Judge Orders Halt to Draft-School Aid Link

Statesman/Matt Cohen

Statesman/Corey Van der Linde

Students living in Kelly D say that their Residence Hall director Bill Heyman (left) is in the process of being fired. Residence Life Director Dallas Baumann (right) said he can't discuss the situation because it is a personnel matter.

Boston (AP)—The Department of Education overstepped its bounds by requiring students seeking financial aid to sign forms saying they had either registered or were ineligible for the draft, a Federal district judge has ruled here.

The judge, Robert E. Keeton, ordered a temporary halt to the practice in a ruling, handed down Wednesday.

Another challenge to the regulations brought earlier this year in Washington, D.C., failed in the lower Federal court and is on appeal, said Marjorie Heins, a lawyer for the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts.

The case here was brought by three Boston University theology students, a man and two women, all members of the United Methodist Church.

The three, who were exempt from military registration because of age or sex, contended that by refusing to comply with Federal regulation and fill out the form they would lose all financial aid and have to quit school.

An amendment adopted by Congress in 1983 required a cutoff of Federal student loans to eligible men who had not registered for the draft. Later, the Education Department established regulations requiring all loan applicants, regardless of age or sex, to state they either had registered or were ineligible.

In his 11-page ruling, Judge Keeton said the Secretary of Education "established a new ground for denial of aid: failure to comply with an administration requirement that all applicants for aid file a registration compliance statement."

"In other words," he went on, "the sanction that Congress reserved for a small group of lawbreakers was imposed by the Secretary on a potentially much larger group of persons who have not broken any law and who have met all the statutory requirements for aid. The imposition of this sanction on those persons is beyond the power delegated by Congress."

The judge also said that without the court order students would have been "forced to make a choice between complying with Federal regulations or abiding by their religious principles."

A challenge to the amendment in Minnesota is due before the United States Supreme Court.

The lawsuit here on behalf of Michael Alexander, Jane Lippert and Amy Harris was brought against the Federal Government, the Education Department and the Selective Service System, and against Boston University.

Students Demonstrate at Res Life To Protest Firing of a Kelly RHD

The following story was reported by Raymond Fazzi and Barry Wenig and written by Fazzi.

About 40 students from Kelly-D packed the Office of Residence Life Friday to protest the possible firing of their Residence Hall Director (RHD).

As a result of the half-hour protest, Dallas Baumann, director of Residence Life, agreed to appear at Kelly D (10 PM) on Wednesday to discuss the matter. However, he would not agree to the students' request that he reveal the job status of Kelly-D RHD Bill Heyman. "We wanted to come peacefully and find out why Bill [Heyman] was terminated," said freshman Dave Puttre, a Kelly D resident. "They didn't say much so we had to hope that we stressed our opinion as best we could."

Heyman said he received a letter last summer saying that he would not be re-hired next year, but that he was also told the decision could be reversed. "It was mentioned to me by Jerry Stein [associate director of Residence Life] that the decision might be reconsidered if I made some improvements in my performance."

There were two areas where improvement was sought, according to Heyman.

"They said I'm not tough enough with rules and regulations," he said, adding that the second complaint was that he and his staff didn't devise enough educational programming. "They would have been happier if I attended more conferences and handed in more papers," said Heyman, who's spent five of his six years as RHD in Kelly D.

As it currently stands, said Heyman, his job status depends on the quality of other applicants. Dallas[Baumann] told me that they are waiting to see if there are any new applicants who are better, but I think they've already made their decision [to fire me]."

The Office of Residence Life takes the position that all information regarding personnel decisions is confidential, said Harold Mendelsohn, assistant director of Residence Life. He said the people responsible for evaluating Heyman's job performance are Kelly Quad Director Timothy Jahn and Stein with Baumann having to approve any of their decision.

Baumann said that he had to check with the Offices of Student Affairs and Personnel on Monday before he could publicly comment on the matter. He did say, however, that he plans to attend the Kelly D ledge meeting on Wednesday night. "I'm going to listen, but I can't say much," said Baumann. "I don't know if it [meeting with the students] will help or not."

Heyman said students probably found out about his possible dismissal from discussions he's had on the subject with his student staff. He said he had nothing to do with the protest.

"It hasn't been made official—it's just known," said senior Andy Weiss, who has lived in Kelly D for four years and who several students said was the main organizer of the protest. Of the claim that Heyman didn't maintain discipline, Weiss said, "Bill will be the first to put you in trouble if you deserve it."

"Bill knows everyone in the building by name," said freshman Javier Largaespada. He said that in October, Heyman was responsible for solving a problem he was having with his roommate. "He sat us down and helped us talk it out."

Heyman said the student protest "makes me feel great. Students should be letting people hear their voices." He said he's not a "company man," and that even after he was asked to show improvement he didn't perform his job any differently. "I just like to instill a good feeling in the building—to push everyone to know one another."

