Violence Strikes Seabrook Plant

Seabrook, New Hampshire (AP) — Hundreds of anti-nuclear protesters repeatedly assaulted the Seabrook atomic power plant yesterday but were repulsed by state troopers and National Guardsmen using fire hoses, Mace and a smoke-spewing generator.

Waves of demonstrators twice assaulted the fence surrounding the construction site and tore down sections of it before being repelled in the renewed attempts to take over the facility.

More than 1,000 demonstrators then massed at the plant's main gate, where helmeted troopers and Guardsmen turned fire hoses on them and unleashed a stream of smoke from a generator.

The protesters, clad in rain slickers and plastic sheets, put their backs up against the main gate fence, defying authorities to move them. Utility workers emptied two water trucks into the crowd, but they stood their ground.

An early attempt fizzled, but then 500 demonstrators arrived in two groups and managed to rip down sections of the fence. They were dispersed by police as National Guardsmen stood by.

At least two people were taken into custody, and police confiscated gas masks and other paraphernalia.

Earlier, a squad of 25 helmeted troopers moved 200 yards outside a chain-link fence and confronted about 75 protesters as they built a pontoon bridge across a tidal inlet in the marshland.

Troopers sprayed the demonstrators with Mace and tossed crowd-control canisters while two boat crews of state fish and Game officers used jack-knives to slash the truck tire inner tubes used to support the bridge.

The governor's office said the police used tear gas, but later said it was only smoke.

Some demonstrators stood in three feet of water, unsuccessfully trying to block the police from sinking the bridge. Others scurried to high ground.

1,400 Attend Hauppauge Rally

By JACK MILLROD and ROY MURPHY

The crowd chanted "No Nukes," sold buttons and T-shirts, and singers and speakers decried the evils of nuclear power, but yesterday afternoon's "Stop Shoreham" rally at the county center in Hauppauge left its organizers with mixed emotions.

The crowd of about 1,400 fell far short of the 10,000 expected and was certainly dwarfed by the hundreds of thousands of protesters who turned out for demonstrations in Washington, D.C., Shoreham, New York City and Seabrook. At the same time, though, it was clear that those at yesterday's rally were attracted by issues, not big rock groups.

A number of notable anti-nuclear speakers, including author and environmental science professor Barry Commoner, addressed the enthusiastic crowd, assembled in support of the 160 facing charges in connection with the June 3 occupation of LILCO's Shoreham plant. Songwriter Don McLean performed, but there were no famous names of past protests, like Crosby, Stills, and Nash, Jackson Browne, or Pete Seeger there to attract a larger turnout.

Instead, the demonstrators assembled outside the county courthouse where the demonstrators arrested at Shoreham may be tried by Judge Rockwell Colaneri for political reasons, said rally organizers of the SHAD Alliance.

Spirits were high as Commoner proclaimed, "Nuclear power is expensive because it's dangerous; it's dangerous because it's a stupid way to boil water." Speaking with reporters shortly after his address, he said he was not worried about the turnout. "I believe that nuclear power is going to fall of its own weight."

Dormitory Tripling Lasts Indefinitely

By ARTHUR ROTHSCHILD

Approximately 80 of 1,125 freshmen who are tripled in the residence halls will remain tripled for the duration of the semester, and possibly into next semester, said Residence Life Director Claudia Justy.

Justy, however, said "I hope to have everyone detripled by the end of the semester." She said that there are currently 75 openings for detripling, "but we will continue to detriple week by week as more and more vacancies are reported." The majority of the vacancies are contingent on students withdrawing from the University, she added.

Two-thirds of the current openings are in female residency suites, and the overwhelming majority are outside of G and H Quads, said Assistant Residence Life Director Jerry Stein.

Students will be detripled based upon the date they submitted housing payments and applications.

The unusually severe housing shortage this year is attributed to a growing national trend among undergraduates to live on campus. Due to the increased number of returning campus residents, 300 more freshman are tripled this year than any other previous year.

Last year, when over 850 students lived three to a room, detripling was completed by the second week of September.

As of today, 75 freshman will have received their own offer for "a regular double occupancy assignment" in the mail. The letter offers the recipient one of three options: to accept the assignment, to transfer it to his or her roommate, or to remain tripled until later in the semester when unfilled vacancies still exist. The letter also informs students that if they don't accept the unfilled vacancy on the second time around they will be billed "at the regular double occupancy rate." Tripled students will be compensated for their inconvenience next semester when their housing bills are credited.

