Cafeteria after a party there late Saturday night, hitting no one but sending scores of party-goers running for cover, according to witnesses and police reports. Though no one has been charged with the shooting, Suffolk County Police arrested six men and a juvenile in connection with the incident yesterday.

Police arrested seven males on charges stemming from an assault and a burglary that occurred after the shots were fired. Two of the seven are charged with the stabbing of Pedro Mojica, 20, of 131 Charter Oaks Avenue, Brentwood. Officials said Mojica was treated at University Hospital for knife and razor blade lacerations to the face and back. He was released early Sunday morning.

Police charged all seven suspects, none of whom attend SUNY Stony Brook, with burglary in the second degree. Witnesses of the incident Saturday night said those brandishing weapons took stereo equipment as they left the cafeteria. Police are holding sound equipment found in the suspects' car as evidence for the charge, according to police reports. Officers said they have impounded the suspects' car while they wait for a search warrant that would allow them to inspect the trunk for further evidence.

Police arrested Melvin Payne, 17, of 30 Sycamore Avenue, Central Islip and Mark Redmon, 18, of 46 Smith Street, Central Islip, and charged them with second degree assault of Mojica and second degree burglary. Gregory Gray, 18, of 811 Bayview Avenue, Bellport, Bryant Stephens, 17, of 264 Leaf Avenue, Central Islip, Michael Levi, 18, of 843 Avenue, Bayshore, and Laurence Carter, 20, of 32 Rugby Street, Brentwood are charged with second degree burglary. One juvenile was also arrested. The suspects had admitted to visiting SUNY Stony Brook on the night in question, but none have made any statements in answer to the charges, officers said Sunday night.

Reports from witnesses and Public Safety records conflict as to the exact times of the some of the evening's events.

A.A. Sponsors SB Shareathon

by Amy Flateman and Joseph Sallerno

Sobriety, Sanity and Serenity, these were the themes of the 13th annual Shareathon Convention held this Sunday in the Student Union at Stony Brook University. The event was sponsored by The Suffolk Intergroup Association of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Suffolk Intergroup of Alcoholics Anonymous, is an association of A.A. Their job is to help suffering alcoholics recover and to carry a message of hope to those that need help and don't know where to turn.

The event was comprised of a series of individual speakers. The forums included "Spirituality", "Inside a Job", and "Nutrition". Jim H. from Patchogue was a speaker who addressed the topic of "Enjoying Sobriety". While speaking on the benefits of the program, Jim said, "one is able to achieve a new level of self awareness through working within a group instead of going it alone."

"19 years ago I had to travel 25 miles to attend a meeting every night now I only have to travel five," said Pat from the east end of Long Island. There are no fees or dues to pay to belong to a chapter. "It is the cheapest way in the world to get a good life," said Pat. "Alcoholism knows no boundaries," she said. Sadly, this fact was proven true in Pat's own family.

Angered By 'Unethical Recruiting,' Marquette Bans Campus Preaching

Angered by what they call unethical Church of Christ recruiting methods, Marquette University officials have banned all religious groups from proselytizing regularly across the country to visit public campuses. While many students find the preachers, who seek attention by verbally assaulting passersby, obnoxious and disruptive, campus officials sometimes are reluctant to ban them for fear of lawsuits charging them with violating the evangelists' constitutional rights to freedom of speech and religion.

Still, some schools have taken action. Two University of Arizona students, for example, organized a drive to limit the preachers to a "speakers corner" on campus last fall. And in 1984, the University of Virginia - after a volley of threatened lawsuits - limited preachers to certain days, hours and areas of the campus.

Private Catholic schools like Marquette aren't required to let such preachers on campus. Barbara Keebler of the National Catholic Education Association, however, reports she's unaware of other Catholic schools adopting similar policies.

"We don't have that problem," said Seton Hall University spokeswoman Jane Degan of campus preachers. "I'm not aware of any groups that have come on campus to proselytize."

Seton Hall, she said, doesn't try to convert its non-Catholic students, which make up 16 percent of the student body.

Milwaukee Church of Christ officials told the Marquette Tribune, the campus newspaper, that they won't back down because of the ban.

"Whether they formally recognize us or not," said Eric Mansfield, a former evangelist with the church, "we still minister to the needs of our students there."

Judge Upholds Prof's Suspension For Racial Slur

A Georgia Southwestern College professor lost a Sept. 12 court fight to get back into a classroom from which he was barred for calling one of his students a "black bitch."