2 U.S. Diplomats Killed In South Africa Bombing

Windhoek, South-West Africa—Two U.S. diplomats were killed yesterday when a bomb exploded at the gasoline station where they had stopped to service their automobile in this disputed territory. Administrator-General Willie van Niekerk said a black civilian also was killed and four other people were wounded.

A Western diplomat source who was briefed by South African authorities said it did not appear that the blast had been directed at the Americans, but they just happened to be at the station when the device exploded. The source asked not to be identified. Niekerk did not identify the diplomats, but South African authorities said they believed they were the director of the U.S. Liaison Office in Windhoek and his military representative, an army lieutenant colonel.

Niekerk blamed the bombing on black nationalist guerrillas of the South-West Africa Peoples Organization, SWAPO. They have been fighting a bush war for 17 years from bases in southern Angola against South Africa's administration of the territory, also called Namibia.

Niekerk's statement said the Americans were members of a team working with a joint South African-Angolan monitoring commission. The commission, which the United States helped create in February, is trying to stop SWAPO unites in Angola from entering Namibia while South African forces withdraw from southern Angola.

The statement said the bomb exploded at 4:10 PM in Okatana. The Americans were en route to the northern Namibian town of Oshakati.

"At a time when virtually everyone in southern Africa is working toward peace, SWAPO still clings to a barbaric preference for senseless violence" Niekerk said. "The true nature of SWAPO's concern for the welfare of the people of Namibia appears clearly from this incident. We will do everything we can do to safeguard the local population against insane and cowardly acts."

All Found Innocent In Klansmen, Nazi Trial

Winston, Salem, N.C.—Nine Klansmen and Nazis were found innocent yesterday of conspiring to disrupt a 1979 anti-Klan rally in Greensboro in which five demonstrators were killed.

Five defendants were also acquitted of civil rights violations stemming from the deaths. Two of the defendants were also acquitted of conspiring to intimidate witnesses after the confrontation.

"Man, I think I died and went to heaven," said Klan leader Virgil L. Griffan, who was acquitted of both conspiracy counts.

"I'm shocked and outraged," said a weeping Dale Sampson, wife of slain demonstrator William Sampson. "This just gave the go-ahead for Klansmen and Nazis to kill people."

The other defendants were ex-Klansman Edward W. Dawson, Klansman David Wayne Matthews, ex-Nazi Ronald Wayne Wood, ex-Klansman Jerry Paul Smith, ex-Nazi Jack Wilson Fowler, Jr., ex-Klansman Roy C. Tony, ex-Klansman Coleman B. Pridmore and ex-Nazi Raiford Milano Caudle.

Five Communist Workers Party members were shot to death and six supporters wounded in CWP "Death to the Klan" rally in Greensboro on Nov. 3, 1979. One Klansman and television cameraman were wounded.

Six Klansmen and Nazis were found innocent of murder in a 1980 state trial. The nine current and former Klansmen and Nazis, including five of the original defendants, were indicted last year on federal civil rights charges after civil rights and church groups blasted the acquittals.

10 Found Dead In Brooklyn

New York—The bodies of 10 people—five adults and five children—were found at a Brooklyn apartment house yesterday, police said.

According to Sgt. Eddie LeSchack, a police spokesman, the bodies were found at 1082 Liberty Ave. in the East New York section at about 8 PM. "They were all shot in the head," he said. LeSchack said he had no further information about the identities of the victims, whether there were any suspects, and what motives there was for the slayings.

Carmine Rossi, the owner of Rossi Bread Bakery in the same building, said he was leaving his bakery to go to his car when a man came out screaming and asked him if he was a police officer.

Rossi said he went to the house with the man where "there were bodies all over the place. I came to a small bed. A young girl was dead in the bed," he said. "Then I went to the living room. There were about seven people in the living room on couches. All dead, shot in the head. Then in the kitchen, a couple more people, the same way."

Rossi said he found an infant crying on the floor in one of the rooms. "I picked it up, took it outside, brought it in the bakery next door and then I called up the police," he said. The unidentified man who brought Rossi to the house told him he lived in the house, which he left at 1:30 PM. When he returned he found the bodies.

Polity Reallocates $17,000 in Activity Fee Money

The Polity Senate Redistributed Funds Because They Violated SUNY Guidelines

What Colleges Will Get

Colleges will be given a flat fee from the mandatory student activity fee. The increase will be distributed to each college according to their population. The colleges will be given two dollars per student, per semester. Here is a breakdown of the amount each college will receive from the mandatory student activity fee, without the increase.

College	Amount
Roth, Kelly, Amman, and Grey	$1,200 each
Stage XII	$1,350 each
Irving, O'Neill, James and Langmuir	$1,500 each
Benedict	$1,800
Commuter	$8,000

By Ron Dunphy

The Polity Senate held an emergency meeting and reallocated $17,000 of the proposed student activity fee increase Thursday evening. The $17,000 was originally set aside as a Senate Reserve fund, but it was discovered that such a fund was in violation of the SUNY Chancellor's Guidelines for budgeting of students fees.