Strong Ties

According to G-Quad Director Harold Mendelson, however, many students will decline to be detripled because they do not wish to be relocated to the other side of campus. "Many students have already developed strong ties on their halls and will refuse to be detripled." In that case, the offer will be extended to students in order of priority, until all 75 vacancies are filled.

Nun Attacks Pope's Policy

Washington (AP) — Pope John Paul II received a dramatic and unexpected challenge from a prominent leader of America's Roman Catholic nuns yesterday to admit women to "all ministries of our church," including the priesthood. It was the first time during his week-long U.S. tour that the pope had been confronted personally over the volatile issue of giving women an equal role with men in the Catholic Church.

The pontiff did not respond directly to the plea by Sister Theresa Kane of Washington. With the pope sitting only a few feet away, the president of the Leadership Conference of Women Religious laid down her challenge in a welcoming speech at morning prayer services for 5,000 nuns.

The Conference of Women Religious is an organization of elected and appointed leaders of about 400 women's religious orders in the U.S. Catholic church.

The surprise confrontation took place before television cameras in the ornate, vaulted National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, a shrine that is dedicated to the Virgin Mary.

Firm Stand

By his silence on the issue, the pope stood firm on his declaration in Philadelphia last week that the Catholic church never has, nor can it, nor will it ordain women as priests.

In his remarks yesterday following those of Sister Kane, the pontiff extolled the traditional role of women in the church as teachers, nuns and followers of the Virgin Mary. He admonished his audience of 5,000 nuns to wear their distinctive habits in public and forego modern garb.

During the pope's speech, more than 50 nuns wearing armbands in blue—the color of Mary—rose gradually throughout the audience and stood in silent protest against women's exclusion from sacramental roles in the church.

Some of the protesting nuns said later that Mary was free to answer God's call to bear his son, but that women in the church are not free to answer his call to the full ministry, including the priesthood.

At least one-third of his audience wore ordinary clothing. Sister Kane herself wore a brown suit and beige blouse. After her speech, she knelt before the pope, who laid his hand on her head in blessing.

NEWS DIGEST

International

Greece - A Swissair jetliner with 142 passengers and 12 crewmembers on board caught fire yesterday night after landing at Athens international airport, a Swissair employee reported.

The employee was unable to determine how many persons on the aircraft were injured or whether anyone was killed. Witnesses saw ambulances rushing from the scene as flames swept the aircraft.

High winds were reported at the airport at the time of the incident, officials said. The plane landed and witnesses said flames started shooting out of its undercarriage as it attempted to brake to a stop, finally coming to a halt at the end of the runway.

National

San Francisco - A sniper, whose wild shooting virtually shut down San Francisco's busy Civic Center district for some 23 hours, claimed his attack was the result of a "bad trip" on drugs, a woman who talked to him said yesterday.

Hostage Taken

A Berkeley woman who said she knew the man who called himself "Chief Cherokee," told reporters he telephoned her from jail after the siege and told her he had been on a "bad trip" from taking drugs. The sniper, who had taken a hostage, fired what police estimated was at least 50 shots of mostly .30-caliber carbine ammunition from the 16th floor of a downtown building into surrounding streets. One man, who was a block away from the building, was grazed by a slug but was not seriously hurt.

Los Angeles - Another nationwide gasoline shortage is possible this month, according to the respected industry analyst who accurately predicted "the days of line and hoses" last spring.

Dan Lundberg, publisher of the "Lundberg Letter," said in a telephone interview yesterday that October gas supplies could fall as much as 5 percent below demand.

His prediction last March of an 8.9 percent gap between supply and demand for that month was exactly right, the Department of Energy later said, and ushered in last spring's gas crisis.

were severed Saturday when she was run over by a train at a Conrail train station in New York. The train continued on its way, the crew apparently unaware that the woman had fallen beneath the wheels.

Minorities Rally Over Program

By ALAN PRESTON

More than 250 students rallied in front of the Administration building Friday to protest the University's policy concerning the Department of Africana Studies.

The rally, which was sponsored by a coalition of minority faculty and student organizations, was the result of the recent resignation of Professor Leslie Owens as chairman of the program. Owens resigned because he believed the University established the department as "a phoney program, just to have it on campus. In effect the University was using the program for public relations purposes," Owens said.