U.S. District Judge Duross Fitzpatrick ruled that Georgia Southwestern President William Captain could suspend Prof. Allen Towery without pay for fall term as punishment for making the remark in an argument with student Ginerva Dennis about her grade last March.

Towery, Fitzpatrick said, "showed a lack of discipline when he used a particularly egregious expression."

Capitan thought so last March when GSC suspended Towery with pay. In June, a faculty committee recommended that Towery be allowed to teach again in the fall, but Capitan overruled the committee, suspending the professor without pay for the term.

In response, Towery sued GSC, claiming the suspension violated his right to due process and that his career and reputation suffered as the result. He asked for $250,000 in damages and to start teaching again this fall.

Last week's decision followed a hearing of Towery's arguments to overturn his suspension.

"If academic freedom or tenure gives one the right to use expressions in public that are patently offensive to a particular group," Fitzpatrick ruled, "then quite possibly the boundaries of proper conduct should be redrawn."

Shots Send Students Running

According to Hans Sherwood, the dean of pledges for Phi Beta Sigma, Public Safety was called at 1 a.m. to aid in "crowd control," for a large crowd that had gathered outside the cafeteria.

"A Public Safety car came and circled Tabler Quad with its lights on several times and then left," said Sherwood.

Lieutenant Douglas Little of Public Safety said the first call from Tabler came in around 2 a.m. Little added that a car was sent and officers "were there when the incident went down."

Party coordinators said they had begun to close the party down and were asking people to leave the cafeteria around 1:55 a.m. At 2 a.m., a fight broke out between men outside the cafeteria and quickly escalated as "a bunch of guys jumped on one guy," according to Andrew Rhan, a one-time Stony Brook student who witnessed most of the violence.

One of the men involved in the brawl slipped away and reappeared with and fired "a typical Uzi," according to Rhan, who added that the gunman was dressed in camouflage gear and was soon accompanied by about 10 more people who "came out of nowhere with guns."

"Everyone was screaming and running," said Rhan, of the people as the first shots sounded. As the armed group moved inside Tabler Cafeteria shouting "get the f--- out," people hid under tables and in the restrooms, according to witness accounts.

According to Little, Lieutenant Streicher reported gunfire at 2:43 a.m. from his car parked near Dreiser College. Little said a group of 50 to 60 students ran toward Streicher's car as the first shots were fired. Streicher slouched down and reported the incident as the students hid behind his patrol car. Little added, Uzi-type shots can be heard on Public Safety's tape of the call.

"They did not aim the guns at us at all," said Rhan of the gunmen, one of whom entered the men's room and told those gathered there to get out of the building. Rhan said the armed group did not single out and threaten anyone in the building. The gunmen allegedly took some stereo equipment from the cafeteria as they left.

Suffolk County Police said they received the first call at 2:45 a.m. Officers from the Sixth Precinct arrived at approximately 2:53 a.m., according to Little.

According to witnesses, the group fled by car before Police arrived. Police identified the car and its occupants via a police broadcast. Suffolk County Police apprehended the group at Palm Street and Bark Avenue in Central Islip at 3:50 a.m.

"This only shows how much security and precautions we'll have to take next year," said Sherwood. He added that the fraternity planned to continue holding their annual "homecoming event."

University President John Marburger called the incident an extremely grave one. "We cannot say what additional security measures are appropriate," Marburger said, adding that conditions for late night parties will be reassessed.

College Papers Lose Ads

Student Life, published by Time, Inc., hit campuses on September 11.

A new version of Campus Voice, produced by Whittle Communications of Knoxville, Tenn., bowed on more than 300 campuses in August.

The publications threaten to attract national advertising dollars that ordinarily might go to the papers themselves.

While the publications typically publish rehashed or old news - Campus Voices August 29 issue, for example, had a lead story about a year-old crackdown on fraternities at Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania; "U," another of the publications, reruns month-old local stories from campus papers - they take vital national advertising dollars away from student papers.

Mars Candy, AT&T and Lever Brothers, among others, advertised in the August 29 Campus Voice "newspaper on the wall" spending $555,000 each for an annual advertising contract that in years past might have gone to student publications instead.

University of Washington Daily advisor Barbara Krohn noted even CASS - an Evanston, Illinois, ad broker that is supposed to route national ads to campus papers - is publishing a catalog that takes ads away from the student publications it purports to represent.