The largest share of the reallocated $17,000 went for advertising in Statesman and funding for the individual colleges, which will receive $30,000 and $40,000 respectively if the rise passes by a majority vote of students in the upcoming elections. Another $3,000 was given to the Program and Services Council (PSC), which brings their total proposed 1984-85 budget up to $30,000.

The mandatory student activity fee is itself up for a student vote on April 26. An $8.10 per student per semester increase in the activity fee will also be on the ballot at that time.

The increased funds for advertising, if it all is budgeted for Statesman, will enable the campus newspaper to publish three issues per week, said Elizabeth Wasserman, deputy managing editor of Statesman. Other Statesman staff members at the meeting said they had received appeals from different clubs and organizations requesting the publication of a Friday issue in order to advertise for weekend activities and keep students on campus during the weekends. Statesman cut back to publishing two times per week in January because of financial problems.

The increase of funding to the colleges was well received by Commuter College students, said Joe Moriarity, a Commuter College senator. "I personally believe everyone was happy with the way things came out," Moriarity said.

James College Senator Tony Tesoriero feels that students will accept the increase. "I think most of them will be pretty happy," he said.

"It's well needed. A lot of socializing goes on in colleges, and if students see there is more money in it for them, they'll be more inclined to vote for the increase," said Cindy Robinson, Kelly D senator.

The remainder of the increase has been divided per student per semester as follows: $2.75 for NCAA athletics, $.75 for dues to the Student Association of the State University, $.75 for a newly created Minority Students Programming Board, and $.35 for administrative expenses of the Polity Council.

Graduate Employees Seek Clout by Trying To Join Phone Union

By Barry Wenig

Seeking solid backing from an established union with resources, the Graduate Student Employees Union (GSEU) has announced its plans to affiliate with the Communications Workers of America (CWA), subject to a member vote on April 25.

An affiliation committee was commissioned by the executive board of the GSEU last October to try and find a union which would be interested in joining with the GSEU and provide support and training, according to Acting Treasurer Rick Eckstein, of the Stony Brook GSEU chapter. Eckstein said that CWA was chosen after discussions with four other unions.

"We shopped around, and the CWA was responsive," Eckstein said. "They made time for us and I respect that. Plus, they are very democratic and progressive."

Although they are most closely identified with telephone workers, the CWA also represents workers in the public sector and civil service employees. This, according to state-wide GSEU Vice-President Kevin McHale, was among the reasons the group would like to join with the CWA. Another reason, stressed by both Eckstein and McHale, is that although they will help teach the GSEU how to bargain for change, they won't be in control of the group. "We're not being taken over by an outside organization," said McHale, "we're being joined by them. Control will still be with the GSEU—with the same people."

Still, the "joining" of the two organizations could prove to be useless if the GSEU does not fare well in its hearings with the Public Employee Relations Board (PERB). PERB is the state body that will decide if the GSEU can be recognized as a legitimate union with bargaining power. One goal of the GSEU is to win a contract from the SUNY system and bring about a raise in salaries for graduate employees. The GSEU is currently undergoing pre-hearing conferences with PERB, and it is estimated by Eckstein that the whole hearing process could take several months. McHale doesn't deny that an affiliation now with CWA could increase the GSEU's chances with PERB.

"I believe that the graduate student employees realize that we need the political support, and quite frankly, the financial support going before PERB," McHale said.

Larry Cohen, the director of organizing CWA district one (serving New York, New Jersey and New England) feels that the CWA won't benefit from the affiliation with the GSEU, although he admits that it might attract graduate employees in other states to consider affiliating with CWA.

"Fundamentally, we'll be offering leadership and try to get them a decent contract," Cohen said. "The GSEU's situation seems very clear, they're underpaid and undervalued."

For McHale, who claimed that the part-time graduate employees will not have to pay full-time dues to the CWA if the vote passes, the most important by-product of the affiliation would be credibility. "We'll be seen as a formal, legal organization," McHale said. "That's the bottom line."

Eckstein said that the GSEU will announce where the voting will be held for SUNY Stony Brook graduate employee members sometime later this week.

Suspects Being Sought

Suffolk County Police have descriptions of the two males they believe robbed and then stabbed a jogger on campus April 1.

The suspects robbed and stabbed a campus visitor who was jogging along North Loop road at about 8 PM that night near the North Entrance to the university.

Police have drawn a composite of one of the suspects (above). He is believed to be a white male approximately 19 or 20 years old, 5'11" or 6' tall and weighing about 175 pounds. Police report that he has shoulder length, straight blonde hair and a space between his two front teeth. On the night of the incident, he was wearing a faded blue denim jacket, a white shirt, white basketball-type sneakers, and a square brass belt buckle. He was armed with an unknown sharp weapon.