Citing inadequate office space, no operating budget, the need for a departmental library and a computer for research, and the lack of an adequate tutorial program, Owens resigned.

The two hour rally began with the campus gospel choir leading the crowd in the Negro National Anthem. The song's final words "let us march on till victory is won," became the rally's theme.

The rally was host for a variety of speakers representing various student organizations. These included the Black Students Union (BSU), Latin-American Students Organization (LASO), the Saints Student Chapter of the Association of Black Social Workers, among others.

One student speaker was applauded when he said "the University can not teach the history of the United States without the teaching of Black History."

Among those at the rally were Brookhaven NAACP President Kenneth Anderson, who held a sign that read "NAACP Supports Africana Studies." He pledged the branch's unequivocal support of the program.

Professor Imamu Amiri Baraka, the rally's first speaker, gave a brief chronology of minority programs and problems in the U.S.

Director of the School of Social Welfare Francis Brisbiano requested that Acting University President Richard Schmidt give the minorities an equal opportunity on this campus.

Schmidt responded by saying he "wanted to be judged by deeds and not promises."

Just a Beginning

Commenting on the rally, Owens said, "I don't really care for demonstrations as such because they usually do not address the real problem. One attends and leaves with the feeling the something was accomplished, when in actuality nothing has been done. I'll be glad if my resignation would be the beginning of the addressing of all problems facing the minorities on campus."

Academic Vice President Sidney Gelber, who attended the rally, said it was successful because it "made others a little more aware of the problems facing the minority students." On Thursday Gelber, Owens and others meet to discuss the need to improve the program. Gelber said that the more immediate problems are being addressed. Those who attended the meeting were assured that by October 10, the office space problem would be solved. The plan entails moving the program to the second floor of the Social and Behavioral Science Building, where there would be adequate space for offices and a library. In addition, a budget submitted by Owens will be re-evaluated.

The University, according to Gelber, has not yet accepted Owens' resignation, and will probably not do so.

Hotline Begins Night Walk Hotline

By JESSE LONDIN

In response to students' fears of walking across campus at night, Polity Hotline, a referral and crisis-intervention service, has organized a student walk service.

The new service, scheduled to begin operation October 15, will, if requested, escort students to any destination on campus. Students requesting escorts can call the hotline between 8 PM and 2 AM seven days a week.

The walkers will travel in pairs, each with a walkie-talkie with which they can immediately contact the Hotline office if any problems arise. Hotline, in turn, can alert campus Security if additional assistance is necessary.

According to Walk Service Director Dawn Schoenberg, applications are being accepted until Thursday from students interested in being walkers. It is undecided whether walkers can be classified as work-study students.

"Physical ability isn't as important as responsibility. I see no reason not to send out two women. The important thing is that each team must be able to work together," said Schoenberg.

"The purpose of this program is to help prevent situations which lead to crimes," Schoenberg asserted. She added, "The walk service will allow students to get around campus without any fears. This will allow students to help other students."

The idea for a walk service is apparently not new. A proposal was made for a similar program by the campus Anti-Rape Task Force which convened last year.

According to Lillian Brennan of the Women's Center, "The Women's Center tried to start this thing but we were never granted funding. Polity said they didn't have the money. We offered to work in conjunction with them but they showed no interest."

It could "alleviate a lot of tension people experience walking around this campus at night," said Brennan.

One Kelly B resident, Janet Cirpriani, said, "For myself, I'm not afraid. But my suitemates won't ever go to the Library alone after dark. I know they would use walk service."

Those interested in the Walk Service should call Polity Hotline at 246-4000.

1,400 Protest Nuclear Power At Hauppauge Rally

About 60 policemen were present, but the 4½ hour rally provoked no unusual incidents and no arrests were made. The mood and intent of the protest differed greatly from the one occurring in far off Seabrook, New Hampshire, where thousands met tear gas, mace and billy clubs when they attempted to occupy the atomic power plant there in a non-violent civil disobedience action. (See related story.)

Stony Brook sent more than 40 protesters to Hauppauge in a bus sponsored by ENACT, the campus' environmental action coalition. More had been expected, but ENACT organizers blamed an early morning rain storm for the small turnout. Another problem cited was the appearance of phony fliers on campus advertising a free bus at a different location.