No one, in fact, knows how much money Campus Voice, Student Life, CASS, U., Ampersand and two just-folded predecessors - Newseek On Campus and Business Week Careers - have drawn from the campus papers in recent years.

A group called College Newspapers Business and Advertising Managers (CNBAM), which tracks campus paper money issues, has no current national advertising data, reported Judy Klein, CNBAM's president.

Klein, advisor to the North Texas State University Daily, said that, while the problem of competing with the national publications has come up at CNBAM meetings, "we have no survey or documentation" of how much it's hurt.

But campus papers themselves say they're not getting as much lucrative national advertising as in the past.

"The amount of money coming to the college market (from national advertisers) has increased," said Eric Jacobs, general manager of the Daily Pennsylvanian at the University of Pennsylvania, "but we're not getting our share."

"The money," he said, "is going to other media."

Jacobs added The Pennsylvanian hasn't enjoyed an increase in national advertising "for five to seven years. The national advertising trend is flat."

"Flat" would be an improvement at Kansas State University where national ad revues have dropped from $36,000 in fall, 1984, to only $11,000 in fall, 1988. Beer ads, lost when Kansas's legal drinking age rose to 21, made a significant part of the difference, said Gloria Freeland, KSU's acting director of publications.

Shareathon at SB

Her college aged daughter recently had her one year anniversary in A.A. Alcohol took over her life, and she lost her college scholarship said Pat.

Attending the "Beginners Workshop", one was struck by the similarity between what goes on at an A.A. meeting and how it has been portrayed in the media. "Hi, my name is Stephanie and I'm an alcoholic..." "Hello Stephanie..." She then spoke on self esteem.

After a long day that included speeches workshops and prayers, the evening ended on a social note. Everyone danced to the music of "Skyline". When asked to sum up the day's activities Pat simply said, "It was great!"

Campus Needs Pro-Active Security Plan

The violence following a party on campus this weekend forces the campus community once again to rethink university security. Each time there is a rape, shooting, or riot on campus, we have handled it as though it was an isolated incident. Each campus-shattering act is made out to be one that would not be repeated, one that never would have happened if one aspect of safety or security were handled differently.

The Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity that sponsored the party Saturday in Tabler Quad kept security tight. Fraternity members frisked and checked all who entered the building with a metal detector for weapons during the event. Their responsible, preventative, measures kept the party safe. Unfortunately, they could not control the activities of the party goers after they left the walls of Tabler Cafeteria.

The fraternity in this case took care of security at its event. The fraternity did its part and that is all we can ask. However, the university must revolutionize its approach to campus safety.

Unfortunately, college campuses are not immune to the plague of crime. A college campus is merely a smaller version of a much larger community. If there are rapes, murders and other crimes outside the college, they will happen (on a smaller scale) on campus too. This is the first realization we must come to; crime is a fact of life and we must learn to deal with its threat on a daily basis. The safety programs this institute endorses and supports should be based on this common denominator. Security measures should not be temporary and used only at specific times, but should exist as a permanent characteristic of the university.

What the university needs is a policy on security that is all encompassing. Anytime a large event is being held on campus, Public Safety should be informed and asked to patrol the area more frequently. In addition, the Suffolk County police department should be notified as to where the event is being held on campus. These two steps will increase the awareness of the authorities and make them more visible. In the event that trouble does arise, the response times would be cut as the location would already be known. As it stands, Suffolk County Police hardly know their way around this campus and often require a Public Safety escort to lead them to a specific spot. In an emergency, this time cannot be spared. This weekend's incident proves that sometimes their ability to get to a location in a short period of time could mean the difference between life and death. If traditional law enforcement agents such as Public Safety and Police Officers were to increase, the news would soon spread around and lead people from off campus to believe they are less likely to get away with any kind of criminal act and therefore not try anything. This is exactly the kind of deterrent that would have been helpful this weekend. Maybe if there were officers visible right at Tabler Cafeteria, nothing would have happened.

At any large party or event, the people attending should be checked for weapons with a metal detector. If a weapon is found, the appropriate authorities should be called and the violator denied access. The incident this weekend proves just how prevalent guns are, and how easily they can be brought on to campus.

However, all of this is still not enough. All nighttime student events such as Tokyo Joe's, End of the Bridge (E.O.B.), and parties should be restricted to students only. Non-students would have to be guests of a specific person residing on campus or be escorted by a commuting student. This would alleviate some of the problems that have arisen in the past with large numbers of off-campus people causing problems at university events.