The second suspect, who fled along with the first after the stabbing, is believed to be a dark haired male with broad shoulders. He might be named Lex, and was reported to be driving a black car.

The two left the victim lying in the roadway, where he was found by police and an ambulance a few minutes later. The victim was treated and released from University Hospital that night.

Police ask anyone with information to call Suffolk Sixth Squad-Public Safety Detective O'Shea at 246-3333. All calls will be kept confidential.

Computer Program Matches People and Pooches

Statesman Graphic/Anthony Detres

Although the "Choose-a-Pooch" program created by Psychology Professor Randall Lockwood is designed for humans, it will also match dogs to the people who will best take care of them.

By Helen Przewuzman

Computers are taking their place in the American home at an astounding rate. Computer programs can manage your household expenses, teach your children math and spelling, and now can help you choose a dog.

Randall Lockwood, a professor of psychology at Stony Brook has created a computer program entitled "Choose-a-Pooch," which can help a prospective dog owner pick an ideal dog. The program lists the size, temperament and adaptability for 126 types of dogs listed with the American Kennel Club (AKC).

Lockwood's interest in animal behavior "came from growing up in a family with animals." He began his study as a zoologist in Ecology and Evolution to further his interest in animal behavior. "My dissertation was on the behavior of wolves," which was researched in Alaska, he said.

Lockwood said he wrote the program because of his interest in both dogs and computers. "It's an educational program to make people aware," said Lockwood. "We ask who is going to exercise it, where it will live, how many children..."

The program was recently tested at the Bide-A-Wee adoption center in Manhattan. Shoppers answered questions about their lifestyle. They were asked if they lived in a house or an apartment, and if the pet would be around dogs, cats, children or many adults. After the questions are completed, the computer lists 10 dogs that would be ideal for the person.

Lockwood explained that the list may give "certain dogs that would be right for you, but you might not like them." To solve this, the program also allows the potential owner to get information on any breed. "One of the main points is to point out some of the drawbacks to certain breeds," he said.

An interesting thing to note is that the program does not always select the dog which will please a person the most. "We are matching people who are going to make the dog happy," Lockwood said. According to Lockwood when a dog is given away to an animal shelter, it is common that there is a behavior problem which originates from having the wrong dog for a particular lifestyle.

"Choose-a-Pooch" is not yet available for home use and definite marketing plans have not been devised. Depending on how the market develops, the program might be adapted to some of the more popular systems, like Apple and Atari.

On the drawing board are educational games for animal care and welfare aimed at small children. "The humane society is looking for computer software dealing with these issues," Lockwood said.

Lockwood will be at the Bide-A-Wee shelter in Wantagh next Thursday and will offer a free demonstration of "Choose-a-Pooch."

Women March, Show Safety Needs

By Therese Lehn

About 150 people took part in the Take Back the Night rally/march held here last Thursday evening. The organizers of the event, the Take Back the Night Committee, deemed the night a success. The event was organized to raise the consciousness of the Stony Brook community on the issue of safety and to show the community the need for a Presidential Task Force on Women's Safety at Stony Brook.

The event began in the Fine Arts Plaza as the participants gathered for a candlelight march through the campus. As the participants passed the Administration building they chanted, "Safety is a right, not a privilege." The march proceeded through the academic mall to the Earth and Space Sciences Building, where the rally was held. Once there, several speakers addressed the need for student involvement in safety issues and the need for the Presidential Task Force. Chuck Hitchcock, Democratic candidate for Congress in the First Congressional District, spoke of the need for students to vote and support representatives who would recognize and work for the rights of women and other minority groups.

Jeannette Hotmer, a detective with the Department of Public Safety and a member of the campus Women's Safety Committee, urged students to get involved in the safety issue. She stressed that students should report any acts of violence to the proper authorities so that corrective measures could be taken and so that university officials can become aware on how wide-spread the problem is here at Stony Brook.

Robin Frankel, president of the Student Association of the State University's (SASU) Women's Caucus, addressed the crowd on state-wide problems on women's safety and SASU's attempt to alleviate the problem on SUNY campuses. According to Frankel, SASU is committed to improve safety of every man and woman on SUNY campuses. At SUNY Albany, "blue phones," a direct line to campus security, have been installed all over campus. For Stony Brook, she urged the need for better lighting conditions, improved bus service (especially at night), self defense courses for women and men, and for the community to band together to demand that administration look on women's safety as a right, not a privilege.

The last two speakers of the night were Curtis and Lisa Sliwa, founders of The Guardian Angels. Each urged women to take responsibility for their life and safety. Lisa Sliwa, herself a victim of violence, stressed the importance of fighting back for, "women aren't going to take it anymore." She stressed the need for elementary and high schools to teach women how to survive in this violent world by giving more self-defense classes and teaching women that they can defend themselves.

