

Cooking Fee Violations Charged

An expected increase in next year's cooking fee has brought charges of faulty administration of the Dormitory Cooking Program for which the fee pays. The $50 annual fee could increase by as much as 50 percent and include all but those on a full meal plan. About 1,600 students are now on a partial or full meal plan, and more are now required to pay a cooking fee. The fee funds the service and maintenance of dormitories on campus, as well as administrative costs of the cooking program, which was initiated in 1972 to finance the installation of cooking facilities throughout campus.

Members of the Dormitory Cooking Evaluation Committee have said that without an increase in the cooking fee this program would come to an end, and numerous services provided through the fee would have to be eliminated. The committee, composed of students and administrators, will soon make a recommendation to the University of how much the fee should be increased. "There's no way the fee can remain the same and still provide the same service," said Cardozo resident Brian Ford, a committee member.

Student officials, however, have charged that services that are supposed to be funded by the fee have not been met, and they have questioned the necessity of an increase.

Junior Representative David Grossman, the chairman of the Polity's Residence Life Advisory Committee, has said that companies with which the University has contracted for extermination and repair of dormitory cooking equipment have not adequately performed their services as a result of negligent oversight by the University. In a Jan. 24 memorandum to University Assistant Business Manager John Williams, who oversees the dormitory cooking program and is chairman of the cooking committee, Grossman asserted that the B and L Exterminating Company of Smithtown has not been servicing each building once a week as is stipulated in its contract. "Our cooking fee money goes to pay for this service, and yet these contractual rules go unenforced by the Office of Business and Finance, while the pest and rodent problem worsens," wrote Grossman.

Grossman additionally charged that "much of the cooking equipment available is not working and is left without being repaired." The University's contract with Precise Appliance Inc. of Selden calls for repair to be performed "as soon as possible or within 24 hours." This has not occurred, Grossman said, and "a new system of letting this contractor know where broken appliances are must be arranged..."

Williams said that responsibility for proper dormitory extermination rests with quad directors and residence hall directors. Williams added that repair of broken appliances is performed within 24 hours of the report.

Officials from neither B and L nor Precise were available for comment yesterday afternoon.

Although the extermination contract requires that areas of each dormitory on campus be serviced

Rock Festival Monies Rejected Once Again By Commuter College

By NANCY J. HYMAN

A proposal for the allocation of $4,050 for a campus-wide rock festival was voted down by the Commuter College Overseeing Committee Wednesday.

The proposal allocation, which had been revised from an original figure of $5,000, failed to obtain the required two-thirds majority which is required for any allocations in the Commuter College constitution. Although 13 people voted in favor of the allocation and 8 voted against it, the required two-thirds majority was not reached.

Also voted down at the meeting was an allocation of $2,500, which was to be used towards the Sunfest which was to be run in conjunction with the rock festival. The rock festival was also to be partially funded by Kelly Quad, which was to give $1,050 towards the party.

Committee Chairman Richard Zuckerman said, "The

A POPULAR SENTIMENT among Benedict E-O residents is scrawled on a boarded up bathroom window on the hall.

Campus Crime Prevention Unit Vacates Benedict's E-O Hall

By RACHEL KERDMAN

Campus Security's Crime Prevention Unit (CPU), temporarily stationed on Benedict E-O has moved out to make room for E-O's new Resident Assistant (RA).

CPU, a specially trained team of security officers, was originally placed on E-O in response to the vandalism problem afflicting that hall.

"CPU moved out, but they still come around. They just don't live there," said E-O resident Jody Zucker.

According to University Business Manager Paul Madonna, the officers "are resuming normal activities. Benedict will be on a regular schedule," he said. He added that the officers will no longer be stationed in Benedict nor will they be assigned exclusively to E-O for 24 hours a day.

Madonna had previously stated his assumption that the vandalism problem on E-O would be solved by the time the new RA was selected. He also had said that the sub-station would be taken out once the hall took on responsibility for itself.

