

Carey May Seek Tuition Hike For SUNY Students

Combined News Services
State University of New York students face the possibility of a tuition hike for the second year in a row. Thoughts of a hike came after Gov. Hugh Carey presented his 1980-81 executive budget with a $26 million cut in SUNY funds to the state legislature Jan. 22.

According to the governor's aides, Carey is considering several ways of increasing tuition. One would amount to a $250 a year increase for SUNY's 347,000 full-time students. Another, said Henrik Dullea, the governor's education advisor, would require

SUNY graduates to contribute $1,000 to an "endowment fund."

It is unclear whether students would be asked to donate the money or whether they would be required to pay it to graduate.

Currently, tuition for full-time students is $900 a year.

Despite the governor's thoughts of a tuition increase, any increase will have to be approved by the SUNY Board of Trustees. Donald Blinken, the chairman of the board, said Thursday he was informed that the governor is seeking a way to increase the endowment for the nation's largest university system. However, Blinken said that he has not "spoken to the Governor, I know of no proposal and this is too serious a matter to comment on until I see one."

Hugh Tuey, a spokesman for SUNY Chancellor Clifton Wharton, was unable to comment for the Chancellor yesterday. He said, "We see no proposal, I can't give any comment."

Just last April, the trustees increased tuition for lower division students from $750 to $900 after stiff opposition. At the same time, the trustees increased dormitory fees by $50, and eliminated a $15 college health fee. The increase was the result of $9.1 million shortfall for the SUNY system in last year's executive budget.

The effects of this year's budget cut is still uncertain. However, Willis Stephens (R-Brewster), the top minority member of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, said the new budget will result in a loss of 2,125 SUNY employees. He said that between 261 to 287 positions at Stony Brook will be eliminated. However, as of last Tuesday University officials at Stony Brook did not know what effect the budget crunch

HUGH CAREY would have on Stony Brook.

New Calendar Shortens Semester

Classes End: Tuesday, May 5, 1981
Reading and Review Day: May 6
Final Examinations: May 7, 8, 11, 12, 13
Commencement: Sunday, May 17, 1981

Classes will not begin next fall until after Labor Day, and the semester will be shortened, with the approval of the 1980-81 calendar. In addition, classes will extend to 90 minutes, and will not start before 8:30 AM, a half hour later than they now begin.

The calendar, drafted by an ad hoc committee of students, faculty and administrators, at the request of Richard Schmidt, acting University president, was approved by the University Senate. The Senate is a body composed of students, faculty and non-teaching professionals which consults with the University president. The calendar has subsequently been approved by Schmidt and the SUNY Central office in Albany.

Classes that are now 50 minutes long will be extended to 60, and those 75 minutes in length will be extended by an additional 15 minutes. And, with the possible exception of laboratory courses, no classes will be given earlier than 8:30 AM. This change follows a proposal made last fall by Stony Brook engineering major Bruce Chippendale, who found his academic schedule in conflict with that of the Long Island Railroad, on which he commutes to Stony Brook.

With the possible exception of the School of Nursing, which may follow the new academic calendar, schools of the Health Sciences Center will continue to operate on a trimester schedule.

Along with the shortened classes will come greater vacation periods. The intercession between semesters, which has for the past two years been about four weeks long, will be extended an additional week. Lisa Goldsmith, a freshman, said, "It is good to have more holidays off, but there will be too much pressure on students to finish their work." Many students agreed.

"Both the faculty and students will have to adjust to the new calendar," said chemistry professor Robert Kerber, the secretary of the Senate. "Everyone, including faculty members, will have more work to complete in a shorter amount of time."

Asked about their opinion of the upcoming calendar, faculty members were divided on its merits. "The same amount of work that is taught in 15 weeks can be taught in 13 weeks," said biology professor Eloy Carlson. Physics professor Arnold Feingold was not so sure. "You

Courts To Have Final Say On Drafting Women

Washington (AP) — While Congress seems cool toward registering women for the draft, legal scholars say no matter what happens on Capitol Hill, the courts most likely will have the final say on whether women join men in registration lines.