After the rally, the participants walked over to the Tabler Cafeteria where they were entertained by the music of Cris Williamson and Tret Fure. The performance stressed the need for world peace and unity.

Dinosaur Damaged

A prank by a group of unknown students resulted in the damaging of a paper mache dinosaur head on Sunday evening. The head was a sculpture which was taken from the museum in the Earth and Space Sciences Building and put atop the Jacob K. Javits Lecture Center sometime Thursday evening.

According to Volunteer Resident Dorm Patrol Commissioner Steve

Cohen, the head lost a horn last night when a building manager at the lecture center threw it into a trash bin.

Public Safety Lt. Robert Sweeney said that his office had been notified about the dinosaur head Friday evening. They called the museum and told the curator to come down and retrieve the sculpture.

On Time At Last

For the first time in almost a decade, Polity has passed its budget on time. This means, for the first time in nine years, a state of emergency is not the norm. Every year in the past, the budget was delayed, not by just a few days, but by months. It was often assembled and passed by the Summer Senate, a body elected for and by students enrolled in summer courses at the university—a body which isn't, and was never intended to be, representative of the normal population of SUNY Stony Brook.

We give Polity a standing ovation for this Herculean leap in the right direction. However, the budget that was passed last Monday still has flaws in it that bear correcting.

Foremost, is the politicizing of the increase in the student activity fee. During the Polity Elections on April 26, the student body will vote on whether to continue paying the student activity fees that fund virtually all Polity activities. Polity is looking to raise that fee by $8.10 per student per semester. They've arranged the budget so that organizations most capable of getting out the vote—i.e., the organizations students care about most—are the ones which will suffer if the fee hike doesn't get passed. Major hikes to college sports, advertising funding, which student publications rely upon, and money to colleges which pay for individual dorm activities, are all included in the fee hike.

Please note one thing, in closing. Our criticism of the Polity budget should not be taken as a blanket condemning of it or Polity. What is most important about the 1984-85 Polity Budget is this: It came in on time.

'WE BELIEVE THE LIL' FELLAS LONG FOR A CHANCE TO EXPERIENCE DEMOCRACY AND THE ELECTORAL PROCESS AS WE KNOW IT.'

Unconditional Love

To the Editor:

For you to love someone does he or she have to be built like Lou Ferrigno or Cheryl Tiegs; skate like Scott Hamilton or rush like John Riggins; be able to dance like Michael Jackson, or be as smooth as Authur Fonzarelli? Get the point? Many of us practice a love that is largely conditional (based on the abilities of other people and their capacity to please us).

My friends at Stony Brook, what happens when another person's looks fade, or their ability to please you diminishes? Do you throw away the relationship and find someone else? Has anyone rejected your friendship this way? Finding a person who truly loves us as we are is difficult to experience. Many of us have dated and have experienced a broken relationship in a period of time. Where can we find someone who never gets tired of loving us and who we can entrust our lives to? Perhaps we ourselves first need to learn how to love someone. But this type of loving is not taught to us in college. During my first year at Cornell University, I found someone who does not love like we do. He loves unconditionally. Even though we have done wrong to this person, He gave us someone very dear to Himself. The Apostle Paul tells us about this person in the New Testament, "but God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8). The person who loves us is God Himself. His son, Jesus Christ, dies for our sins (incidentally, God's Son is also very much God, in the sense that He has the exact same nature and essence as His Father). There is no greater love than for a person to lay down his life for another, especially if the person he dies on behalf of is not worthy of it. Whether we like it or not, we are unworthy people because we have sinned against God. Yet Jesus Christ still dies for us. God does love all of us. To take full advantage of that love, we must receive Christ as our Savior. Once we have done this, God has promised that He would teach us to love others with the unconditional love He has toward us.

A History of Tyranny in Nicaragua

By David Wycoff

"Viva la Revolucion Sandinista y el pueblo de E.U.!"

"Long live the Sandinista Revolution and the people of the U.S.!"

These were the words of goodbye from Juan Carlos as I left the isolated farm at Punta Nata, Nicaragua, where I and 130 other North Americans had spent the past week picking cotton.

It is obvious why, all over Nicaragua, people are saying "Long live the Sandinista Revolution!" There have been many changes in Nicaragua since the Nicaraguan people, led by the Sandinista National Liberation Front (FSLN), overthrew the dictatorship of General Anastasio Somoza in 1979. Illiteracy has been reduced from a national average of 52 percent to less than 13 percent.

Three times as many people now have regular access to health care. A massive agrarian reform program has distributed land to thousands of previously landless peasants. "In just three years, more has been done in most areas of social welfare than in the fifty years of dictatorship under the Somoza family."* For the first time in Nicaragua's history the masses of working people, women and young people are able to organize to defend their rights and make their voices heard at all levels of Nicaraguan society. National elections, to be held in November, will institutionalize the democracy already taking shape in the day to day lives of the Nicaraguan people.

