

Transferred Cardozo RHD Resigns

By BENJAMIN BERRY

A stand-off between the Office of Residence Life and Cardozo Residence Hall Director (RHD) Cathi Rivera ended this week with Rivera's resignation, effective today at 5 PM.

Residence Life reassigned Rivera to Gray college, and Kelly A RHD Carlton Fambro to Langmuir over a month ago to have "an experienced person" to deal with the "large number of freshmen and the continued presence of tripling" in the G and H Quad dormitories, according to a memorandum issued by Residence Life Director Claudia Justy. Graduate interns were to take over the positions vacated by the two transferred RHD's.

Fambro has already assumed his responsibilities in Langmuir, but there had been considerable protest by Cardozo residents over the intended reassignment of Rivera.

Rivera, who maintained throughout the conflict that she would not move, was supposed to have assumed her Gray College position

Feb. 18, according to Justy. When she did not report to work, the deadline was then extended to Feb. 25. After missing that deadline, Rivera's case was turned over to the Office of Personnel. A decision from that office as to the fate of Rivera was supposed to have been made this past week.

Sam Taub, Assistant to the Vice-President for Student Affairs, said last week that the conflicting parties were attempting a compromise. However, he maintained that Residence Life has the "perrogative to move its personnel." "Rivera was hired as an RHD. Her contract did not specify which college she would work in. She happened to be assigned to Cardozo."

Taub also said that the union of United University Professors, which includes faculty and non-teaching professionals, was involved with the negotiations. Lenore Rosen, Grievance Chairwoman for the Union, said that she had advised Rivera on the situation. However, Rosen said that the union could "not really get involved because "there was no breach of contract."

Rivera, who had been Cardozo's RHD for the last two years, said that she was told last Friday by her supervisor, Roth Quad Director Hamilton Banks, that a graduate intern had been selected to fill her post next week. She then submitted her resignation to Justy the following Monday (March 3.)

"It's too bad that the students are getting the short end of it," Rivera said. "A lot of changes have to be made in Residence Life. Many staff members are unhappy and a lot of RHD's are looking for other jobs."

Rivera acknowledged that legally Residence Life had the right to reassign her. However, she insisted that she was originally hired to fill a vacancy in Cardozo. "If they had showed me Gray or Langmuir and told me I would have had to work there, I would have not taken the job," she said.

"This is an unfortunate situation," Taub stated. "Cathi was recognized as a fine RHD. She had even received merit money."

"The students are really upset," said one resident. "She was a very competent person and they [the Administration] dumped her. This is just another way in which the administratin has shown how insensitive they are to students' feelings."

Rivera, who is moving off campus this weekend, has found another job.

Coram Company Takes Over Bus: Offers Special Fares

By MARK L. SCHUSSEL

Stony Brook students can now take a bus ride as far as Riverhead for only 25 cents per trip because of an agreement between Polity and the Coram Bus Service.

The special rate went into effect yesterday after Coram took over the operation of Polity's bus service to Port Jefferson. Previously, the Long Island Airport Limousine Service (LIALS) had control of the service running along Route 25A into Port Jefferson Station. LIALS was forced to discontinue the service because of threats of legal action by Coram which was given the exclusive right to charge for service along the route by the state's Department of Transportation. Coram had charged 40 cents per passenger while LIALS charged 25 cents.

All Stony Brook ID card holders will be able to get the special fare on three of Coram's bus lines. One runs along various routes including 25A and 58 between Riverhead and the Smithhaven Mall. Another runs along Route 112 between Two Guys Plaza in Coram and Port Jefferson Harbor, and at this point another bus runs to the University and continues on to the Smithhaven Mall. The company operates its buses Monday through Saturday. For fare, schedule and additional stop information, the Coram Bus Service can be reached at 732-5518.

Shirley King, the president of the Coram Bus Service, explained the rationale behind the new special fare. "I would rather pick up four students at 25 cents than one other passenger at 75 cents. I got the bus going there anyway," she said.

In addition to the special fare, Coram has expanded the route to include stops on Route 347 at Old Town Road, the University Gardens apartment complex and the Fox Movie Theatre. This bus is for use only by university community members paying 25 cents.

