Quake in Turkey Kills 509

Istanbul, Turkey—A major earthquake struck eastern Turkey early Sunday and officials said at least 509 people were killed. Newspapers said 50 villages were leveled, and the death toll was expected to climb.

About three hours earlier a quake rolled through the Hindu Kush mountain range, 1,400 miles to the east on the border between Afghanistan and Pakistan, shaking Islamabad and reaching as far as India's Kashmir state. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage. More than 12 hours later, a strong quake shook southwestern Japan, but no casualties were reported.

The devastating quake struck Turkey at 7:12 AM [11:12 PM EST] Saturday and was felt in mountainous provinces bordering Iran, Syria and Iraq.

Nightfall and intermittent snowfall in several areas hampered rescue effort. A local army corps mobilized all its soldiers to help the survivors and clear debris in communities reached earlier in the day. Dropping temperatures threatened thousands of homeless survivors in remote towns, local officials said. Temperatures of 35 degrees Fahrenheit were expected.

Authorities said the quake was believed to be centered in Erzurum and Kars provinces, where most of the damage was done, but it also shook the provinces of Bitlis, Mus, Diyarbakir, Biogl, Van and Malatya, according to the martial law command of the eastern region.

Grenadian Gen Captured U.S. Casualty Count Up

Bridgetown, Barbados—A man believed to be the Marxist general who seized control of Grenada's left-wing government in a bloody coup has been captured by American paratroopers, the U.S. military reported Sunday.

An announcement from the Pentagon said units of the 82nd Airborne Division seized "an individual who claims he is Gen. Hudson Austin." It said the prisoner "fits the description of Gen. Austin and was carrying identification to that effect."

Barbados' state-run Caribbean Broadcasting Corp. had reported earlier that Austin was caught Sunday, but gave no details. The reports came one day after U.S. Marines seized former Deputy Prime Minister Bernard Coard, accused of provoking the coup that led to the U.S. invasion of Grenada.

Austin organized the coup and named a Revolutionary Military Council following the slaying of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop on Oct. 19. Bishop had been under house arrest for a week in a power struggle with Coard, a hard-line Marxist.

The Pentagon also announced that the American death toll rose to 16, with 77 wounded and three missing. Four of the dead had previously been listed as missing since thousands of U.S. troops and a seven-nation Caribbean force invaded Grenada at dawn Oct. 25 and deposed the leftist military junta. Their stated aim was to restore order and protect civilians.

Only scattered sniper fire was reported on the island Sunday.

Rev Jackson Announces Candidacy for President

New York—The Rev. Jesse Jackson announced Sunday he will seek the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination and said he would try to choose a female running mate.

The civil rights leader, in an interview recorded for the CBS-TV program "60 minutes," said he would formally announce his candidacy Thursday in Washington. He is seeking to become the first black presidential candidate nominated by a major party. Although many black political leaders have said they will not support him, fearing such a campaign would be divisive, Jackson said, "No candidate can expect to have unanimous support from any given community."

On the subject of a running mate, Jackson was asked by CBS correspondent Mike Wallace, "Are you now saying that you will choose, if you can, a woman, be she white or black?"

"There's no doubt about it," Jackson replied.

Jackson said he will try to win votes from younger Americans. Twenty-five percent of all the eligible black voters are between the ages of 18 and 24," Jackson said. "The group had been voting at about a 10 percent level. It's obvious it would move above 50 percent now."

Jackson said of 18 million black voters, only 10 million are registered. "If we move to get another 3 million on the books by next November, we will have changed Democratic options in the primaries," he said.

The 42-year-old Jackson heads Operation PUSH, a Chicago-based community-service organization that concentrates on registering voters.

Jackson said he wants to be president because "I'm concerned about our measure for greatness."

"I want to help again measure greatness by how we treat children in the dawn of life, how we treat poor people in the pit of life and how we treat old folk in the sunset of life," he said.

State's Highest Court Sides With Baby's Parents

Rules Baby Jane Doe Does Not Have to Undergo Surgery

By Keiko Wakeshima

Baby Jane Doe, the three week old infant born with severe and multiple birth defects, does not have to undergo corrective surgery against her parents' wishes, the State Court of Appeals ruled Friday. However, the U.S. Justice Department is now seeking to review the medical records of Baby Jane, who is at University Hospital, to see whether or not she has been discriminated against because of her handicaps, according to Newsday.