The history of U.S. involvement in Nicaragua is long and disgraceful. In 1854 a town in Nicaragua was destroyed to avenge an insult to the U.S. ambassador to Nicaragua. In 1858, an American named William Walker, who had captured a town in Nicaragua with a mercenary army, declared himself president of that country, made English the official language, and reintroduced slavery, which had been banned there since 1824. His "presidency" was immediately recognized by U.S. President Franklin Pierce. Walker's short-lived reign ended when he was defeated by British and Central American forces in 1861. In 1909, when Nicaraguan President Zelaya opened talks with the Japanese about the possibility of constructing a canal from the Pacific to the Atlantic, the U.S. government, which wanted a monopoly on any canal route in the area, financed an insurrection which overthrew the Zelaya government. In 1912, U.S. Marines began an occupation of Nicaragua which was to finally end 21 years later, in 1933, only after years of growing public opposition to the U.S. and a heroic guerrilla war of resistance led by Augusto Sandino** in Nicaragua. Before the final withdrawal of Marines from Nicaragua, the U.S. created a "National Guard" there, and placed at its head the pro-American Somoza Garcia. Somoza's brutality and thirst for power was well known in the upper circles of the U.S. government. As Franklin Roosevelt said of Somoza, "He's a son-of-a-bitch, but he's ours."*** Somoza's men murdered the national hero, Sandino, in 1934. In 1936, Somoza engineered a coup d'etat which established him as dictator, thus initiating the longest, most brutal, and most corrupt dictatorship in Latin American history. The Somoza family's dictatorship was shored up by U.S. military and economic support, until it was finally overthrown in 1979 after a war that, due to the brutality of Somoza's U.S. trained and supplied National Guard, cost the lives of over 40,000 Nicaraguans.

Since the 1979 revolution, the U.S. government has continued its crimes against the Nicaraguan people. The Reagan Administration has cut off U.S. loans to Nicaragua and has blocked loans from international lending institutions. These loans are desperately needed to aid in the reconstruction of Nicaragua's economy, which was devastated by the anti-Somoza war. The U.S. government is supplying arms, training, and logistical support for attacks on Nicaragua by ex-National Guardsmen (referred to as the contras in Nicaragua). The aim of these attacks seems to be to create a general climate of terror, making it difficult for people in remote areas to participate in government programs. The contras have no popular support in Nicaragua. In fact, they were feared and deeply hated by everyone I spoke to, and have to operate from outside Nicaragua's borders.

We could see the results of this U.S. sponsored aggression everywhere we went in Nicaragua. On the cotton farm in the department of Chinendaga, in the far northwest of Nicaragua, where we lived and worked for 9 days, there was a 15-year old boy who was paralyzed from the waist down in a contra attack on his village in which his father and brother were killed. At night we could see large fires in the distance where the contras were destroying part of the cotton fields, an export crop crucial to Nicaragua's economic recovery. When the wind was right we could hear mortar fire from another U.S.-backed attack from Honduras, about 12 miles to the North. Bomb shelters are everywhere, for the C.I.A. has supplied airplanes to the contras. At Sunday Mass in the capital city of Managua, women told us of their sorrow for their children and grandchildren killed on the Honduran border while defending their beloved Nicaragua Libre (Free Nicaragua) from contra attacks.

Given this record of U.S. involvement in Nicaragua, how could any Nicaraguan say, "Long live the people of the U.S.?" How could women whose loved ones were killed by U.S. supplied bullets fired from U.S. supplied guns by U.S. trained contras hug us and invite us to take communion with them? Everywhere we went in Nicaragua this question was answered in same way: "We hate what the U.S. government is doing to us, but we know that the people of the U.S. are our friends, that they hate what their government is doing to us as much as we do."

How could I explain to my Nicaraguan friends that many people in the U.S. don't even know what our government has done and is doing to Nicaragua? When I recently mailed a package to a friend in Nicaragua, the woman behind the counter at the post office said to me,

The Most Sophisticated Training Ground For Nuclear Engineering Isn't On The Ground.

It's on a Navy ship.

The Navy has more than 1,900 reactor-years of nuclear power experience—more than anyone else in America. The Navy has the most sophisticated nuclear equipment in the world. And the Navy operates over half of the nuclear reactors in America.

With a nuclear program like that, you know the Navy also offers the most comprehensive and sophisticated nuclear training.

Every officer in the Nuclear Navy completes a full year of graduate level technical training. Outside the Navy, this kind of program would cost you thousands. In the Navy, you're paid while you learn.

Then, as a nuclear-trained officer, you supervise highly trained personnel in the operation of the most advanced nuclear propulsion plants ever developed. You get a level of technical and management experience unequalled anywhere else.

You get important responsibilities and you get them fast. Because in the Navy, as your knowledge grows, so do your responsibilities.

Today's Nuclear Navy is one of the most challenging and rewarding career choices a man can make. And that choice can pay off while you're still in school. Qualified juniors and seniors earn approximately $1,000 per month while they finish school.