"There is very minor vandalism taking place and we believe we know who they are," said Madonna yesterday.

Residents of E-O said that they are trying hard to prevent vandalism in their hall.

"There has been no vandalism since they [CPU] left," said Zucker, "The hall is making an effort."

New Doubt About Hostages

Iran (AP)—Attempts to elect a new Parliament bogged down yesterday in slow-vote counting and complaints of improprieties, casting new doubt on just when the revolutionary government will be ready to make a decision on freeing the U.S. Embassy hostages.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in a Persian new year broadcast to the nation, chided those who have accused some groups of fraud in last Friday's voting. Such loud complaining before the rest of the world is anti-Islamic, he said.

At the Hague, Netherlands, the United States completed its testimony before the International Court of Justice in the Iran case. U.S. counsel Robert B. Owen warned that "signals from Iran" indicated that the 50 American hostages might be held "indefinitely...for a month or for a year or for a decade."

He called for an urgent court judgement that Iran has violated international law and a final order for release of the hostages. The court itself cannot enforce such an order, however.

In Washington, U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, apparently concerned over increasing public anger among U.S. politicians, told reporters that any American attempt to end the crisis by military force could "create an explosion" in the entire Middle East.

NEWS DIGEST

International

Bogota, Colombia — The Colombian government agreed yesterday to a request from hostages and guerrillas in the Dominican Republic Embassy to resume face-to-face negotiations, deadlocked for a week over the guerrillas' demand for the release of alleged political prisoners.

The talks, first set for Friday, were postponed until Monday after Foreign Minister Diego Uribe Vargas met with President Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala, diplomatic and government sources said.

The foreign minister said he received the request Wednesday in a telephone call from Ambassador Ricardo Valan, one of the 32 foreign diplomats and others held hostage.

The request for new talks may signal the first major break since the M-19 guerrillas seized the embassy during a diplomatic reception on Feb. 27.

Washington — House budget-writers yesterday recommended an end to Saturday mail deliveries and federal law enforcement grants as part of their drive to balance the 1981 federal budget.

The House Budget Committee urged those actions despite signs of new strain in the coalition pressing for approval of $15.9 billion in spending cuts and a $1.4 billion surplus in fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

The $15.9 billion in reductions, generally supported by the congressional leadership and the White House, were proposed Wednesday by the committee chairman, Rep. Robert Giomo, (D-Conn).

Although President Carter called last week for a balanced budget, the president has yet to submit a revised version of his 1981 spending plan. The budget he proposed in January called for a $15.8 billion deficit.

Washington — A new Pentagon summary shows the armed services signed up 150,500 men and women in the first five months of this fiscal year, or 99 percent of the goal for the period.

This amounts to about 33,000 more volunteers than in the corresponding time span a year ago.

Included are first-time recruits and people with previous service who returned to uniform.

The biggest jump in enlistments was registered by the Army, which had the poorest recruiting performance last year. For the first time, all the services fell short of their recruiting goals in fiscal 1979.

The Army enrolled 68,900 men and women between Oct. 1, the start of the fiscal year, and Feb. 29 — an increase of about 23,600 over the number enlisted in the same period the previous year.

The Air Force enlisted 29,600 men and women, up almost 4,000.

Long Beach, — Vice President Walter Mondale visited this Long Island community yesterday and presented himself as "an extra prize" that would come with re-election of the Carter-Mondale ticket.

Much of his audience at a retirement home appeared to agree. Mondale told a group of 200 predominantly Jewish senior citizens at the King David Manor home: "I don't take a second place to anybody in terms of my record in support...of that marvelous state of Israel that needs our friendship and support."

The 52-year-old former U.S. senator from Minnesota said, "I was reared by the best. I grew up under and was taught by and served alongside of Hubert Humphrey all of my political career, until he passed on. I learned from him my love for Israel."

He told the group, "Please give President Carter a chance at another four years. And if you do, we will throw in an extra prize — you will get Walter F. Mondale in the package."