The state's highest court, the Court of Appeals, upheld the parents' decision for an alternative treatment of nutrition and medication instead of life-prolonging surgery for Baby Jane, who was born with spina bifida, excess fluid on the brain, an abnormally small head, and other birth defects.

Doctors said that without corrective surgery, Baby Jane would die within two years. With the surgery, they said she may live into her twenties but would be severely retarded, paralyzed and suffer numerous medical problems.

According to Newsday, the seven member Court of Appeals criticized Right-to-Life advocate Lawrence Washburn and Supreme Court Justice Melvyn Tannenbaum who ordered surgery for Baby Jane but was overruled by the Appellate Division. The Court of Appeals stated that, "Confronted with the anguish of the birth of a child with severe physical disorders, these parents ...have been subjected in the last two weeks to litigation through all three levels of our states' court system. We find no justification for these proceedings."

William Weber, Baby Jane's court appointed guardian said that he was disappointed with the ruling and considered taking the case to family court with a different legal approach or to the federal court, reported Newsday.

Last week officials of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services had requested the medical records of Baby Jane from the University Hospital but were turned down by hospital officials who insisted on a formal written request. The inquiry was then turned over to the Justice Department.

A 1973 federal law prohibits discrimination based on handicaps and if University Hospital is found to have violated this law by discriminating against Baby Jane's handicapped condition, the hospital may lose some of the government funding it receives, according to Newsday.

Vandalism Delays Opening of Harkness Food Co-op

By Mitchell Horowitz

An emergency fire extinguisher system was set off in the Stage XII cafeteria last week, covering the entire kitchen area with a chemical powder. This will further delay the re-opening of the Harkness East Food Co-Op, a student run vegetarian cafeteria which was to be housed in the complex.

Friday at 8:10 AM it was discovered that the dry chemical system went off. The Ansul fire extinguisher system, which contains 30 pounds of powder, can only be set off by an emergency switch on the wall.

Fire Marshall John Poulos said the system was clearly marked "for emergency" and it was not a mistake that the system was set off. Poulos cited vandalism as the most possible factor. He said, "The back door [to the cafeteria] was open" and that it should not have been left that way.

Poulos said, "it will take a lot of clean up" and a custodial crew will be working in there for two days. However, the crew will only be cleaning the floors and walls; further cleaning, he said, will be up to the people working on Harkness. He said the powder "gets in everything" and the entire kitchen will need to be "rewashed."

"I really feel sorry for them...if they get everyone it will take at least a day or two to clean up." He said, "The powder is not toxic...[but it] can irritate your lungs."

The system alone will cost $250 to $500 to recharge. This is one of many problems that have been delaying the opening of Harkness East. On Oct. 12 Poulos issued a memorandum to the management of Harkness citing 35 health and maintenance related problems to rectify before Harkness can be opened. Among these problems was a cockroach infestation that required an immediate extermination program.

Gary Matthews, physical plant director of the residence halls, said the delay was partially due to the fact that "they didn't have any cohesive membership." He also said, "Many [people involved in Harkness] have yet to pay their cooking fee."

Elizabeth Queeneville, who has been organizing Harkness East, said, "He doesn't tell us this... he gives us little problems one at a time." As for the membership problems Matthews cited, Sim Platek, also an organizer of Harkness, had this to say: "We, at this point have a core of people...people will be there [but] people are not going to show up until its ready for operation." Queeneville said that Matthews was given a list of 25 people "I think that's pretty sufficient," she said.

Queeneville and Platek both said Matthews has been vague about the cooking fee. Matthews wants those involved in Harkness to pay a higher fee than regular students yet they claim that he has not been specific about it. Matthews said the fee is to be somewhere in the area of $107. Queeneville and Platek feel he should cut the fee since half the semester is over already.

Matthews also mentioned the "severe cleaning violations." He said the cafeteria contained "debris and discusting objects." However, Queeneville and Platek claimed they have since been rigorously cleaning the cafeteria and the state it was originally found in was not the fault of those involved in Harkness. They said another group had been using it during the summer.