And in the courts, those advocating the registration of women as well as men, including President Jimmy Carter and his advisors, are expected to carry the upper hand, say many legal experts.

"Whichever way it goes in Congress, there will be a suit filed," says Thomas Emerson, a professor of constitutional law at Yale University. "There's no way that the courts can avoid it."

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) already has said it will challenge any attempt to register only men. "The day that the president signs male only registration, we will be in court," vowed David Landau, a staff attorney in the ACLU's Washington office.

Phyllis Schlafly, a leading opponent of the Equal Rights Amendment and harsh critic of women's registration, said she will focus her efforts on Congress, which must approve such registration.

"There's no way Congress will

Hospital To Open Next Tuesday

YEARS OF PLANNING and effort will culminate Tuesday, February 19, with the first phase opening of the University Hospital. Hospital spokesman Jim Rhatigan said that a 30-bed psychiatric care unit in addition to several outpatient services would be among the facilities which will become available this month. The hospital, which is scheduled to be fully functioning by the mid-1980s, will be Suffolk County's only medical facility for tertiary care.

Carter Wins Kennedy's Base

Augusta, Maine (AP) — President Jimmy Carter took the early lead over Sen. Edward Kennedy in the challenger's own New England territory as Maine Democrats voted their presidential preferences in political town meetings.

California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. was running third.

The initial returns came from towns scattered across Maine, most of them small communities. Democratic state chairman Harold Pechios said the turnout was large but the pattern was not yet clear.

With returns in from 61 of the 486 cities and towns holding Democratic caucuses, the contest stood this way:

Carter, 1,168, or 45 percent of the popular vote, for 164 delegates to the Maine Democratic convention. That gave him 54 percent of the delegates elected so far.

Kennedy, 810, or 31 percent, for 52 delegates, or 27 percent of the delegates.

Brown, 517, or 20 percent, for 33 delegates, or 17 percent.

Uncommitted, 93, or 4 percent, for two delegates. The statewide popular vote totals do not affix nominating support for the candidates. The competition that counts is for the local delegates to the Maine state Democratic convention. It will apportion 22 presidential nominating votes in line with the percentage of the local delegates gained by each candidate yesterday.

It was a contest that Kennedy once said was vital to his hope of wresting the Democratic presidential nomination from Carter. The senator from Massachusetts will press his challenge whatever the outcome here.

-NEWS DIGEST- International

Karachi, Pakistan — Moslem rebels recaptured two towns in Badakhshan province in northeast Afghanistan yesterday and laid siege to the capital city of Faizabad in bitter fighting with Soviet troops, a Pakistani newspaper reported.

The daily newspaper Jang said the rebels seized the towns of Tashkan Arbo and Bagh in the Kashma district of Badakhshan, and that fighting continued in nearby Zebak. It said they seized arms, ammunition and food from the fleeing Soviet troops.

National

Washington — President Jimmy Carter's re-election campaign is getting thousands of dollars in contributions from government officials who owe their jobs to him — including his ambassadors to France, Russia, Australia, Sweden, Norway and Panama.