Maybe, after all this, one could feel safe on campus once again.

Bush and Republican Party to be Vindicated

by David Markey

As a student of History and Political Science, I read Professor David Burner's letter to Statesman ("Campaign Symbols" - October 3) with interest. As a partisan Republican and supporter of the Busch-Quayle ticket, I read it with amusement. But, as an American voter concerned with the fairness and honesty of this year's presidential election, I read the letter with disappointment.

Professor Burner first compares George Bush to Ronald Reagan and concludes that they both "appear to stand for" freedom, sound values and more money." Well, I agree with that comparison as far as it goes, and can only hope that George Bush racks up as many votes as Ronald Reagan did in 1980 or 1984. I think that these two men "appear" to stand for values such as freedom is that that is exactly what they each do stand for, and together, have stood for as President and Vice President for the past eight years. The reason Ronald Reagan was elected in 1980 and again in 1984, and the reason George Bush will be elected in 1988, is that American people also stand for freedom, at home as well as abroad. And Americans do want some sound values and I don't know of any real American who is ashamed to admit to that or to the fact that Ronald Reagan has made a dedication to those values the centerpiece of his administration and to the guiding light of his domestic agenda. As for what "more money" means, I'm not sure. If the good professor means that the Republican party is dedicated to leaving more money where it belongs, namely in the pocketbooks of the hardworking men and women who have earned it, then I can agree with his characterization.

Next, Professor turns to the NRA and describes its members as being a "one issue part of the Republican constituency." This is true, I suppose, but the two major political parties in this country have always acted as umbrellas to a great many different ideas and issues. And after those umbrellas are opened, after the party conventions are over, after the party platforms are written, then the American people have a choice as to which umbrella to stand under. Do they want to stand under a Democratic umbrella that strains to include every special interest group, no matter how unrepresentative of American values they might be? Do they want to stand under a Democratic umbrella that sways with every wind, which tries so desperately to cover those at the ideological fringe that people at the center and in the mainstream aren't covered at all? I think so; Americans know that that's how to get rained on. I think that they would instead rather stand under a Republican umbrella, which includes members of the NRA and other people in the mainstream American life. The right of the people to keep and bear arms is a right guaranteed to every American by the second amendment to the Constitution. The professor knows that, but I guess it wasn't important enough for him to mention. That's alright, some people are selective in their reading of the Constitution; they would prefer the Readers Digest version of that document. In fact, most Liberals that I've encountered seem to think that the Bill of Rights ends with the First Amendment. Perhaps they are unable to concentrate on more than any one type of freedom at a time. That's alright, the rest of us will wait.

"Freedom for Bush Supporters," Professor Burner pleads means the freedom to return to society any portion of the wealth you've taken from it." Not quite. As I've said, the freedom of Americans to keep what they've earned, that their fundamental right to life, liberty and property, these are the values that George Bush is dedicated to. And I'd like to go further. The underlying premise of the professor's statement reveals what is rotten at the core of liberal ideology. For I would submit, a man who earns an income in this country whether he a CEO or an author of text books, does not take anything from society. He may give of his industry or ingenuity. He may give of his intellect or of his inquiring mind. He gives these things freely and by choice. He gives them because it is in the nature of Man to be productive; it is in the nature of man to reach as far as his talents will take him. And when society makes use of the fruits of his productivity, his creativity, he has every right to expect to be compensated by society. If instead, he is thanked for building a better mouse-trap or for writing a more scholarly text by being taxed to death, then he has every right to protest.

The Republican party does stand for freedom, and that includes all freedoms as listed in the Bill of Rights. The Republican party does stand for sound values, the kind of values that are important to American people. And the Republican party does stand for more money, more money in the paychecks of American taxpayers. The Republican party stands for these things, George Bush stands for these things, and the American people stand for these things. On November 8th, each will be vindicated.

Pats Lose 13-7 to C.W. Post

By Ken Ilchuk

Paul Klyap lay motionless on the field. He had been hit so hard it didn't look like he would be able to get up. But he did. Then he came back out and finished the game.