As a nuclear-trained officer, after 4 years with regular promotions and pay increases, you can be earning as much as $40,500. That's on top of a full benefits package that includes medical and dental care, and 30 days' vacation earned each year.

As a nuclear-trained officer, you also earn a place among this nation's most qualified and respected professionals. So, if you're majoring in math, engineering or the physical sciences, send in the coupon. Find out more about the most sophisticated training ground for nuclear engineering. Today's Nuclear Navy.

A History of American Tyranny in Nicaragua

"Is Nicaragua in Africa?" In a recent poll of an undergraduate history class here at Stony Brook only 7 of 150 students claimed to know which side the U.S. backs in Nicaragua. Of these 7, only 2 really knew the right answer. Obviously, people this ignorant of what's going on in Nicaragua are not opposing U.S. policy there. The Nicaraguans' trust in the people of the U.S. appear to be misplaced. People are killed in Nicaragua every day because of our ignorance and apathy. We must overcome this ignorance and apathy and fight our government's aggressive, destructive, and immoral policies toward Nicaragua. Write a letter to Reagan or a congressman. Participate in a demonstration. Join a Nicaraguan support group.

After spending two weeks in Nicaragua, talking to Nicaraguans from all walks of life, and seeing their obvious pride in the achievements of the revolution and their love for Nicaragua Libre, it is obvious that Nicaraguans will continue to say "Long live the Sandinista Revolution!" We must act now to oppose our government's aggression against Nicaragua, if we want the Nicaraguan people to be able to truthfully say, "The people of the U.S. are our friends."

Journal of Medicine, 307: 388-392. 1982.

**Sandino was (and is) a national hero in Nicaragua for his leadership of resistance to the U.S. occupation. It is in his honor that the Sandinista National Liberation Front is named.

***Time, November 15, 1948, p. 43.

(The writer, a graduate student, is one of over 650 North American volunteers who travelled to Nicaragua in December, January and February, to help with the cotton and coffee harvests, rural development projects, and agriculture.)

Islanders Over Capitals, 3-1

Landover, Md.—Brent Sutter made the tie-breaker in the third period to give the four-time Stanley Cup champion New York Islanders a 3-1 win over the Washington Capitals last night and a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven National Hockey League playoff series.

Greg Gilbert, who assisted on all three New York goals, intercepted an attempted clearing pass by Washington's Larry Murphy to set up the winning goal. The Islanders added an empty net goal with 24 seconds remaining when Bryan Trottier poked in a shot with Gilbert's assist.

Game Four of the Patrick Division final will be at Capital Centre tonight, with the fifth game back to New York in Wednesday.

The Capitals took the early lead on a 30-foot slapshot by Alan Haworth at 5:05 of the second. Pat Flatley tied it for the Islanders. Haworth's goal, his third of the playoffs, came after a dropped pass by Murphy directly in front of the goal. Flatley's shot over Washington goalie Pat Riggin's shoulder came after a pass from Gilbert after Pat LaFontaine's successful faceoff. Billy Smith was credited with 32 saves, including 19 in the scoreless first period.

Yankees Defeat White Sox, 2-1

New York—Ken Griffey's bases-loaded single with two out in the 10th inning gave the New York Yankees a 2-1 victory over Chicago Sunday, snapping the White Sox three-game winning streak. Dave Righetti gained his first victory with 1-2-3 innings of hitless relief.

With one out, Butch Wynegar doubled off Britt Burns, 0-1, who had relieved LaMarr Hoyt to open the inning. Toby Harrah was walked intentionally, and Ron Reed relieved. After both runners advanced on Reed's wild pitch, Lou Piniella walked, loading the bases. Willie Randolph grounded to third, forcing Wynegar at home but Greggery singled to left.

Hoyt was not involved in the decision although he pitched nine innings, allowing just four hits and one run.

Chicago tied the score 1-1 in the fourth as Greg Luzinski stole home on a double steal. With one out, Luzinski walked and, after Tom Baciorek struck out, took third on Ron Kittle's single to center. New York led 1-0 in the first as Randolph singled and scored when Ken Griffey doubled.

Wranglers Rope Generals, 20-3

Kevin Long, who used to play for the New York Jets when they were coached by Walt Michaels, rushed for 123 yards and two touchdowns in leading the Arizona Wranglers to a 20-3 upset of the Michael-coached New Jersey Generals yesterday in the United States Football League. The loss dropped the Generals to 6-2 and out of a first-place tie in the Atlantic Division with the Philadelphia Stars, who trounced the Chicago Blitz 41-7.

With the Wranglers leading 7-3, Long set up a two-yard touchdown run early in the fourth quarter when he hooked up on a 40-yard pass-run play with quarter Greg Landry. Long, who rushed 24 times besides catching three passes for 52 yards, later scored on a nine-yard run. Generals running back Herschel Walker returned after missing a game with a sore shoulder, but gained only 57 yards in 16 carries. In yesterday's only other game, the Birmingham Stallions beat the Michigan Panthers 28-17, dropping the Panthers into a first-place tie with the Oklahoma Outlaws at 6-2 in the Central Division.