ENACT spokesman Barry Aaronson said that no such bus had been planned, and suggested that pro-nuclear power advocates may have printed the fliers to try and sabotage his organization's efforts.

When the rally was over, though, few seemed dissatisfied with its mood and direction. "There was a potential power in the mood of the crowd," said Stony Brook sophomore Beth Riso. "You could feel it."

Aaronson agreed. "Barry Commoner's speech was the most unique, intelligently articulated one I've ever heard at a rally."

But a number of organizers expressed deep concern about the failure to flood the county center with protestors. One of yesterday's speakers, Stony Brook chemistry professor Ted Goldfarb, said he was worried that the novelty of anti-nuclear events has worn off. "The others who got turned on by Three Mile Island and then went home, have done that again," he said. "Students have to realize that everybody has to get involved here."

Elsa Ford, a member of South Shore Safe Energy, and one of yesterday's organizers agreed. "I was really proud of Shoreham because the people came out in the rain. Those people just didn't come today." She added, though, "The other people, you have to reach them in other ways. Some one who might not go to a rally might go to a teach-in." She seemed to echo one of Commoner's most poignant pieces of advice for the anti-nuclear movement.

"You need allies," he told the cheering protestors. "Who are your allies? Your allies are everybody but the utilities and the oil companies."

Union Stoplight To Be Installed

By MITCHELL GROTCHE

A traffic light will be installed in front of the Stony Brook Union as soon as funds are approved by the University.

The traffic signals will be hung from the Bridge to Nowhere which runs from the academic mall to the Center Drive. The light will be placed on either side of the bridge and will have a push button control for pedestrians.

According to Public Safety Director Robert Cornute the light will decrease the amount and speed of traffic along the busiest intersection on campus.

Recently there have been two accidents at the intersection, said Cornute, who added that "Once the light is constructed, there will be no more jay-walking."

Director of Institutional Services Peter DeMaggio said that the light may slow down night time campus bus service.

Student reaction to the traffic signal is for the most part unfavorable.

"It's a waste of money; a stop sign would have the same effect without causing hassles for students," said one student.

However, Polity President David Herzog thinks it is a good idea. He said, "The road is very dangerous," and despite the inconvenience it's a benefit for handicapped students.

Violent Protestors Attack At Seabrook Nuclear Plant

The skirmishes further dimmed the spirits of less than 1,000 demonstrators who camped overnight in the rain on the 140 acres of marshland outside the plant.

Protesters Repelled

On Saturday, about 1,500 protestors failed to force their way through the 8-foot-high fence along the south perimeter of the sprawling plant. They were repelled by more than 500 state troopers and National Guardsmen using fire hoses, Mace, tear gas and riot batons.

Departing demonstrators complained that the takeover attempt was too disorganized and said there were not enough protestors.

The Coalition for Direct Action at Seabrook, sponsors of the protest, had said they were hoping for thousands. The coalition is a militant offshoot of the Clamshell Alliance, which had organized previous peaceful demonstrations at the construction site.

Attorney General Thomas Rath told reporters that police had used admirable restraint in repelling the assaults. No serious injuries were reported.

Car Registration Begins

Student vehicle registration for the 1979-1980 academic year will take place today through October 24 at designated areas throughout the campus.

Each student registering a vehicle must present a validated ID card or class schedule, a state vehicle registration, and must have no outstanding parking fines incurred on campus.

Commuters can register today through Wednesday in the first floor lobby of the Administration Building between 9 AM and 3:30 PM.

Resident students register according to their quads from 2 PM to 8 PM the following dates and locations: Kelly Quad, today at Kelly Cafeteria lounge; Stage XII, tomorrow at the Stage XII Cafeteria; Tabler Quad, October 10 in the lobby of Sanger College; Roth Quad, October 11 in the lobby of Mount College; G Quad, October 15 in the Irving O'Neill lounge; H-Quad, October 16 in the Benedict main lounge.

Health Sciences Center (HSC) student's vehicle registration will be October 23 and October 24 in the HSC L-3 Gallery, from 9 AM to 3:30 PM.

Registration stickers must be displayed on the front and rear bumpers of each vehicle on the driver's side.

Students who park on campus after 4 PM are not required to register their vehicles.