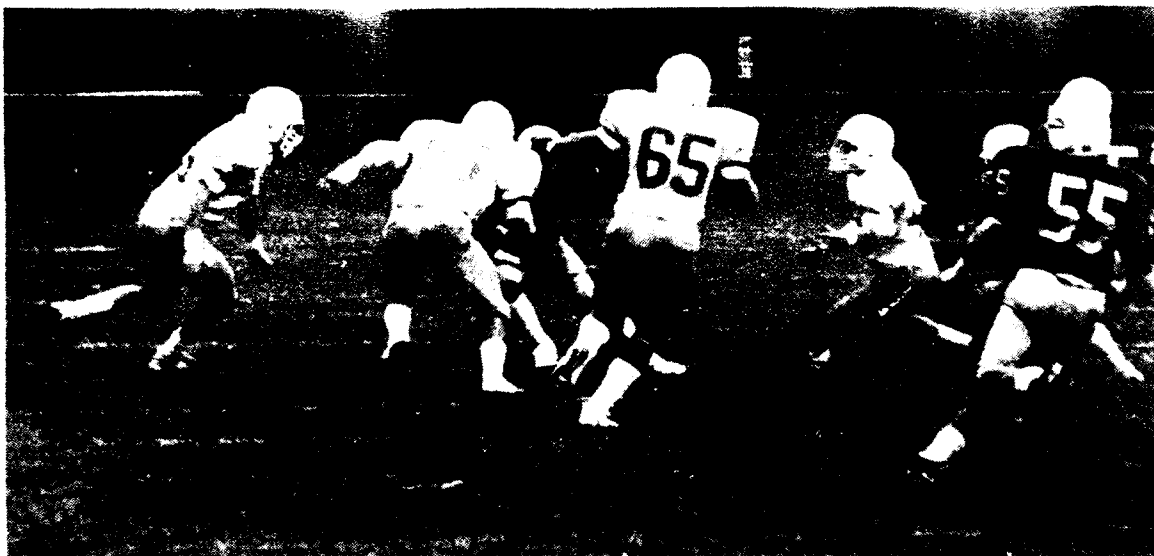

It was several anxious minutes before Klyap got up from an extremely hard illegal hit, that came after he had signaled for a fair catch on a punt return. The strength and character Klyap showed was a reflection of the way Stony Brook played on Saturday. Unfortunately, strength and character wasn't enough as the Patriots fell to C.W. Post 13-7.

The Patriots survived the first half despite an offense that produced only 44 yards total offense, and 7 penalties that cost them 43 yards. Stony Brook QB Randy Kopp was intercepted twice, and freshman Joe Moran was intercepted once.

Two of those interceptions came at key points in the game. The first came one play after Al Bello recovered a fumble in Pioneer territory. The last interception started a Post drive that included the only defensive blemish of the game: a 60-yard TD run.

The Patriots only trailed 10-0 at halftime, but they had begun to come unraveled. They arrived for the second half with some new-found energy though, and went on to play their most intense football of the year. "Coach had a big halftime speech," said senior Peter Seccia. "He really got us fired up."

Again, it was the Stony Brook defense that got things started. After a blocked pass by Michael Halkitis, a tackle in the backfield by Al Bello, a sack by Robert Hutchinson, the Stony Brook defense came up with its biggest play of the game. Defensive lineman Tony Cox blocked the ensuing punt and recovered it on the Pioneers 6 yard-line. Two plays later, freshman Mike Lugo ran it into the end-zone, and Bob Burden added the extra point to pull the Patriots within three.

No. 55 Al Bello has been a standout on defense for the Patriots this season.

Statesman/Mark Levy

The offense couldn't make anything happen though. The offensive line came under scrutiny as they were called for illegal motion five times. Stony Brook gained only 45 yards on the ground, and QB Dan Shabbick, who started the second half, was sacked 5 times.

The defense was led by Chris Cassidy, who had 11 tackles, Burden (9 tackles), and Bello (8 tackles, fumble recovery). Robert Hutchinson and Doug Foster also played very well. "The defense played a great game," said Seccia. "I don't know what else we could have done." The Patriots really dug in their cleats, and held the Pioneers on a goal-line stand, giving up only a field goal. "The defense did play well," Tri-captain Al Bello said, "but we win as a team, and we lose as a team. We have to put it all together."

The Patriots have five games left to put it all together. They still must face conference rivals Pace and USMMA, as well as defending Liberty Conference champs, Fordham. "This team has a lot of heart; no one here is giving up," said Bello. "All we can do is get up for next week."

This team has been commended for its heart, character, and its toughness. Unfortunately, those things don't win games. Points do. Right now, that's all the Patriots need.