Queeneville also mentioned that there were 14 health and maintenance violations Matthews was supposed to have taken care of and he did not. Both Queeneville and Platek said Matthews has not done all that he claimed he would.

However, Matthews said, "That's not true." He said the charges were "totally outrageous." He said, "I've worked with them...they did not complete [their part]." Matthews was upset that "they came to him a month ago" with the idea of re-opening Harkness East. Matthews did say he has been supporting them and he is in favor of the food co-op opening. Queeneville said, "He is working with us but it seems that we should have been open by now."

Platek was also upset that the Student Activities Board (SAB) was given the right to use the cafeteria for cooking a meal for Eddy Grant and his band after their performance Friday night. Due to the extinguisher system going off, these plans were cancelled.

However, just the fact that they were going to be allowed to use the cafeteria upset Platek. "We put a lot of work into this place. [Why is it] SAB can use it and we can't...the place was clean enough for SAB but not for us," Platek said. Queeneville also said that if it was good enough for SAB's use, "that should logically mean that we should open next."

Platek also felt "it is possible we are competition for the meal plan." He said this might be a factor in the delayed opening.

Despite the problems they are having, they are still optimistic about Harkness East. They already have plans for a speaker. On Nov. 9, Peter Burley, a cooking instructor from the Natural Gourmet School in New York city, will come to teach the Harkness people cooking techniques. Poulos will also be teaching sanitary lessons to them.

Platek said, "We are very confused at this point....They've been very receptive but not when it comes right down to action." Queeneville and Platek still have every intension of opening Harkness East. To join Harkness one must devote three hours a week to the project and pay $2.25 a meal.

Former U.S. Attorney General To Represent Campus Activist in Court

Mitch Cohen

Statesman/Alan Beneroff

by Andrea Rosenberg

Former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark will be representing campus activist Mitch Cohen and three of four of his friends who were arrested Thursday night after staging a sit-in in the crown of the Statue of Liberty, in which they were arrested in a display of civil disobedience.

Clark will be representing Cohen, 34, Thaddius Jurczynski, 26, and two Stony Brook students, Cathy Klein, 22, and Kate Berrigan, 18. The four were arraigned in Federal Court, in Manhattan on Friday. A fifth person was arrested in the incident but did not appear for the arraignment, and is not being represented by Clark.

Clark took on the case as a request of writer-in-residence Ron Kovic. "I asked him as a friend of mine to take it on," he said. "I felt that Mr. Clark would be the very best." Kovic added that he was proud of the demonstrators. "I think they hoped to awaken people and they did," he said.

Berrigan felt that civil disobedience was a good way to demonstrate against United States military intervention on foreign countries. "We feel that what the government is doing is really wrong," she said. "Being arrested is saying that we're not going by your laws because you're [the government] not going by your laws!" A hearing is scheduled for Nov. 17.

Dept of Public Safety Purchases Breathalyzer

By Andrea Rosenberg

In a ceremony Thursday, three University Police officers were presented certificates recognizing them as trained to use the Department of Public Safety's new breathalyzer.

Officers Frank Carbone, Anthony Katsur and Christopher Bergman are among the seven University Police officers who have been certified to administer breathalyzer tests. In order to be certified, each officer completed a week-long training program conducted by the New York State Police Academy, in Albany. Certification to use the breathalyzer is made by the Department of Health.

The newly purchased breathalyzer measures the percentage of alcohol in the blood stream. Although .05% blood alcohol is considered legal intoxication, it is not necessary for charges to be pressed. "It's an aid," along with officer observation, said Katsur. Refusal to take the test will result in immediate suspension of the driver's license.

Before the purchase of the breathalyzer, those suspected of driving while intoxicated had to be taken to the Suffolk County Police Sixth Precinct for breathalyzer testing. This procedure could take more than two hours, during which time the blood alcohol level would fall, so that an accurate blood alcohol level at the time of suspicion could not be obtained. The Department of Public Safety will have at least one officer on each shift who is certified to use the breathalyzer. It can be used at any time, but since it takes 20-30 minutes to warm up, it will be kept on from 6 PM - 6 AM, according to University Police Officer John Valentine. The breathalyzer will be tested for accuracy by the Department of Public Safety three times a week, and will be certified yearly by Suffolk county. The use of the breathalyzer will begin "as soon as we have certification and policy procedures out on it," said Herb Petty, Assitant Director of Public Safety.