Equal Treatment

Statesman commends this campus' minority student population for standing up for its rights at Friday's rally. We believe that for too long minority students have been neglected by the University. Now is a very good time, when a frustrated department head quits, to show how offended they are.

A department cannot run effectively without sufficient office space, facilities and enough money on which to operate. Currently the Africana Studies Department lacks these essentials.

There is a need for the Africana Studies Department because through education the underlying attitudes of "institutional racism" inherent in the current system may someday be eradicated.

Statesman supports the methods used to deal with this important issue. First, negotiations with the administration were undertaken. Then, to reinforce their position they used a social action tactic, the demonstration.

Without exploring the past of minorities, the culture of America as a whole suffers.

Know the Candidates

Tomorrow is the last day to submit petitions to qualify to be put on the ballot for student government positions. Among the positions which must be filled are Freshman Representative, Polity Treasurer, Commuter College Treasurer, and all Senate seats.

Whether or not you are interested in running for one of these positions, as a student, you are responsible for getting involved. Those who are elected next Tuesday will represent all students and as such their most important function will be to see that everyone is heard and their activity fee is spent wisely.

Many of the candidates will be coming to your suites or rooms during the next few days. It is up to you to ask them responsible questions and judge for yourself whether they are competent or concerned enough to hold the position they are seeking. It is up to you to find out whether they will be willing to do a good job. All too often people are elected to these positions only never to be seen of again. For them, Polity is a joke, something to be put on their law school applications. But Polity is not a joke.

Polity is responsible for the disbursement of more than a half million dollars in activity fees—money which is used for both intramural and intercollegiate sports, campus parties, concerts, and most campus clubs and organizations, etc. One irresponsible person elected to an important position such as Polity Treasurer, for instance, can totally disrupt the flow of funds for student activities.

The Freshman Representative, as a member of the Polity Council, will be liaison between all freshman and the administration, and must be able to effectively deal with issues such as tripling, student parking, vandalism, and campus housing selection.

Finally, Commuter College receives more than $40,000 from Polity. It is up to commuters to elect representatives who will see that money is spent wisely.

A Dire Need

Giving blood is a serious matter. A blood shortage currently exists on Long Island. Since blood cannot be used after 21 days, blood supplies are low. Blood drives are the only source for replenishing the quick evaporation of blood resources.

Statesman is in full support of Wednesday's blood drive on campus. If you are at least 17 years of age and weigh over 110 pounds, please donate blood in the Physical Education Building from 1 to 6 PM. You might save a life.

Bring Back Vendors

To The Editor:

I was appalled to read of the closing of the vendor stands in front of the Library. Not only does this detract from the quality of student life, it detracts as well from the quality of my own life. How dreadful to contemplate a year without those wonderful avocado sandwiches at lunch and those emergency bagel fixes midmorning. I applaud your editorial and will do whatever I can to bring back the vendors.

Zionist View Distorted

To The Editor:

It is unfortunate indeed, that some individuals must resort to distortion in order to convey their ideology. The Viewpoint entitled "Israel: A Zionist Exclusionist Structure" has obviously succumbed to the temptation of disproportioning facts, omitting pertinent details and distorting historical details in a quest to legitimize his ideology.

One need not be an analytical genius to refute the specious accusations contained throughout the viewpoint. His initial argument, purporting to prove the Jews' hatred of the Arabs, contains one opinionated quotation by one solitary general. I too, as would any intelligent human being, condemn General Ben-Gals' denigrating remark. I must emphatically assert, however, that this is an isolated incident, an opinion of one man, that is by no means subscribed to nor condoned by the leadership of Israel.

To deduce from this one solitary remark that the "consensus" in Israel is in accord with the General's remark is libelous. By what rational or empirical evidence, may I inquire, does the author base his opinion on? Did you, I wonder, conduct an extensive poll during your "brief visit" to Israel? Isn't it prejudicial and hateful to condemn the many for the actions of a few my dear sir?

Another specious accusation, which the author does not substantiate, concerns the havoc during a terrorist attack on a Tel Aviv-Chaifa bound bus. This asserts that "the bloodshed occurred after the Israeli forces opened fire." The implication is clear: More than 40 Jewish men, women and children were killed because of the Israeli's response vis a vis to extricate their brethren, while the terrorists are held blameless. WHAT? I must profess, in due deference to the author's ideology, that the logic employed is rather perplexing. Did you realize, sir, that one specific terrorist on trial in Israel, jubilantly declared how he approached an 18 year old Jewish boy just inducted into the army, tore off his beret, placed his Kalatchnikov rifle against the temple of his head, and blew his brains all over the terrified little boys and girls inside the bus.