Many in the audience remarked that they wanted Mondale for President.

Washington — President Jimmy Carter's pledge to protect New York and other distressed cities from the bulk of his planned budget cuts was greeted with skepticism here yesterday.

Many New York officials doubted that any additional aid for the state or city would be approved by Congress. Some also criticized Carter for withholding details of his potentially damaging budget cuts until after next Tuesday's presidential primaries in New York and Connecticut.

"This is the week that all candidates should be asked to address specifically and forthrightly how they intend to deal with the particular problem of our state and our city," said Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y.

He added that he felt Carter had not done so.

Rothman Speaks About Jews as Voters

By LISA NAPELL

The role of the Jewish voter in American politics was the subject of a lecture delivered by ex-presidential advisor John Rothman Wednesday evening. The lecture was one of a series of lectures sponsored by Masada, a Zionist organization on campus.

Rothman, an advisor on Middle Eastern and Soviet affairs to President Richard Nixon until he resigned in 1974, spoke of the upcoming presidential elections and the role of the Jewish voter in them. He has been speaking to various minority voter groups around the country in recent months, concentrating on issues which are important to them.

His contention that "there is a Jewish vote" which is powerful enough to make a decisive difference in the presidential election was backed with impressive statistics. He said, for example, that Jewish voters were responsible for Jimmy Carter's 1976 election victory, comprising 103 of the 270 electoral votes needed to become President. He added that, while Jews comprise only 3 percent of the population, no Democrat has won the presidency since 1928 without acquiring 70 percent of the Jewish votes, and, with the exception of the 1968 elections, no Republican has been elected in the same period without at least 30 percent of the Jewish voting population behind him.

"Two events have changed irrevocably and forever the way Jews view themselves and the way others view Jews," said Rothman when discussing Jewish identity. "They are the Holocaust which for the Jew is not history, but something he must face every day, and the establishment of the state of Israel, which has had an unbelievably profound effect on the way Jews perceive their Jewishness."

JOHN ROTHMAN, a former advisor to Richard Nixon, spoke on the role of the Jewish voter in the U.S. Wednesday night.

Rothman rounded up his speech with his own opinions for the candidates for the 1980 presidential race. "These are my own personal opinions, but I believe that all Jewish activists follow this line." He went on to state his feelings on all the candidates, beginning with Carter whom he described as "a disaster... a dangerous man and the most inept President of this century." He described the U.N. resolution as "no mistake," saying that if Carter weren't looking to get re-elected he never would have re-thought his position.

Edward Kennedy was described as having a 100 percent perfect record on Jewish issues, "the gut is solid," said Rothman. His comment on Jerry Brown was that "if Jerry Brown were here tonight to speak to you, he'd tell you two things. He'd say 'I own a house in L.A., and I own Israel bonds.' These are his two investments."

Rothman surmised the Republican presidential candidates as follows. George Bush: "He is going nowhere fast, I'm glad to say." John Anderson: "He is absolutely superb but, unfortunately, being a liberal in the Republican Party is a little like being a High Church Unitarian; it's possible, but pointless." John Connally: "The worst of Johnson and Nixon rolled into one."

About Ronald Reagan, Rothman said, "Barring his getting caught in a rainstorm and all the dye running out of his hair, he'll be the Republican candidate for the presidency. He's one tough cookie, and he's great on Israel, but I don't like him."

Rothman closed with a quote from Hubert Humphrey in defense of having an opinion on an issue or a specific concern that colors one's decision about who to vote for: "It is your right to have opinions, it is your right to voice those opinions and to lobby in Congress. If you don't do it, who will?"

Rothman then opened the floor to questions and some enthusiastic cross debate followed. There were questions on issues such as Russian aid to the Palestine Liberation Organization, Arab citizens in Israel, American Jewry, imperialism, Israel's right to exist, and American foreign policy.