Penalties for driving while intoxicated vary according to a judge's discretion and by whether the incident is a first or a repeat offence. The penalties for a first conviction is a fine of $250 and/or up to 15 days in jail. The penalty for a second conviction within five years is a mandatory fine of $350-$500 and/or up to 30 days in jail.

Students expressed mixed feelings about the purchase of the breathalyzer. Susan Dolan, a freshman, thought having the breathalyzer on campus is a good idea. "They have everyone's best interest in mind," she said.

Dan Hank, a senior, opposed the breathalyzer purchase. "I don't know of that many reports of drunken driving on campus to warrant such an expenditure," said Hank. "Like all new State toys, they're probably going to want to use it as much as possible to show that they need it," he said.

Carbone sees the need for a breathalyzer on campus. "We've had numerous vehicle accidents on campus related to individuals consuming alcohol," he said. Doug Little, community relations director for the Department of Public Safety, agreed that the breathalyzer is needed on campus. "It will be used to assist drunk drivers off the streets of Stony Brook," he said. "The problem with alcohol abusers that drive has gotten to a dangerous level," he added. Little also asserted the Department's desire to "educate people about the dangers of alcohol." Last month, the department sponsored an alcohol awareness week, which included films and workshops on alcohol abuse. In addition, the department also offers defensive driving classes which discuss alcohol abuse and gives talks on the subject.

College Life: Humor Between the Covers

by B.J. Roche

Amherst, MA (CPS)—If you've been too busy with 15 credit hours a week to learn the dangers of intermajor dating, how to pull a successful all-nighter, of the Ten Rules of Tanning, you can now relax. You can find it all between the covers of How to College: A Humorous Guide to the Four Years.

In fact, you can find just about everything about college life put between covers humorously these days. How to College is just the latest in a seemingly-endless series of campus life parodies to appear in bookstores over the last few years.

Since the seminal Preppy Handbook as the start of the trend, said Susan Moldow, editor of Alma Matters, Dell Publishing's entry in this fall's humor market.

The Handbook sired all sorts of spinoffs. In 1981 came a preppy calendar, a preppy notebook, and a preppy photo album in college bookstores. The, inevitably, came The I Hate Preppies Handbook. In dizzying succession came regional "guides"—one to Texas colleges, for example—and generic guides like 1982's MBA Handbook.

Welcome to Mount Merry College was a send-up of all small, private college catalogues. Its authors, Carol Wallace and Mason Wiley, were two of the Original collaborators on The Preppy Handbook. However, they sold their shares in the book before it was published to Lisa Birnbach, who not only got to keep all the authors' royalties from the books and products, but made two highly-successful nationwide campus lecture tours. This fall, besides How to College and Alma Matters, students can also pick up How to Survive Your College Daze. They are, said Pat Benson, reference book buyer for the B. Dalton chain of bookstores, "non-book books" without character, plot or, often, much meaning. But Benson speculated that they appeal to students on all sorts of levels. They are, for one thing, often "witty." For another, the books are oddly nostalgic. "There's actually a market for kids to go out and buy the whole feeling of the fifties," Benson marveled.

And sometimes the guides even can be helpful. "Publishers have always known" how well how-to books have sold. Now, "they've kind of dipped down to a younger age," she pointed out. "We've seen it before in the getting-in [to college] level. But this [selling to students] once they're in is a new trend."

"Our best-selling books are how to get grants, getting a MBA, things like that," added Cathy Conrad, trade book manager at Ohio States's bookstore. "But this interest in coping and surviving is really something new."

Such books are not, in fact, always the top-sellers. In Search of Excellence, a nonfiction inquiry into what certain well-run American companies have in common, is the best-selling book on campus as well as non-campus bookstores, according to the most recent book survey by the Chronicle of Higher Education.

But they are good enough sellers to keep publishers interested in trying to market even campus cafeteria talk. "We had been making our friends laugh, sitting around the dining table for years," recalled Eugene Reardon, one of three co-authors of How to College.

While still students at Stanford, Reardon, Bill Jeakle and Ed Wyatt "just decided to put it all down in writing," Reardon said. Their book is indeed an accurate and witty translation of many a typical dinner table goof-off session, including features like a list of the top fifty state schools (beginning with Alabama and ending with Wyoming.)