Think about that one, and next time try to make your argument just a touch more comical, so that we can all have a better laugh... unless you are serious, which in that case, I must condemn you for masquerading as an anti-Zionist, and censure you for being a latent anti-semitic!

I am a resident of St. James, and have lived in Israel for some time. The attack on the Tel Aviv Chaifa bound bus murdered my relatives.

Women Face Unfair Policies

By TANIA ALVAREZ
and HELENA RAGONE

(An open letter to Acting President Richard Schmidt.)

In a recent letter to the student body, you expressed your concern with the quality of life at Stony Brook. We, too, share this concern. We feel it is necessary to point out some alarming facts about the status of women who make up almost half of the student body. We understand that in addition to being concerned with the quality of life, that you also share our concern for affirmative action to correct previous and still existing injustices. The particular injustices that we would like you to consider are as follows: the underrepresentation of women in the faculty and the fact that Women's Studies is not offered as a major.

The faculty members (Professors, Associates and Assistants) are predominantly male. In fact, many of the departments show a marked imbalance, and consist of men only. While some areas of study have traditionally been closed off to qualified women until quite recently, it is now possible to fulfill the University's obligation through affirmative action.

We, the women of Stony Brook, are glad to see that you have expressed your desire in promoting equal access. The shocking fact is that the status of women at Stony Brook has grossly deteriorated in the past five years.

The need for aggressive affirmative action can best be seen in the statistics regarding the hiring of faculty. There has been a marked decline in the number of women faculty hired. For example, in the Division of the Biological Sciences, 1975-1976, two men hired, one woman; 1976-1977, seven men, three women; 1977-1978, six men, one woman.

As of 1978, the undergraduate student body was composed of 4,561 women and 5,725 men. Presently, the teaching faculty is composed of 85 women and 610 men; most of the women are untenured. There is an inconsistency in these statistics that cannot be denied or justified.

These inconsistencies are of an overwhelming magnitude with many serious and far-reaching implications. One such implication is that women interested in certain fields believe that women are excluded from their chosen fields, on the basis of their Stony Brook experience. The University, by not fulfilling its obligation, continues to perpetuate the myth of male supremacy and to reinforce the sex-role stereotyping that has molded the consciousness of both sexes up to the present.

The second issue that we would like to bring to your attention is the status of the Women's Studies Program. At the moment there are two professors with 1½ lines, teaching 500 students with the aid of two TAs. This overload is forcing both professors and their two assistants to work twice as hard as they normally would in order to fulfill the teaching requirements of the courses. It would seem that the University does not feel that Women's Studies deserves the support that other programs receive, in spite of student interest.

We believe it is our right to study our heritage as women and we urge you to expand the Women's Studies Program and establish it as a major. SUNY at Old Westbury offers its students a Woman's Studies major and so do many other leading colleges and universities. We trust that you will give these matters your immediate attention.

We, as students and as women, are asking that we be recognized and treated as equals. The only way we feel that the University can do this is by giving women equal access to teaching positions and by giving us the addition of Women's Studies as a major.

Simultaneous with the publication of this letter we will be circulating petitions on campus asking the entire student body to support our position by signing these petitions. In addition, a table will be set up in the lobby of the Student Union for students to sign these petitions.

We will add that if our demands are ignored, the writers and many other students are ready to transfer to other campuses rather than remain in a university that reinforces inequality and denies all women their rights. We will be calling your office when the petitions have been signed to set up an appointment to discuss these issues with you.

CONCRETE ABSTRACTIONS

Positively No Smoking

By Neil H. Butterklee

Much has been said lately about the rights of non-smokers. Special "No Smoking" sections are now provided in almost any type of public place: restaurants, planes and offices. All of this has been done so that the nonsmoker would not have to pollute his lungs with the foul air emitted from the lungs of the smoker. But what about the rights of the smoker?