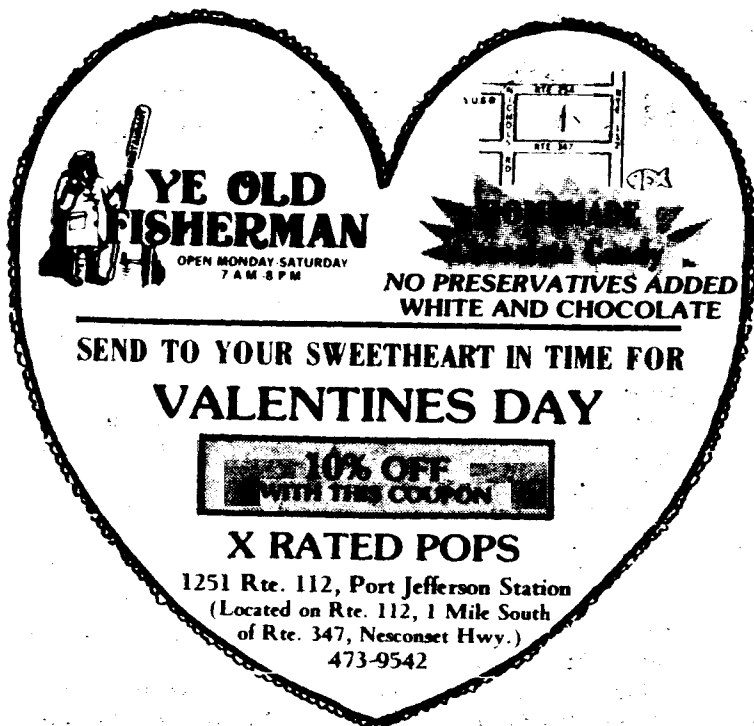

Reports on file at the Federal Election Commission show that through last Dec. 31, Carter's campaign received $91,365 from 159 officials in high-level jobs or members of their families.

State and Local

Albany — The state Energy Planning Board says that New York, which is planning a major conversion to coal-fired electric power plants, should undertake a special study of coal's environmental hazards.

The board's new energy master plan, which had been approved in draft form last month, calls for converting 22 existing oil-fired electric generating plants to the use of coal by 1989, and building about six new coal plants.

Courts To Decide Women Draft Issue

SB Women Will Go, But Reluctantly

register women," she said in an interview. But if unsuccessful on Capitol Hill, she does not rule out some court action, although the basis of such a suit on constitutional grounds is not clear.

After Carter announced Friday that he wants to register both men and women 18 and 19 years of age, White House officials said a major factor in the decision was the prospect of court challenges if women were excluded.

If the president had decided to register only men, said Sarah Weddington, a lawyer and presidential adviser on women's issues, "there was a feeling that a lawsuit against Carter would be successful" in light of a number of recent Supreme Court rulings on women's equality.

Carter said in a statement his decision to include women "is a recognition of the reality that both men and women are working members of our society... There is no distinction possible, on the basis of ability or performance."

A number of experts on constitutional law agree. They note that when the all-male draft was in effect, various court challenges were rebuffed on the grounds that military necessity and national defense outweighed consideration of sexual equality.

The Supreme Court has yet to hear a draft case. But a string of lower court decisions since 1974 have tended to open new avenues for women in the military: the admission of women to service academies; women's equal consideration in awarding of ROTC scholarships; and assignment of women on a broader range of Navy ships, even temporarily on combat ships.

By DOLORES GIRANI

"If I had to go I would, but it doesn't thrill me," was the popular opinion of 19- and 20-year-old Stony Brook women toward President Jimmy Carter's proposal that women born in 1960 and 1961 be required to register for the draft.

Though varying opinions were given about Carter's proposal, a majority of women said that they would go if necessary but would not volunteer their services. "I agree that women should be drafted, and I would go as long as I don't have to be on the front line," said a Mount College resident. Carter's proposal, however, would not require that women engage in battle.

A few women believed that the needs of the country compelled them to serve in the armed forces. "If you don't draft women, then you are not using one of your most valuable resources," declared 19-year-old Michele Raff.

Strong feelings against war and the failure of the ERA to pass were the major reasons women cited in denouncing the draft. "I think it's cool, as long as they pass the ERA before they start drafting," said Susan Alter, a 19-year-old James College resident.

However, many students were totally against drafting men or women because they didn't believe the war would be worth fighting. "I think that world crises can be solved in other ways," said Anita Yee. "We don't need to fight a war."

Raff, however, disagreed. "This isn't something like Vietnam," she said. "This is much more serious. We should show the Russians that we are powerful and that we mean business."