In 208 pages, the authors range from the history of the university ("...Bologna and Paris became know as universities in the modern sense when they began to admit foreign and secular students, and when their football team began to have winning seasons...") to applying for jobs ("Most people realize that going into an interview with potato salad breath could hurt their chances...").

The students decided to publish the book on their own, and formed the Primer Press. The three sold limited partnerships in the firm for $1000 each, and printed 10,000 copies of the book.

No dummies, they designed a cover and format reminiscent of The Preppy Handbook. They've since ordered a second printing, and are about to break even, Reardon said.

Commercial publishers have noticed. New American Library has offered to buy the rights to the book, but the authors said no. "It's ours," Reardon explained. "We put a lot of work into it, and we're not ready to give it up yet."

But the commercial publishers have picked up on the scent. Reardon said the authors are negotiating with New American Library to do another project, and have signed a contract to write a national college guide for Simon and Schuster.

The Public Has the Right to Know

The public has a right to know. Through responsible use of the media, information, from international to local events, is presented to the public. It is virtually the only source by which the masses are informed.

An impediment of the news process occurred this past week on the international scene. The United States government was close to censoring the press by refusing to allow media presence on the tiny Caribbean island of Grenada that U.S. forces began invading Tuesday. They have since let up the restraints and allowed journalists on the island, but the rope burns remain. The government of the United States intruded on the rights of a free press as granted by our constitution.

The rights of a free press to public information are extended to all the media from the New York Times...to Statesman. And in the course of this weekend, the rights of Statesman reporters and subsequently the rights of everyone on this campus were violated. The Department of Public Safety—taking lessons from the Reagan Administration—have a new policy in effect. The only member of the Department "allowed" to speak with the press now is their community relations director, who is not at the office 24-hours a day and seven days a week. The news is a 24-hour a day, seven day a week process.

Perhaps the director of the department, Gary Barnes, who has authored a letter stating that the only person to speak with the public is the community relations director, has never read the constitution. Perhaps Barnes, in his plight to earn Public Safety a name as a real department, is unfamiliar with the practices of real police departments in keeping open relationships with the press.

College Bans Slam Dancing

Minneapolis, MN.—University of Minnesota punkers got an unexpected rude jolt one recent Saturday evening when campus officials ordered them to stop slam dancing during a punk rock concert.

Back in June university officials placed a ban on the new dance fad—where partners literally slam, punch, and tackle one another on the dance floor—following several injuries at a campus concert by The Dead Kennedys. "The Dead Kennedys' concert really made us aware that the phenomenon of slam dancing had hit campus," recalled student activities Coordinator Carol Nelson. "The band members started diving off the stage into the audience, and people just started pushing and slamming into one another."

Twenty-three students were injured at the event, two of them with broken bones.

"[After that] I notified all campus concert people that if there was any activity involving slam dancing, they'd have to meet with me and explain how they would insure the health and welfare of the students," Nelson said.

Otherwise, he added, "slam dancing is simply not acceptable on campus and if it occurs at any concerts the management will terminate the event." Nelson's slam dancing ban was put to its first test at an Oct. 8 concert featuring a local punk band called the Replacements.

Although the band met with Nelson in advance and agreed to control any violent behavior in the crowd, campus officials temporarily had to break up the concert.

"At the event people started diving off the stage and there was some fairly aggressive slam dancing going on," Nelson reported. "The sponsor notified the band and members of the audience that the event would be stopped unless the rowdy behavior was controlled."

After a few initial boos and hisses, though, the crowd mellowed "and there were only a couple of isolated incidents which we simply tolerated," he said.

High Return on Degrees

Madison, WI—College degrees are worth much more than most people think, a new study by two University of Wisconsin economists asserts.

"The actual return on investment is probably 150 percent greater than the standard estimate," said Robert Haveman, who co-authored the study of the economic effects of a college education with Wisconsin colleague Barbara Wolfe.

By contrast, the Heritage Foundation—a conservative think tank with ties to the Reagan administration—recently called for the federal government to stop supporting public education because it costs more than it generates in additional revenues for the American economy.