Sophisticated Computer Housed in Hospital

By LISA CASTIGNOLI

The Stony Brook HSC, Health Science Center, which boasts of one of the most highly technical and modern hospitals in the country, now possesses a $4.2 million computer that will aid doctors and nurses in the care of their patients and the administration of their excessive paperwork. The computer, called the UHIS, University Hospital Institution System, is on the third floor of the Hospital and is programmed to handle such jobs as prescribing dosages of medication and laboratory work. The computer will also deal with the admission, transfer and discharge of patients and financial management such as quick and efficient billing. The computer will not replace hospital employees, just supply the needed extra help.

In the event of a malfunction, the computer has a standby back-up system—a mini-computer which will take over key functions. In the case of a power outage, none of the functions imprinted in the memory bank would be lost. However, if someone were to put in a program at the time of the outage, the current transaction would be lost and would have to be reintroduced in the system after the power has been restored. If the power outage becomes long-term, then "old-fashioned" paperwork would be used.

In order to educate the hospital personnel on how to operate the machine, a special training program dealing with key punch operation will be provided. The nurses and physicians will be informed when new material is introduced into the computer.

To avoid possible errors in patient diagnosis, every authorized person responsible for patient care must code their identification number and area of authorization. All information fed into the computer is on permanent record. Should a mistake be made, it can be corrected, although the mistake will remain as part of the permanent record for future record for future reference. If unintentional, inappropriate use of the computer results, all entries would be recorded and the person responsible for the incorrect programming would receive further training.

Presently, there are five patients at the hospital whose medical history has been programmed into the computer.

THE UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL employs one of the most technically advanced computers in the country.

committee voted it down because a majority of them [commuters] felt that Commuter College was being asked to allocate too much money and that the money might be used for more commuter-oriented activities. Those commuters who attended the meeting apparently felt that the revised figure was still too much."

Polity Treasurer Lori Reckson said of the proposal, "This is such a waste of money. You people [Commuter College] have this habit of burning money away." The proposed allocations have drawn much criticism over the last couple of weeks because of the feeling that the Commuter College Executive Board was spending money from the $17,000 budget. All monies left over in the Commuter College budget will go back to Polity at the end of the semester. Reckson added that, "Polity won't give Commuter College anything if they don't do something good with the money."

Polity Senator Mace Greenfield said, "I feel they did the right thing in not making that allocation because unless they are positive of a minimum return of 100 percent on their money, they should use it only for commuters."

Visiting Lecturer

David A. Kindig, M.D., Ph. D., Director, Montefiore Hospital and Medical Center, New York City, will be the 1980 Visiting Lecturer in Health and Public Affairs in the Health Sciences Center, April 2, 1980.

Kindig, who has had a diversified career as a researcher, clinician and health care administrator, was invited to Stony Brook by the Health Sciences Center Health and Public Affairs Lectureship and Scholarship Committee. Kindig has chosen "It's Harder to Make Change Than I Thought" for his topic.

Marvin Kuschner, M.D., Deal of the School of Medicine and a member of the Lectureship Committee, said, "The annual visiting lectureship in health and public affairs provides a platform for distinguished national or international lecturers to present their expertise on an important topic relating to health care and public policy. We are very fortunate that Kindig is able to visit the Center this spring to share his broad experience with the Health Sciences community."

New Councilwoman

Ena Dariel Townsend of Central Islip has been named to the Stony Brook Council for a term ending in 1988.

Townsend, a registered professional nurse, was appointed to the Council by Governor Hugh Carey. She replaces Jerald Newman of North Woodmere, whose term has expired.

The 10-member Council is the local governing body for the University, with broad powers to advise the campus. Nine of its members are appointed to nine-year terms by the governor. The 10th, a student, is elected each year by the student body for a one-year term.

Commenting on the appointment, Dr. R. Christian Anderson, Assistant Director of Brookhaven National Laboratory and Chairman of the Stony Brook Council, said, "I'm pleased to welcome Mrs. Townsend to the Council. Her perspective will add much to the wide scope of viewpoints so vital to the operation of the Council."