V-Ball Team Finishes Strong in Tourney

By Andy Russell

For the Lady Pats Volleyball Team, it would have been easy to call it quits. After losing two tightly-contested matches in the first day of this weekend's Stony Brook Invitational, the Lady Pats had to be discouraged. But showing true grit and character, they came back to finish in third place.

The Lady Pats (10-4) opened the round-robin tourney on Friday in fine fashion by clobbering Western Connecticut 15-2, 15-3. Things appeared to be going their way. Then they ran into tougher competition.

NYU and Binghamton who finished first and fourth, respectively, engaged the Lady Pats in two of the most entertaining matches of the tournament. After defeating NYU 15-10 in the first game of their match, the Lady Pats saw their opposition come on strong. NYU started to play dominating defense, digging everything the Lady Pats could hit at them. After nipping Stony Brook 15-11 in the second game, NYU pulled away at the end of the match, winning the third game 15-7.

Things only got tougher for the Lady Pats. After dropping the first game in their match with Binghamton, 15-8, the Lady Pats started to mount a comeback. They edged Binghamton 15-12 in the second game, and the third game was a tooth-and-nail battle. Unfortunately for the Lady Pats, Binghamton prevailed by a score of 16-14, sending the Lady Pats home for the evening on a sour note.

But as Head Coach Terry Tiso pointed out the next day, the problem was not with the Lady Pats effort. "We played hard yesterday, we just had to bring our intensity up," she said.

And bring their intensity up they did. They easily defeated second-place finisher Nazareth 15-6, 15-7 in their first match on Saturday, and then went on to rout Ithaca 15-6, 15-3. In their final match in the tourney, the Lady Pats showed they could win a close one, defeating Hunter 13-15, 15-11, 15-5. The second game was really a squeaker, as the game was tied at 11-11.

Although the SB-Hunter match had no bearing on the tourney standings, since NYU had already sewn up first place with a 5-1 record, it did have its importance for other reasons. "Hunter is always one of the stronger downstate teams. It's important for the rankings," said Tiso.

The Lady Pats were led in the tourney by Ellen Chang (who made the all-tournament team), Janet Benson and Nancy Streiber. Benson in particular caught her coach's eye. "Janet Benson is establishing herself as a power hitter," said Tiso.

In assessing her team's performance over the weekend, Tiso feels that the Lady Pats are just where they ought to be at this point in the season. "We're over the hump, now it's just a matter of how hard we work in practice."

Reed, Mathis Lead Patriots Runners

by Edith Vilardi

The mens cross country team took third this past weekend at the Connecticut College Invitational. The weather conditions were poor and the men ran on an extremely challenging 5 mile course. Bill Reed lead the team with his strong 4th place finish in a time of 28:41. He was followed by Tony Parrado (29:59), Matt Manning (31:09), Tom Madden (31:35), Mike Jensen (32:25), Dan Griffen (32:29), and Eric Olsen (33:01).

Other notable performances were by Hank Shaw, Allen Leung, and Parveen Singh.

Coach Steve Borbet stated: "the men ran very well considering the conditions and the fact that I'm missing two of my top men."

The team ran in a field of 69 runners and finished third with 88 points. They competed against such teams as SE Mass, Connecticut College, Vassar, and Fairfield.

The womens team took first at the Invitational. The team was lead by Claudette Mathis who won her first cross country invitational ever in a time of 20:38. She was followed by Edith Vilardi (20:43), Kim England (21:39), Nina Nurula (22:37), Meegan Pyle (22:43), Tina Smith (22:59), and Julie Algase (23:35). Other strong performances were by Ann Marie Dinini, Nahid Wakili, Diane Reeve, and Nicole Levitt.

Coach Steve Borbet stated: "I am happy the girls rebounded after last week's race."

There was a field of 65 runners and the women took first with 56 points. They ran against such teams as Connecticut College, SE Mass, Wheaton, and Vassar. There were eight teams all together.

Pats Soccer Takes On Southampton Tuesday at 3:30

Pats Results

The men's soccer team (3-10) lost both games they played in this weekend's Stony Brook Invitational. They lost to Muhlenberg 3-0 in the first round, and then lost to Haverford in the consolation game by an identical score. Muhlenberg won the championship, defeating Albany 1-0.

The women's soccer team (8-3) defeated Kean 5-1 on Friday. Lisa Shaffer had 3 goals, while Lisa Paladino and Flor Melgar each had one.