Some women who said they don't want to enlist have already come up with a way to avoid the possibility of draft — they would become pregnant. No one providing this solution wished to be quoted by name.

"If Canada won't accept us, I guess I just won't come back from Mexico this summer," said Sue Greenberg, a junior from Sanger College.

Loop Road Accident

AN AUTOMOBILE CRASH Friday night sent a Stony Brook student to the hospital. The student, whose name Campus Security would not disclose, crashed into several trees beside South Loop Road near the Graduate Biology building at about 10 PM. Skid marks were evident for several hundred feet approaching the site of the crash.

Although the left side of the car, a red Chevrolet, was crushed, the driver apparently managed to walk to the infirmary, according to a Security shift supervisor. Security officers found no one inside the wrecked vehicle. The victim was then taken to Mather Hospital in Port Jefferson.

Cardozo Residents Rally for Rivera

By HOWARD SALTZ

About 25 Cardozo residents jammed the Office of Residence Life Friday afternoon to protest the temporary reassignment of Residence Hall Director Cathi Rivera.

Residence Life Director Claudia Justy was unable to meet with the group at the time, but did agree to meet with their representatives today. Justy indicated, however, that any attempt to block Rivera's reassignment to Gray College would be futile, as the final decision has already been made.

Rivera was informed of her reassignment Tuesday after working as Cardozo RHD for the last two years. According to Justy, she is being transferred to Gray and Kelly A RHD Carleton Fambro to Lang-muir College to fill vacancies and handle "large numbers of freshmen and the continued presence of tripling" which exists in G and H Quad Colleges. Rivera and Cardozo residents are upset with the decision.

Currently, reaction from Kelly A residents is undetermined.

Rivera, who did not attend an unofficial meeting of Gray College legislators last week, is scheduled to officially assume duties as Gray

College RHD Feb. 18. Her failure to show up last week created speculation that she would refuse to be transferred, and thus risk being fired. The protestors, who claimed support of nearly all Cardozo residents, as well as the Polity Senate, are currently seeking an injunction to temporarily stay Rivera's reassignment until their grievances can be heard.

Cardozo Legislature Chairman Brian Ford accused Justy of being both uncooperative and evasive in her failure to meet with the students. However, he said that because of the show of support Friday, as well as petitions signed by hundreds of Cardozo residents, this position may change. "They haven't taken us seriously," Ford said, referring to Residence Life, "But maybe now they will."

can only teach so much in 13 weeks," he said.

The calendar "will be an improvement, except that the extension of class time will make it difficult for students to sit through and concentrate," said sophomore Amy Beers.

However, Tracy DePaul, a junior, said, "The new calendar will enable students to have more time for jobs between classes and intercession."

Similar calendars have already been implemented at State University Centers at Albany and Binghamton. Binghamton has extended classes from 60- to 90-minute periods and Albany from 55 to 80.

The calendar will be in effect for the next two years, Kerber said. At the end of this time its success will be evaluated.

A Legitimate Basis

President Jimmy Carter's recent unveiling of his proposal to register America's youth for the draft has caused considerable concern at college campuses across the nation. Ever since the Vietnam War, the word "draft" has evoked a response of dread from many Americans — and rightly so. In retrospect, American intervention in Vietnam was a serious error on the part of U.S. policy makers — we became involved in the internal matters of a country without any legitimate basis for that involvement. Young men were sent half way around the world to fight and die for a non-existent cause.

However, times have changed. With the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, a serious problem has revealed itself. Currently, we are unable to adequately protect our vital interests abroad. No longer are we talking about an ideological communist threat — the rhetoric espoused by government leaders during the Vietnam War days. The Soviet Union invasion of Afghanistan poses a strategic threat, not just to our interests, but to those of the entire Western Hemisphere.