Should an American, just because he smokes, be denied his constitutional right to get cancer. Of course not. And what about the other benefits that one derives from cigarettes, should a person be expected to give them up too? Mrs. E.M. Tuttle, a lifelong smoker, had this to say about the new non-smoking laws. "I have smoked all my life, well, ever since I was 12, and I always expected that I would get cancer. Now some big shot bureaucrat, in Washington, is going to tell me that I have to give up my expectations. Hell, at this rate I might as well live and be healthy."

Recently, a nationwide poll was taken to determine American attitudes on smoking. Whereas only 40 percent of those replying said they smoked, a whopping 83 percent said they agree that a person who wants cancer ought to be able to get it.

As you can see, something has got to be done. One possibility is that tar and nicotine could be made edible. Presently there exists the technology to both bottle nicotine and to manufacture it in pill form. Thus, whenever a person is overcome with a nicotine fit or has a sudden urge for a heart attack, all he would have to do is pop a few pills (the more pills, the better the chance for an attack).

In addition, tar (already used as an agent in paving roads) can be made into a candy bar. In fact, in order to make the tar (the key ingredient in cancer) more appetizing to kids, the bar of tar could be packaged with several baseball cards (just like it is done with gum). This way the kids will get an early start on the big C.

Of course adults will like this new candy too. No longer will they have to put up with the annoying request of, "Could you please put out that cigarette, I'm trying to breathe." Now instead of lighting up, they can just swallow.

The question still remains, however, will this new method of acquiring cancer be more successful than the old one. And, if so, will it not infringe on the rights of nonsmokers?

Dr. Fred Driddle, an eminent cardiologist now serving five years in prison on tax evasion charges, had this to say about eating tar in candied form. "Aside from the fact that candied tar induces cancer more quickly there is also a strong correlation between the bar and a high incidence of cavities. Of course if cavities aren't your thing, then I would suggest seeing a dentist. By the way, I know of an excellent dentist who just happens to be my cellmate." Also by eating tar and nicotine, the former smoker is not causing any serious danger to the nonsmoker.

Finally, I have just learned that Reynolds Tobacco and Friendly's Ice Cream, in anticipation of a new and expanding market, have just merged. They are said to be working on a new tobacco ice cream. Now, not only can you contract cancer, you can become overweight too, and all at the same time.

If it's sick to love a pen, then the world's going crazy.

It happened to secretaries first. Then lawyers, bookkeepers, waitresses, cabbies, housewives, and businessmen succumbed to the beauty of our Pilot Razor Point and Fineliner pens.

Some people felt it was sick to get so emotionally involved with our pens. But is it really so crazy to love a Pilot Razor Point pen that writes with a sharp smooth line and costs a mere 79¢? Is it nuts to flip over its unique little metal collar that smartly helps to keep its point from going squish?

If it is crazy, it's going to surprise a whole lot of people. In fact, we understand that Pilot Razor Point even has what it takes to score extra points with football players.

It also comes to our attention that many coaches are fans of the Pilot Fineliner.

Along with all the other Razor Point features, the 69¢

Pilot Fineliner has the strength and drive to go through carbons.

It's hard to resist a pen that holds the line like a Pilot.

NATIONAL LAMPOON'S

ISSUE

It's October and the leaves are turning brown. It is a season of change - the clear, cold death of winter shines ahead of us. Soon we will be able to see our breath, frisk with small dogs in the snow, and roll our cars over on patches of black ice. With winter approaching and good jokes sure to be as scarce as summer birds, now is the time to lay in a winter's supply of jokes in the new October comedy issue of National Lampoon; and as for summer birds, you can probably mail away for them to Florida. Yes, the National Lampoon Comedy issue has enough rich, plump guffaws to keep you chortling right into spring. So go buy one now at your local newsstand or bookstore before David Frost starts nipping people's noses, making it a pain to go outside.

Pats Stopped by National Champs

By MARTY FALK

Head football coach Fred Kemp told his players, "Ninety-nine percent of all teams won't be undefeated." It will not be any different for this year's Stony Brook team. After three consecutive victories, Stony Brook lost its first game of the season, 28-2, to unbeaten Ramapo College, the Club Football National Champions.

The game, however, was not as lopsided as the score hints. Stony Brook received the opening kickoff, and proceeded to lose three yards to set up a fourth and long situation. Punter Mark McKissick, bothered by a fierce rush, kicked the ball for only 14 yards. Ramapo got the ball on the Patriots' 21, and scored two plays later on John Carroll's one yard plunge. With the conversion, Ramapo led 7-0.