Declaring War On Handguns

Ideals, and images of those ideals, often captivate the minds of many people. Individuals often conjure up in their minds definite thoughts of how life should be run. Once conceived, these thoughts then dominate the behavior and rationale of these same individuals. Thus, many people fall prey to their own unrealistic ideals.

This, in itself, is not harmful. The problem arises when these ideals that have been irrationally and falsely created, interfere with the lives of others.

For many years, Americans have carried on an illicit affair with guns. We love guns and nurture their prosperity; we abuse them and make it easier for others to abuse them; and, in general, we have created many false ideals about the nature of guns.

"Guns don't kill people, people kill people." How many times has that line been tooted as the all encompassing answer to all pro-gun control rhetoric? While it is true "people" actually pull the trigger, this statement, and the logic behind it, is a gross oversimplification of the whole subject of gun control.

What is at issue is the fact that many people have created this pseudo-romantic image of guns—an image that fails to face up to the reality that guns force upon us. The notion of a few "men" standing up and defending our country, in a very macho way, is utter nonsense. Ironically, this image of the old wild west is totally undeserved. Most of these old western towns were at the forefront of gun control legislation. Towns such as Tombstone, where Wyatt Earp reigned supreme, had a strictly enforced policy whereby everyone entering the town with a gun had to check it in at various locations.

In fact, compared with today, the old wild west was not so wild at all. Yet, despite this, the romantic macho image of guns persists. It persists because we allow it to do so. By overpowering our children with excessive gun fights on T.V., super sub-machine guns for presents and a new rifle to hunt with, we are conditioning them to accept guns as a normal and respectable part of our everyday life.

Studies show that approximately one-half of all murders, committed with a gun, are done by people who are known, many times intimately, to the victim. For the most part, these murders would not have happened if a gun had not been readily available for use.

The thought process behind this is as follows: Two people are having a heated verbal argument. Chances are highly unlikely that either one could kill the other person with his bare hands. Furthermore, any attack with a knife or any blunt object can be, for the most part, defended against. If nothing else, the attacked person can always flee.

But how does one escape from an angered person wielding a gun? Blinded emotion, when mixed with an easily available gun, usually leads to tragic results. The most alarming thing here is that in many cases the murder weapon is not even brought to the scene by the murderer. The gun is usually already on the premises within easy reach of anyone.

Under ideal circumstances, this would not be a problem. Ideally, people should behave in rational, non-violent ways. Murder is not rationally contemplated. Unfortunately, most people do not always act rationally. In a time of heated passion, the average "law abiding citizen" too often becomes a victim of his emotions and thus makes some other person a victim of his gun.

At a time when a respected former congressman was just slain, allegedly by a close associate, and when a famous doctor was brutally murdered, allegedly by a well-respected female companion, we must now make a choice whether we want to continue living in fear or start living in a civilized society. We must adopt some form of mandatory gun registration and control. Just because a citizen wants a gun doesn't mean he should have one.

But gun control goes even further than merely outlawing guns. People really should not want to own them. It is time that we stop teaching our children these pseudo-romantic ideals about guns and start teaching them the cold hard facts.

Until we get guns out of our lives we dare not call ourselves a civilized nation. And, until this happens, then life is as cheap as the barrel of a Saturday-night Special.

Biased Journalism

To the Editor:

Well, Statesman has done it again! The February 29th coverage (we use the term loosely) of the February 27 anti-registration and anti-draft rally has scaled new heights of biased and irresponsible journalism. It has gotten to the point where we are wondering whether Statesman works for the students or against them. As participants in the rally, we would like to clear up the distortions that the author presented.