Both arrangements were made by King and Polity President David Herzog.

King said she hopes that the two buses going to the University will continue to operate without merging them into one service.

However, within the first three days, starting Feb. 21, only 16 students travelled it.

Herzog said the "bus should have about 25 people riding it at one time" to keep it going. "If there is no need for the bus, then the students should let us know."

A survey published by Statesman earlier this semester showed that 500 of 503 respondents were in favor of a Port Jefferson route. Polity for the last few years has had a bus running to the Smithhaven Mall.

And, King said, "I think there are an awful lot of people there who will use the bus, especially after proper advertising." She did not, however, rule out the possibility of eliminating one of the two buses going to campus in the future. "I'll play it by ear," she explained.

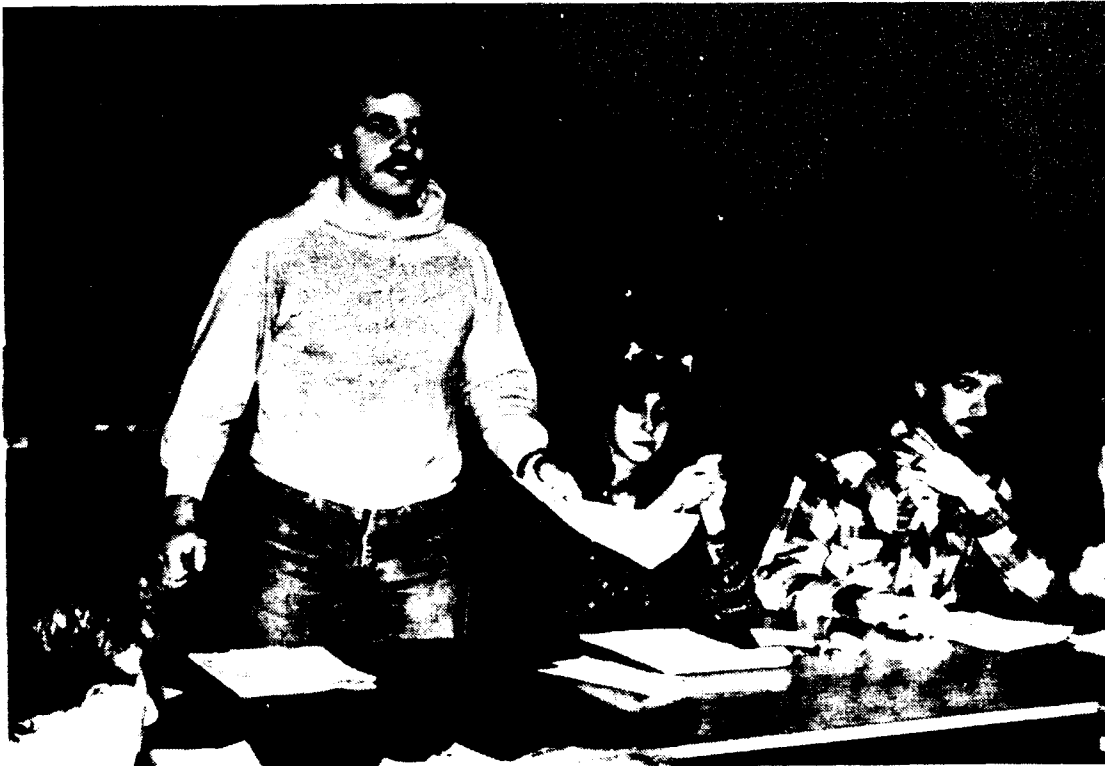

Presently, no contractual agreement exists between Polity and Coram. Both Herzog and King hope that one will exist soon.

Coram is currently paying for a substantial part of the operating costs for the bus, and King said that next week financial arrangements will be straightened out.

Under a verbal agreement with LIALS, Polity paid the company $8 per hour in addition to the 25-cent fee paid by each student. Due to the possibility of legal violations, LIALS had temporarily allowed passengers to travel free, before a final solution was reached.

Until Monday, the old bus schedule will remain in effect. Buses run Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday between 7:30 AM and 10:30 PM and Saturday between

Iran Militants OK Compromise

Tehran (AP) — Moslem militants in the U.S. Embassy, who have held some 50 Americans hostage for four months, said yesterday they were ready to give up their captives to Iran's Revolutionary Council.