The game soon developed into a defensive battle. The Pats could not move the ball, and punted again. Ramapo got the ball back, but fierce pass rushing by Charlie Nicholas gave Stony Brook the ball. After not moving the ball, punter Mark McKissick got a low snap. Somehow, he got the kick away, but the ball only traveled 16 yards. When Ramapo got the ball back, the first period had expired.

The second period began almost as spectacularly for Stony Brook as it had for Ramapo. After a penalty and a fumble by the visitors, Bobby Leroy blocked Ramapo's punt all the way into the end zone. The ball went through the end zone, and Stony Brook got two points for the safety.

In the second and third periods Ramapo was stopped by Stony Brook's tenacious defense and lost the ball. The Patriot's defense held and through three quarters the score remained 7-2. McKissick later said, "Our defense kept us in it . . . the offense just sputtered."

Statesman Photos/Steve DiPaola

The Patriots fine defensive effort was cancelled by an unproductive offense.

The defense, although strong, could not continue to withstand Ramapo's attack. Ramapo scored 21 points in the final period shattering the Patriots fine defensive effort.

The Patriots, however, will not let this loss affect them at next Saturday's game against Manhattan College at Stony Brook. Star running back Tony McNair, who struggled through a miserable afternoon, with seven carries for minus eight yards, said, "If we were to play them again, we'd beat them . . . we won't be down for next week." Kemp insisted that the team would win after a week of hard work.

Soccer Team Ties Tech in Shutout

By GERALD WEN

The time keeper shouts, "10 more minutes!" while the score is 0-0. The pressure is on. Stony Brook Soccer team and New York Tech are hustling for a goal in the final half. Fans stand on the bleachers, teammates stand on the edge of the sideline and coaches pace up and down energetically in the direction of the speeding ball. All shout encouragement to the players.

Penalty Called

The final half ends 0-0 and a 20-minute overtime begins. With 12 minutes to go, two Stony Brook players and a New York Tech player argue and are benched. The penalty imposes greater pressure upon the Stony Brook team with nine Stony Brook players against 10 opposing players. Finally, Stony Brook holds back the New York Tech Division II scholarship players in the remaining game for a 0-0 tie.

Numerous Injuries

Team captain Junior Pryce said that the condition of the field "baffled us" and has caused many injuries to our team members. Both incidents had "broke the momentum of the whole game." Frontline Tim Cusack, who scored four out of the 12 goals the last few games, was injured as well as team captain Ron Beale and midfielder Alex Sakk.

However, Rich Campbell had single handedly out hustled Tech, stopping opponents throughout the game and was elected by coach Chris Tyson the "Stony Brook Soccer Player of the Match." "Rich has improved immensely since last year, almost like night and day," said Tyson. "I am happy he has improved. If he keeps improving he can be an excellent player."

Tyson commented on the game. He said, "The second half, the other team was dominating until at one point we began to gain control. Tech's team started to fatigue, and got frustrated because we were just repelling their attacks. We had a lot of energy left because of the better endurance of our players. Our players kept playing with a lot of enthusiasm and that was what I was looking for." Tyson added that the fight never should have happened.

Proving Spirit

The spirit of the team has improved in every game," said Tyson. "The team is working as a unit. We became better friends on the field and off the field, helping and encouraging each other. It is showing in our game. Tech was a better side and we held them back even down a man."

The next home game is tomorrow at 4 P M against Southampton. Team captain Beale said, "I hope the players will be healthy and play better - with better luck."

X-Country Fairs Poorly

The Stony Brook Cross Country team came in eighth place in a ten team meet at the New York Tech Invitational Track Meet Saturday.

The team's poor performance may be blamed on their lack of warm-up time and an undemanding week of training prior to the meet. However, Bob Piechnik, a varsity runner who placed 56 out of 150 in the five mile race stated "There's no excuse for this."

Stony Brook, while putting all of its runners in the varsity race entered on one in the junior varsity race.

Coach George Robinson expressed considerable concern over Stony Brook's sub-par performance. In an effort to promote improvement, Robinson has revamped the practice times in order to better accommodate the class, work and study requirements of each runner.

With added workout and training sessions, the Stony Brook cross country track team is optimistic about next week's race. The meet will be held in Van Courtland Park October 13 at 11 AM.