But a recent study by the U.S. Census Bureau found that college graduates earn about 40 percent more over a lifetime than non-grads. Haveman and Wolfe said that degrees may be worth even more than that when they figure in the additional values of using what people learn in college in their post-graduate lives. "Additional education is directly related to better health, the success of (the graduate's) children in school, and a number of other benefits that have not traditionally been counted as part of the value of education," said Haveman.

Better health, for instance, is worth an additional $3000 a year to college grads, he found. Their kids' better academic performance is worth about $2000. By being smarter consumers, grads save about $100 a year, Haveman and Wolfe contended. They also calculated values for better family planning, greater involvement in community and charitable causes, and less likelihood of criminal behavior among educated people.

"If people were given an additional year of schooling," Haveman added, "they would be willing to pay thousands of dollars for the non-earnings benefits of that extra year if those benefits were for sale."

NDSL Repayment Rates Up

Washington, D.C.—Students are repaying their National Direct Student loans (NDSLs) at a faster rate than in past years, the U.S. Department of Education reported.

In checking the records of loan repayments at some 3382 colleges, the department found the default rate on NDSLs—a program President Reagan wanted to abolish in 1981 and 1982 in part because so many students weren't repaying their loans—fell from 15.4 percent in 1981 to 10.5 percent of the total amount loaned out by the government under the program.

Part of the reason for the decline, however, may be the new ways of accounting for defaults, said Florence Taylor, the department's aid collection chief. Colleges, which have been responsible for collecting past-due loans, can now turn over collections responsibility to the federal government. When they are turned over, Taylor said, the government no longer counts the loan as in default. Still, "getting students to pay back their loans is like getting blood from a turnip for some of these schools," she said.

Taylor added that more schools are becoming more aggressive in chasing down student deadbeats because of the government's new rule cutting off NDSL funds to schools with high default rates. About 390 colleges lost all or part of their NDSL funds last spring because of high deficit rates on their campuses.

Sports Digest Rangers Lose Again

New York— Pat Hughes scored his second goal of the game on a 52-foot wrist shot 1:18 into overtime last night, lifting the Edmonton Oilers to a 5-4 National Hockey League victory over the slumping New York Rangers.

The Oilers are 7-0-1 in their last eight meetings with the Rangers, who suffered their third straight after opening the season with a 9-1 record.

Don Maloney put the Rangers on top 1-0 5 and a half minutes into the game with screened wrist shot that sailed over Edmonton goal tender Grant Fuhr's right shoulder. But Edmonton's Jari Kurri tied it 1:23 minutes later with a 45-foot slapshot. The game opened up into a free-skating affair the next two periods as both Edmonton and New York used their considerable speed to advantage.

Hughes put the Oilers ahead 3-2 1:59 into the second period, then Rangers defenseman Ron Greschner tied it with his first goal of the season on a power play at 8:14. Wayne Gretzky, who set an NHL record last season by scoring at least one point in Edmonton's first 30 games, extended his consecutive-game point streak to 12 with a goal at 15:26. Just moments after Ranger defenseman Barry Beck slid across the crease to block Gretzky's backhanded shot towards an open net, the NHL scoring king swiped at a bouncing puck and put it between the legs of goalie Steve Weeks. Pierre Larouche lifted the Rangers into a 3-3 deadlock with a wrist shot along the ice from the slot at 17:01.

Sampson Debuts For Rockets

Houston— Ralph Sampson has helped bring laughter back to The Summit, where last season the woeful Houston Rockets were the National Basketball Association's saddest team, winning only 14 games. The good times returned Saturday.

A man in the east bleachers was leading the cheers while another self-appointed yell leader on the south side, wearing a shirt made from a British flag, was waving Rocket-colored pompons to the delight of some of the mirthful 14,116 fans. The attendance figure broke the Rockets' record home-opening crowd of 13,643 set in 1969 that marked the pro debut of Lew Alcindor, now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

The main event Saturday was Sampson, the highly touted, highly talented and highly paid rookie from the University of Virginia. He was ably assisted by another Rockets' newcomer, Lewis Lloyd. They led Houston to a 106-100 season-opening victory over the San Antonio Spurs. Last season, the Rockets lost their first 10 games.

While Sampson was the center of attention with 12 rebounds and 18 points, the unheralded Lloyd, signed as a free agent after playing last season with the Golden State Warriors, had 28 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists. Despite Lloyd's "triple double," most of the post-game talk was about the 7-foot-4 Sampson.