The Soviets are now within striking distance of the Strait of Hormuz, the gateway of Western oil. Approximately every 21 minutes an oil tanker headed for the West passes through this strategic strip of water. If an oil shutoff were to occur, disastrous economic consequences would result. The U.S. must be prepared to meet any Soviet military aggression in an area so important to the well-being of the free world.

The Soviet military machine far surpasses ours in terms of equipment and preparedness. The gross national product of the Soviet Union is 60 percent of the United States; yet in the last decade, the Soviets spent between 10 and 14 percent of their GNP on military expenditures while the U.S. in 1970 (a Vietnam War year) spent eight percent. Today, the U.S. is spending only five percent.

This significantly larger Soviet military budget has enabled the Russians to produce military equipment at a pace that far exceeds that of the U.S. The Soviets produce 2000 tanks per year; the U.S., 650. The Russians produce 500 combat planes per year, the U.S., 275. But, even more important than this equipment disparity is our lack of trained manpower capable of dealing with a Soviet threat in the Persian Gulf Region and many other parts of the world, including Western Europe.

Mandatory registration of the draft for both men and women is a viable solution to this serious problem. The purpose of this registration is not to train young Americans for combat. Rather, it is to enable this country to better mobilize its resources in the event that hostile action by another country requires a military response. Without registration, it would take approximately 110 days before the first men and women would be able to report for training, with registration, 10 to 20 days.

Unlike the Vietnam War days, registrants will not be classified, nor will they be issued draft cards. In addition, there will be no college deferments; hence, the middle and upper class will not be exempted from possible military service and none of the inequalities of the previous draft will result.

Requiring women to register is also an improvement in past registration procedures. Many other countries use women in supportive combat roles and there is no good reason why we should be any different.

The time has come when we must face realities. Our mistake in Vietnam must not cloud the present world situation. Our past errors in foreign policy must not blind us to the current threat now facing us. The call for registration is not a return to the Cold War rhetoric one would associate with such a move in the past. It is a call made in response to a changing world situation that requires the United States to increase its state of preparedness.

We have a responsibility to ourselves and our allies to guard against blatant aggression abroad. Let us not be caught unprepared; let us not shirk our responsibility.

Letters A Lousy Comment

To the Editor:

We at Gray College understand the position that those of Cardozo College are in. We also feel that Cathi Rivera is being treated unfairly and she should be allowed to stay in a dormitory where she is needed and loved. However, Gray College is not in total agreement with the rather stuck-up individual who wrote the editorial which unfairly stated that this is a "less desirable dormitory."

Did the student who wrote that lousy comment bother to take a look at Gray College? Did the person who wrote that "objective" report ever live at Gray? Does the individual know any one who lives at Gray? It's doubtful. So where does this person get his information? Where does this idiot get off telling us we are undesirable? That was a slanderous statement that alienated at least a couple of hundred co-eds that live at this dormitory.

If the author of that editorial had bothered to do his homework, he would know this is not true. The vandalism problem at Gray College is limited to a few scrawlings on the bathroom stalls. How clean are the public facilities at Cardozo? I live on the first floor and have yet to witness any major damage to a room. Sure, we pull pranks on fellow hallmates. But it's all in fun. There is no desire to hurt anyone or cause someone to lose something of value for the sake of entertainment.

Are we less desirable because we are freshmen? That's a ridiculous, and prejudicial statement. We pride ourselves on our unity. We are not just a horde of "just out of high school" kids. We are interested in academic pursuits like everyone else. If not, we wouldn't be here.

The quad we live in, G-Quad, is not the terrible place that the editorial made it out to be. There are only a handful of triples (another fact the editorial missed). The quad is a good one — we feel it's the finest. We work together as a community. The G-Quad Council (of which I am a member) has been planning events that keep us spirited and united. An example of our unity was our recent Cabaret Night, where volunteers worked all night to entertain and serve customers. I, for one, am glad I live in G-Quad, and particularly glad I live with the co-eds at Gray College.