Carter administration officials, fearful of "blowing the whole thing," reacted cautiously to what was seen as the most significant breakthrough thus far in the 124-day-old standoff.

A spokesman for the militants, contacted by telephone from Bonn, West Germany, would give no indication when the transfer might take place and there was no indication the move would soon lead to freedom for the Americans.

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, emerging from a meeting at which the Revolutionary Council accepted the militants' offer, made clear the authorities still view the Americans as hostages.

"Our conditions are rather clear" for their release, he said, apparently referring to President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr's three demands — that the U.S. government acknowledge past interference in Iranian affairs, that it pledge not to interfere in the future, and that it promise not to block efforts to have the deposed shah and his "stolen wealth" returned to Iran.

He said he was unable to answer questions about whether the hostages would be removed from the embassy and where they would be held.

President Carter has said the United States has no intention to interfere in Iran, but has ruled out any admission of past guilt.

Ghotbzadeh said the transfer of the hostages to the custody of the Revolutionary Council, about 12 Moslem clergymen and lay revolutionaries who rule Iran, would be arranged by a special "commission" that would meet Friday. The members of the commission were not identified.

International

Jerusalem — The Israeli parliament decided yesterday to ignore a U.N. resolution demanding removal of Israeli settlements in occupied Arab territory. Prime Minister Menachem Begin said that despite U.S. disavowal of its vote for the resolution, Washington still endorsed parts of it that "expressed total hostility to the state of Israel."

Opposition leader Yitzhak Rabin, a former prime minister, added that American handling of the matter signaled a tougher U.S. stand in the future on the issue of Palestinian rights.

Bogota, Colombia — Terrorists holding the Dominican Republic Embassy released one hostage yesterday, and a government official said the talks aimed at freeing the remaining captives focused on the guerrilla demand that 311 alleged political prisoners be released.

Austrian Ambassador Edgar Selzer, freed in order to return home to the side of his gravely ill wife, was reported by the Venezuelan state news agency to have told a reporter that he had not eaten in eight days.

His release leaves 14 ambassadors or acting ambassadors in the embassy, including U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio, plus an undetermined number of other hostages. There were an estimated 29 guerrillas, one of them wounded, in the building.

St. Petersburg, Fla. — Gerald R. Ford inched closer to entering the presidential race yesterday as a national draft-Ford committee was formed to encourage him to make the jump. If enough people ask, the former president said, "I'd have a hard time saying no."

Creation of the draft committee was announced by former Air Force Secretary Thomas C. Reed, who said Ford should know that many Americans agree he "offers the best alternative to the bankrupt policies" of the Carter administration.

The former president said he had been given pledges of support from Democrats and independents as well as Republicans in the past several months. He invited them to make their support public.

Washington — A House subcommittee voted 8-1 yesterday to kill President Carter's request for the authority to include women in a draft registration program.

The vote, the first congressional test of sentiment for registering women, does not affect registration of men.

The issue of male registration is tied up in the House Appropriations Committee, where budgetary problems have stalled a vote on Carter's request for money to start registration this summer.

The vote against including women in registration was taken in the House Armed Services military personnel subcommittee, where members argued there is no military need to register women.

Mineola — The potato beetle pesticide Temik, already banned by federal regulations, was banned yesterday in Suffolk County by the state Department of Environmental Conservation.

The order, effective today, was aimed at protecting groundwater sources on Long Island. The state Health Department reported March 3 that contamination by the chemical had been found in about 25 percent of the 200 wells tested on eastern Long Island.

Temik, Union Carbide Inc.'s brand name for aldicarb, is a pesticide used against the voracious Colorado potato beetle and the golden nematode.

Groundwater problems has been noted in sections of Long Island with high water tables, such as Sagaponack, Southold, Wainscott, Orient and Water Mill, all in the Riverhead area.

Health Commissioner David Axelrod said earlier in the week he may recommend that residents of the contaminated area switch to bottled water.

Union Traffic Light Proposal Killed

By NANCY J. HYMAN

A pedestrian traffic light that was proposed for the front of the Stony Brook Union is not going to be built, due to the scarcity of funds and what many believe will be the futility of such a light.