The article names Red Balloon and InCAR as the major sponsors of the rally and teach-in. If the author had only read the flier advertising the day's activities, he would have seen that it was organized by a coalition of the following groups (SB Coalition Against Registration and the Draft):

Bay Community School; Democratic Socialist Organizing Committee; Coalition for Direct Action at Seabrook; Gay Student Union; H.S.C. Women's Center; Lloyd Harbor Friends' Meeting; Progressive Iranian Student Association; International Student Assoc.; L.I. Progressive Coalition; Dykes Opposed to Nuclear Technology; Paumonok People's Affinity Group; Red Balloon Collective; Social Workers Against Nukes; Women Opposed to Nuclear Technology; SB Womens'

Center; National Lawyers Guild; Socialist Feminist Study Group; Science for the People; and the War Resisters' League.

It is important to acknowledge the contribution of all these groups who have come together to voice their oppositions to the threat of war.

By singling out only Red Balloon and InCAR in an essentially negative article, Statesman was obviously attempting to kill two birds with one stone: further discredit progressive organizations who are already the target of repression by Administration and our beloved PSC, and to stir discord among other activist groups. This serves to discourage the growing anti-draft movement.

In his article, the author repeatedly claims that the anti-draft views expressed by the speakers were not shared by the students at the rally and teach-in. (We wonder what rally he attended.) As an example of what he wishes to portray as the typical student's impression, he quotes an observer: "They're trying to convert you to communism and no nukes. The idea that this is an anti-draft rally is a farce." This ridiculous statement is a gross misinterpretation and was not representative of the general mood. While many students may not have agreed with the different analyses of the draft offered by the speakers, most students who attended were not in favor of the draft or registration. Those of us who spent several hours there can readily attest to this.

Finally, although 200 students may seem like a small number, we wish to point out that all protest movements begin with a small, dedicated group. This is just the start of a concerted effort. Too often, we hear only of the so-called apathy that characterizes this campus. However, as soon as students take an active role in advocating social change, reactionary forces try their hardest to give these efforts a bad image. Statesman's distorted coverage of the anti-registration, anti-draft rally is a blatant example of this. We hope that the campus community has not been taken in by the attempt to divide and discourage student unity.

Students Deserve to Choose Their Staff

By RICHARD GRUSKIN and KAREN LEVINE

Kelly A, as was reported in Monday's issue of Statesman faces a very real problem. A problem that not only concerns the residents of Kelly A, but a problem that concerns all of the students on this campus. Up until now Stony Brook was one of the few schools that gives the students a say in the way things are being run. However, now we seem to be losing our say. We have watched our campus bars close down, we have seen our resident students relocated at the whim of Residence Life, and now we find that we have no choice in picking the staff members (RAs and MAs) who are to be living and working with us in the coming year.

Last week Dana Solomon, Kelly Quad Director and acting as interim RHD for Kelly A rehired all three staff members (two RAs and one MA) who are returning to the building without having them go through our building selection committee. The committee consists of all five non-returning staff members, six building residents and the building RHD, all residents of Kelly A. It has always been traditional in the past for the residents to be involved in staff selection and that the committee's recommendations be followed.

We the residents of Kelly A are outraged that such a decision has been made by Solomon with no regard to the residents. We have circulated a petition in the building protesting the way in which our staff members have been picked for us. Within one day this petition was signed by 120 of the 204 residents. We met with Solomon on Thursday to discuss possible solutions to this problem. Solomon however refuses to change his position. When asked his reason in automatically rehiring the staff members Solomon said he based it on the recommendation of Carlton Frambo, Kelly A's old RHD. Solomon also said that although Carlton was never around, he had insight into the building and it's staff. We ask Mr. Solomon how he can seriously take the recommendation of a person who was never around to see what was going on in our building. This is a contradiction of terms. How can anyone have insight into a situation he is not familiar with?

We also asked Dana Solomon why this situation has never come up in the past. His answer to us was that Carlton was "too chicken" to upset the traditional process. Is it being chicken, Mr. Solomon, to give the residents a say in their building staff? Is it also chicken to upset a tradition that has worked perfectly in the past?