"He played extremely well considering it was the first game of the season," said San Antonio center Artis Gilmore, who had outplayed Sampson a week ago in an exhibition game. Against the 7-2 Gilmore, Sampson moved outside to score on jump shots.

"It's not likely you are going to get beat on the perimeter," Gilmore said about letting Sampson fire away from the outside. "The guy can shoot from the outside," said San Antonio Coach Moe McHone. "If he were a 6-9 forward, you'd say it was typical. It puts the pressure on the guy guarding him. You have to come out and respect that shot." Gilmore admitted that Sampson had shown great improvement since their last meeting.

Jets Romp Over 49ers 27-13

San Francisco— There were no bombs, flea-tickers, or fancy runs in the New York Jets' gutsy 27-13 triumph over the San Francisco 49ers. Yesterday's game was won in the trenches, a straight-shooting, hard-hitting battle taken by the team that wanted it more. The Jets, losers of three straight coming in, said they had something to prove. Reports of their demise were much exaggerated, the offense wanted to show that throwing interceptions was not part of every game plan. The defense, burned by runners early in the season, wanted to prove its recent success was no fluke. The pressure from the Jets' front four and the coverage by the secondary forced San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana into missing 51 of the 36 passes, including two fourth-quarter interceptions. Cornerback Jerry Holmes returned the second interception 43 yards in the last minute to seal the game.

"Considering the offense we played, our defense played the best that they are capable of," said Joe Walton, the Jets coach. "We've been on the verge all year. We made it up today... they kept the pressure on all day, the defense shut off the running game and that was our main ploy."

Shut off, indeed, like a tightened faucet. The 49ers didn't rush, they dripped. Wendell Tyler carried nine times for eight yards, his worst day as a pro on a day he wasn't hurt. Roger Craig, a rokie from Nebraska who had been improving so well, carried eight times for 27 yards. The 49ers' top rusher was Montana, who picked up 50 yards on eight campers, mostly when he was fleeting tacklers or was unable to find open receivers.

"Our motivation was embarrassment and the fact that we are much better than a 3-5 football team," said New York defensive lineman Marty Lyons. "It's either put up or shut up at this point," said quarterback Richard Todd, who hit 20 out of 28 passes for 201 yards, including a 28-yard touchdown pass to Lam Jones in the second period. "We're still in the hunt."

The Jets, 4-5 are tied with New England for last place in the AFC East, but they're only two games behind division-leading Miami. The 49ers remain in first place in the NFC West.

The Stony Brook football Patriots were defeated for the second time this year by a Division III team, the latest one being Ramapo College, by a score of 20-2 Saturday. Their season's record now stands at 5-2.

The Patriot's overall game, as wide receiver Kyle McGlotten put it, "was flat from the opening kickoff." Two minutes and twenty-eight seconds into the game, Michael Baczek scored on a four yard run, a drive in which Ramapo gained 74 yards in seven plays. With a successful extra point, Ramapo led 7-0.

Ramapo continued to run the Patriots defense ragged, when at 13:50, Gene Mahon scored on a three yard run. Another extra point and Ramapo led, 14-0.

Going into the second quarter, the Pats' running game could find no holes—their two top running backs gained a total of 21 yards on 13 plays.

Capitalizing on Stony Brook's turnovers, Ramapo's Terry Brandon scored on a one yard run at 6:45 in the second quarter. Ramapo's kick was no good, and so they led 20-0, a score that stood through the fourth quarter.

In the final quarter, head coach Fred Kemp decided to pull Patriot quarterback Ray McKenna in favor of back-up Paul Ryan. McKenna left the game with six completions in 16 attempts for 53 yards and two interceptions. Ryan completed five of eight passes for 53 yards and one interception.

Stony Brook got on the board when, with 1:16 left in the game, Ramapo quarterback Gene Mahon was sacked in his own endzone. The sack yielded a two-point safety for Stony Brook.

The only bright spot in the day for Stony Brook was Patriot receiver Darrel Simmons. With his four pass receptions, Simmons now has 29 on the season, tying Stony Brook's all-time record set by Pat Galaway in 1982. Simmons also gained 61 yards on the day.