"The problem is enforcement," Deputy to the President Sanford Gerstel explained. "People just don't pay attention [to traffic regulations]." Junior Robin Pillinger added that, "if cars would go the speed limit, there would be no problem, there's a 15 mile per hour speed limit."

The primary reason for erecting a light at the busy intersection is safety. Public Safety Director Robert Cornute said that there had been "many reported near misses" of cars hitting pedestrians in front of the Union. The proposed project did go fairly far into its planning stages before it was finally rejected. "We have designed drawings" of the proposed pedestrian traffic light," explained Gerstel.

The problem in actually having the light erected seems to be the lack of funds. "We are in the midst of a severe fiscal crunch," Gerstel asserted.

The University "doesn't need to go into a $15,000 to $20,000 traffic light," he remarked, adding that he was going to suggest to University Business Manager Paul Madonna that the Department of Public Safety have full stop signs erected instead of the light on an experimental basis. "Full stop signs will be just as effective as a traffic light," he explained.

THE BRIDGE in front of the Stony Brook Union was the proposed site of a traffic light.

Cornute had originally thought that he might assign security officers to man posts by the Union, but this idea was discarded due to the fact that there were only five officers patrolling the main campus on any one shift.

Many students felt that the proposed light would be pointless. "The buses are going to go off schedule," remarked Dee Weiss. Senior Ellen Goldstein mused, "I think a light near the Union is useless. No one is going to stop and wait for a walk signal when they're going to classes."

As Zappa Says: 'Dancin Fools'

ELIZABETH WADSWORTH, VICE PRESIDENT FOR STUDENT AFFAIRS AND TERENCE NETTER, FINE ARTS CENTER DIRECTOR, were among the crowd at last night's disco night at the Benedict Saloon. The two University administrators were out on the dance floor mingling and dancing.

Wadsworth said it was "strictly a friendly visit." She went to the Saloon "because I've been wanting to come and hang out, and Terry Netter wanted to see the students during their off hours."

Saloon manager Donnie Fayther said he was "glad that they came down to see people have a good time." He also said that he invites other administrators to do the same, and, perhaps, they "wouldn't have such a negative attitude toward the Saloon."

Carey Rules Out Tuition Increase

The possibility of a tuition hike, or creation of any endowment fund which SUNY graduates would be asked to contribute $1,000 to, has been ruled out by the Governor, said Bill Synder, the governor's deputy press secretary.

During the last month, there has been some speculation that the Governor might ask the SUNY Board of Trustees to pass a tuition hike. And several weeks ago, Gov. Hugh Carey met with the editors of the capital's newspapers to discuss the creation of an endowment fund.

Both ways of bringing additional revenue into the SUNY system were plans of the Governor's after he chopped $26 million from his 1980-81 executive budget allocation for the SUNY system.

Synder said that Carey never made formal proposals for either a tuition hike or endowment fund. "Carey just floated the ideas" which "did not receive too much enthusiasm," said Synder.

Currently, tuition for SUNY's 347,000 full-time students is $900 a year. Last April, the trustees increased tuition for lower division students from $750 to $900 despite some stiff opposition. The increase was the result of a $9.1 million shortfall in last year's executive budget allocation for the SUNY system.

New Bus Company

(Continued from page 1) 11:00 AM and 9:30 PM. Polity will announce a new schedule in its ad pages in Monday's Statesman.

Polity has allocated $1,600 for the service thus far, and Herzog speculated that it will cost an additional $3,200 for the semester. Some of this money, Herzog hopes, will come from the merchants in Port Jefferson.

In addition, Polity's mall bus, which only cost 25 cents, has been increased to 40 cents. The bus, which is operated by LIALS, was increased after the company stopped operating its bus to Port Jefferson. According to Herzog, Polity has no contractual agreement with LIALS, and, thus, the company has the right to increase the fare. Herzog said that the increase was due to vengeance on the part of LIALS officials. LIALS spokesmen refused to comment.

Tarnished Credibility And Embarrassment

With the recent United States vote supporting the U.N. resolution condemning Israeli settlements on lands which were acquired after the Six Day War, and then the sudden denunciation of the vote by President Jimmy Carter, our reputation and credibility have been tarnished both domestically and internationally.