Women Run Well at St. John's Invite

Statesman/Ed Gianetti

A member of the women's track team crunches the cinder. The team fared well at St. John's.

The women's track team participated in the annual St. John's Invitational yesterday. There they scored a total of 30 points, the highest overall score that the Patriots ever had in this race.

In spite of the miserable weather conditions, the Patriots set two new school records while coming very close to sending two runners to the outdoor track nationals in Michigan. The new school records were set by Mary Dolan, who finished second in the 1500 meter with a time of 4:45.2. This just missed the qualifying time for the nationals by nine tenths of a second. The other new record holder is Maureen Keyes. She played sixth in the grueling 3000 meter run with a time of 10:40.6. In the 100 meter dash, Joy Enoch ran it in 12.8 seconds, just missing the nationals by four tenths of a second.

Tami Powell did her personal best time of the season in the 100 meter dash. She placed eighth with a time of 13.5. Marie Bernard finished second in the 800 meter race with a time of 2:20.6, despite falling in the beginning of the race. Dolan also participated in this race. She placed fourth with a 2:21.1 time.

In the 1500 meter race, Donna Lyons did a personal best time of 4:56.6. She placed seventh overall. The relay team of Diane Ketty, Cheryl Hunter, Dolan and Bernard finished second in the 4 x 400 relay with a 4:22.9 time.

Coach Kim Hovey was very pleased with their performances. She said that their efforts are all due to their "self motivation and hard work." She also said that many of the women "are striving to make the nationals," and Hovey believes that they can accomplish this goal.

This Friday the women's track team will be at Rutgers University for the Rutgers' Relays.

Stony Brook in action against Queens College.

SB Riders Win At Farleigh-Dickinson

The Stony Brook riding team captured its fifth straight Regional Championship. The Stony Brook horsemen rode to victory on April 8 at the Intercollegiate Horse Show held at Fairleigh-Dickinson University at Rutherford Teaneck.

Stony Brook's riders galloped past 30 other colleges and universities from the metro New York-New Jersey area to win the Region I Championship. Next, Stony Brook will be representing Region I at the United States Intercollegiate Nationals at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania on May 4, 5, and 6. There the team will try to win the National Cartier Cup Championship again. Stony Brook won the contest in 1973 and 1980. Leading the way for Stony Brook's riding team are: Kim Martin, Lisa Feig, Amy Siembieda, Amy Gilbert, Selma Akizil, Sue Pfeffer, Rachel Pine, Tracey Cronin, Lenny Greci, Nannette Norendholt, Karla Wattman, Sharon Skwarek, and Beverly Broos. The riding team is coached by George Lukemire.

Any of the riders that accumulate 28 or more points in one division will be competing at the Regional Horse Show at Pace University on April 15. If they win their respective divisions, they will go on to compete individually at the nationals.

With the nationals so near, Stony Brook riders have been trying to do their finest.

Lacrosse Clobbers Queens

By Jeff Eisenhart

"Right now we are in a winning, positive stage," declared Stony Brook men's lacrosse coach John Ziegler, after the Patriots walloped Drew University 16-4, on Saturday. It was the seventh consecutive win for the Patriots, and the second time in a week that they routed their opponent. On Wednesday, they annihilated Queens College, 23-0.

On Saturday, the Patriots outshot Drew by a 76-14 margin. They led 8-0 before Drew scored its first goal. By halftime, the Patriots advanced to a 12-2 lead.

All-American candidate John Warrick had a fine afternoon leading the Pats with seven points on four goals and three assists. Chris Scaduto also contributed heavily to the Stony Brook cause with four goals and two assists. Another of Stony Brook's All-American candidates, defenseman Tom Dolezal also helped out in the win. He held Drew's leading scorer, Terry Stanfield, to only one goal and one assist. Before the game, Stanfield had been leading the nation in scoring for Division III schools, averaging nearly seven points per game.

Last Wednesday's home game against Queens College was no contest as the 23-0 score indicated. The Patriots outshot Queens by 61-8.

Stony Brook's big guns had a field day. Warrick scored an amazing 13 points on six goals and seven assists. All-American candidate Ray McKenna scored two goals and assisted on four others. Bruce Pollack tallied five goals and two assists in the Stony Brook win.

What did these two romps mean to the Patriots? According to coach Ziegler "hopefully these games will give us national attention." Ziegler also said that Stony Brook will play St. John's University sometime next year, and that they are trying to schedule games against other tough opponents like Haverford and Swarthmore.

The two wins boost the Patriots season record to 7-3. Stony Brook's next game will be at home on Wednesday afternoon against Southampton College at 3 PM.