In conclusion, Gray College people are proud to be Gray College people. Any one who says something like that doesn't know us and should keep his biased, unfounded opinions to himself.

Ronald Sherrill

Editor's Note: Mr. Sherrill, not only was the writer of the editorial a resident of Gray College for two years, but a number of Statesman editors have lived there also. Therefore, we have a pretty good idea about the situation in Gray College.

In addition, it was Rivera who implied that Gray College is "a less desirable" place and not Statesman. However, from the way the editorial was written, it appears that this is the opinion of the newspaper. This is not necessarily so, and we apologize for our mistake. But then again, it was Claudia Justy who said that the high number of freshmen and triples caused her to move "experienced" people into both Gray and Langmuir Colleges.

Statesman will accept samples from Columnists and Cartoonists. Applicants must submit two samples to Room 058 in the Union. Columns should be about 600 words and cartoons should be 8" by 12".

Dowling Nips Pats, 54-52

"This was a must-win game," said Malave. The Pats are trying to gain a Division III playoff berth for the fourth consecutive year. Stony Brook made it close by missing near-crucial free throws near the end of the game.

By the end of regulation play, four Manhattanville starters had fouled out of the game, enabling the Pats to win in overtime. Said Mitchell, "We should have beat them easily, but we made it close."

Dowling Slips By Patriots, 54-52

By DAN COHEN

The Stony Brook Men's Basketball Team went to Dowling College last year with a 23-0 record and a no. 1 ranking in Division III. The Patriots lost the game and their momentum, as they proceeded to lose their next two games in the NCAA East Regional playoffs. The memory of that loss was fresh in the minds of the Pat's returning lettermen Friday night when they went against Dowling.

"We wanted this one bad 'cause of last year," said guard Paul Santoli. "We won 23 straight [during the '77-78 and '78-79 seasons] and lost."

The Patriots failed to get their revenge, but they did show that they could play a good game with a Division II power.

After overcoming an eight point deficit in the first half, Stony Brook held a two-, and sometimes four-point margin over Dowling for most of the second half. At times it looked as though the Pats would put the game away, but they muffed some easy scoring chances. With three minutes remaining on the game clock, power forward Mike Crooms fouled out, soon followed by center Heyward Mitchell.

In an attempt to hold on to a three point lead, Stony Brook went into a stall. But tough defense by Dowling forced a turnover which was quickly converted into two points. Stony Brook missed a shot and Dowling converted for a one-point lead, 53-52. With only 1:04 remaining, the Pats had to score to win.

Several times sharpshooter Rich Malave looked to score but found himself too tightly covered. Finally, with ten seconds left in the game, Mel Walker, the only player on the squad who started against Dowling last year, took an errant 25 footer. Dowling's Tony Roye pulled down the rebound and was quickly fouled. He sank his first free throw and missed the second. Stony Brook got the rebound, threw the ball downcourt and, with one second left, Santoli missed a long jumper from the baseline. Dowling ended up on top, 54-52.

The Patriots were not ashamed of their performance. "We played them pretty well, said Co-Captain Mitchell. "We took a couple of shots we shouldn't have. We should have looked inside more. At the end, we were trying to work it into a lay up." Asked if this loss will affect the team's confidence, Mitchell said, "No, we played a good game. We've got to win the rest of our Division III games."

It was a physical game. Stony Brook got more than its share of fouls and Dowling took advantage of the situation. "They made 14 points on free throws and we made six of eight," said Coach Dick Kendall, "I can't second guess now — I don't think I would do anything different if I could do it again. We played a good game. They're 15-5 in Division II — they have a good team. Either team could have won. We've got to beat Manhattanville tomorrow [Saturday]."

* * *

Joe Grandolfo had a career high of 23 points and Rich Malave added 19 as the Patriots beat Manhattanville College Saturday 75-65 in overtime after blowing a five-point lead in the final seconds of the fourth quarter.