The original approval of the resolution was disgraceful in its own right. To demand that Israel return Jerusalem — the capital of its country, the cornerstone of its ideology — to its Arab neighbors, was blatant arrogance on the part of all nations involved.

But, more bewildering than the vote itself, was the United States' explanation for the vote. Apparently, the U.S. supported the resolution because of a "lack of communication" between the State Department and our U.N. delegate Donald McHenry. So says Carter.

A brief examination of some of the circumstances which surrounded the vote clearly reveals that Carter's explanation is fallacious.

Carter strongly opposed the Israeli government's recent decision to permit Jews to settle in the heart of Hebron, the most nationalistic of the Arab cities on the West Bank. In addition, last week, before the vote on the resolution took place, McHenry negotiated with Arab and other third world delegates as to the resolution's wording. With this in mind, it is quite conceivable that the Carter administration had knowingly planned to change the United States' long-standing policies of support for Israel.

As to Carter's quick reversal on the vote, a glance at recent political developments in the Middle East reveal that this is not the first time that the Carter administration has demonstrated political indecisiveness.

For instance, after having endorsed the idea of a Palestinian homeland, Carter modified his position and ruled out the concept of a Palestinian state.

In October, 1977, the U.S. and the Soviet Union concurred in a statement of principles which were to guide the Middle East peace talks conferences. However, the Carter administration dropped the idea when Egyptian President Anwar Sadat made his own proposal to Israel.

In August, the Carter administration made an effort to support a resolution on Palestinian rights, but backed down again when both Israel and Egypt disapproved.

Then, in December, 1979, the Carter administration stationed an aircraft carrier task force in the Persian Gulf region, only to hope that the Iranian hostage situation at the American Embassy would be resolved through the U.N.

Obviously, political indecisiveness and swayableness are not new to Carter. By his repudiation of the United States' vote reprimanding Israel for its settlement policy, our credibility and image have been severely sullied. This is the most important issue at stake here. Granted, Carter's sudden change in policy towards one of our strongest allies is deplorable. But, the fact that we, once the most powerful nation in the world, have a foreign policy which is vacillating and unreliable is even more disconcerting. In the words of one Arab delegate, "We [the world] will now have to wait 48 hours before accepting a U.S. vote in the U.N. as final."

Perhaps this unfortunate incident in the U.N. was the strongest cry yet for new leadership and direction in this country. We cannot afford another embarrassment like this again.

Correction

In the housing survey article in the March 3 issue, it was incorrectly stated that "six to eight [people] from a hall would be assigned to a suite" to alleviate the tripling problem on the halls. It should have read, "six to 18 people... assigned to the suites."

Men's Track Team Is Impressive At Championships

By LISA NAPELL

While the rest of the campus slept soundly, recovering from its Saturday night revels, the Stony Brook Men's Indoor Track Team was packing its bags for the ride to Princeton for the Collegiate Track Conference (CTC) championships.

The first surprise of the day was not too pleasing. Upon entering the team locker room, they found that it had been vandalized during the night with $300 worth of equipment stolen.

The second surprise of the day, however, was pleasant. The van started right up and it even had heat.

Stony Brook swept the 1600-meter walk with freshman Ben Marsh taking the second place medal and, yet another freshman, Jim Golan, taking fourth place.

"I think I did very good considering it was only my second race ever in college competition," said Marsh. "The reason I did so well was that I was so nervous, I didn't even know who was in the race, so I just had to go out for first place."

Golan said that he "would have liked to have finished much closer to a two-minute quarter." His actual time was 7:49 for the entire 1600-meters. Marsh finished at 7:24.5.

The mile-relay team also did well. They set a Stony Brook indoor record with a total time of 3:31.9. The first leg was run in 53.1 seconds by Sophomore Pete Loud. Loud was followed by juniors Andy Nelkin and Ricky King, in 52.5 and 53.7 respectively. Senior John Folan ran the last quarter in a fine 51.9.

The entire team is eagerly awaiting the outdoor track season. Said Team Captain Paul Cabot, "I'm waiting for the spring season, for outdoor track, warm weather, and beautiful babes."