Swimmers Lose to Paltz; Drop to Second Place

By ALAN OLSEN

At the pool in the Stony Brook Gymnasium Saturday, a battle of champions occurred. And to the victor went the undisputed title of first place in Division II Metropolitan men's swimming.

It is rare that two teams, both boasting undefeated records in their respective divisions, meet so late in a season. But such was the case when Stony Brook met New Paltz in a most crucial contest. The fact that the New Paltz swimmers were strong on paper was known before the meet. Their previously recorded times led the division. They had powerful medley teams and depth that left no weak spots in any of the events. And the Patriots fell to them Saturday, losing 69-43.

When two teams of such outstanding quality and character meet head to head the results are amplified by an ever-present aura of competition. For both teams Saturday, the swimmers realized the need for outstanding personal times in their respective events. For New Paltz, this was something new since they had playfully romped through the season virtually uncontested. Stony Brook has had their backs against the wall before, both with Maritime and St. Francis. But both times, the Pats reached inside and were rewarded with success.

The Patriots once again reached in and turned in one of their finest performances of the season. Many Stony Brook swimmers turned in their fastest times of the season.

The New Paltz swimmers, who had previously won their meets in lackadaisical style, finally pushed themselves to maximum potential. At the conclusion of one of the events, a father of a New Paltz swimmer proudly boasted: "See I told you he was lazy. All he needed was some real competition to get him off his butt. He knocked three seconds off."

Records Smashed

The highlight of the meet came in the second event, the 1,000-yard freestyle. New Paltz swimmer Jim Leland, who swam 36 pool lengths against Patriot Rod Woodhead, took first place after a strong kick. His winning time of 10:21.3, w.s both a personal record and a Stony Brook pool record, destroying the old record by 33 seconds, and a brand new conference record.

At the meet's conclusion, both teams demonstrated their good sportsmanship. The Patriots in unison shouted, "Hey New Paltz, what the hell are you doing here? Let's go out and get a beer." New Paltz cheer: "Nice meet Stony Brook! You're buying!"

Tracksters Run at Millrose Games

The smell of victory mingled with the smell of sweat Friday as the 73rd Wanamaker Millrose Games got underway at Madison Square Garden. The Stony Brook Men's Indoor Track Team was there: its mile relay team, consisting of junior Andy Nelkin, sophomore Pete Loud and seniors John Folan and Ricky King, their sole representative.

Confusion

"You know who ran good? We all did," said Nelkin, he himself running the first leg of the relay in 47.0. The first leg was a quarter-mile minus a 50-yard handicap. The second leg was a full quarter mile, as were the third and fourth run by Folan in 51.1. The third leg was run in 53.8 by King and the anchor leg was run in 52.5 by Loud. The team's total time of 3:24.4 carried them to a fifth-place overall in the 23-team field.

"I thought the team did very well as a whole but there were too many people on the track so there was a lot of confusion and bumping going on during the race," said King.

Aggression

"I almost got pushed off the track," said Nelkin. "The people next to me were really aggressive, a little belting, but I ran well."

In addition to Stony Brook's event, there were quite a few notable events Friday evening. A world record was set by Mary Decker of Colorado. She ran the mile in 4:08, 2.2 seconds off the previous woman's records. She ran her first quarter three seconds faster than the men ran the Wanamaker mile, which was won by Eamonn Coghlan of Ireland in 3:58.2.

Other records set Friday evening included Joni Huntley, who jumped to an American indoor high jump record when she cleared 6'4 1/4". Both Franklin Jacobs and Ben Fileds cleared 7'5" in the high jump but Jacobs won by virtue of having fewer misses. Earl Bell was the first pole vaulter to clear 18' in four years, taking first place in that event. Stephanie Hightower beat the existing world record, flying over the 60-yard hurdles in 7.47 seconds.

The Patriots will compete in their next meet Feb. 16 at Farmingdale. It is a developmental meet and the Pats expect to enter events other than those which they usually enter.