Since Solomon made his decision Kelly A has a new interim RHD, Tony Viscardi. It was told to us by Solomon that Viscardi at the end of the semester must reapply for the position if he wished his job for the coming year. We asked Solomon what the difference was between Viscardi's situation and our staff's. Solomon could not give us a reason. He could only say there is a difference. Well, Mr. Solomon, we would really like to know what the difference is.

Another point we wish to bring up is that assuming Viscardi gets RHD position next year we think it is he along with the residents who should pick his staff next year and not Solomon.

After all it is the RHD's job, not the Quad Director's to work with the staff in the building. The RHD must be able to work effectively with the staff and the best way for him to do that is to have a say in who they are. We appreciate Solomon's eagerness to help our new RHD but we also condemn him for his blatant denial of student participation in the process.

While meeting with Solomon on Thursday, we discussed possible solutions to this problem. One of Solomon's solutions was that the three staff members in question go through the committee as an evaluation process. The committee would evaluate and criticize these staff members' past performance. We see this as a good idea since this will tend to keep the staff working effectively. We feel this should be instituted in the committee but not as a solution. We are still faced with the original problem of selecting staff members and as such we condemn Solomon's actions. We feel, we the students, and the RHD who live in the building should choose the staff who will be living and working closely with us.

We must note that we have not mentioned the three returning staff members in question here personally or their abilities as staff members. We have no intention of criticizing them. That is the job of the committee. If the committee feels that they deserve it, then they shall get their jobs back, and as the residents of the building we will back the committee in any decision they make.

Registration: A Call to Serve Carter's Interests

By SUSAN KUSHY

On Saturday, March 22, people from all over the nation will gather together in Washington D.C. to demonstrate their opposition to President Carter's decision to re-instate the draft. As a member group of the Stony Brook Coalition Against Registration and the Draft, the Revolutionary Student Brigade (RSB), supports the anti-registration movement and views this, as a part of a larger movement for world peace. The RSB's participation in this rally is one of many ways for us to take a stand against the U.S., the U.S.S.R. and any other group that threatens world peace. Both, the re-instatement of the draft (presently only to support U.S. imperialism), and the Soviet Union's intervention in Afghanistan, are actions that are preventing worldwide peace because they prohibit the people of the world from exercising their right to self-determination.

President Carter has claimed that his call for registration is to have the U.S. ready if it is deemed necessary to protect our (imperialist) interests in our sphere of influence, i.e. the Middle East, which has recently been threatened by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. This "sphere of influence", is viewed by Carter as vital to U.S. political, economic and ideological interests. Recent past history dictates that when the U.S. has traveled this route before it has resulted in the rise to power of repressive leaders, placed there to protect the U.S. interests only. A notable example would be the imposition of the Shah of Iran in power in the 1950's and his inhumane rule up until the recent revolution. The RSB believes the U.S. has not yet learned to curb its imperialistic appetite, and therefore we cannot condone a call for registration that will only lead to further exploitation of people of this world.

Carter's call for registration is also unnecessary based upon recently released military statistics. These statistics reveal that the U.S. has 1.3 million people in its military reserve prepared for military action. Coupled with the information released by the Selective Service that pre-registration would give the country a mere seven-day advantage if indeed, war is declared, is further evidence that this registration is unnecessary.

When then is the need for registration at this time? The RSB believes it was called by Carter to serve his best interests; that it is a ploy by the President to enhance his chances of being re-elected by inciting strong nationalistic feelings (that the people should "rally around the flag"). And if these feelings are aroused, then naturally the people should re-elect him. Second, it serves to distract public attention from the woeful economic situation, which Carter's numerous programs have been unable to alleviate. The call to arms, or a call to prepare for such, in the past has served to relieve the country of its economic ills for short periods of time, however, in the long-run the dependency on such injections into our economic system only covers up the real source of the disease tainting our economy until we are no longer able to overcome them with these evidently addicting, imperialistic-based military injections.

The RSB, as previously stated, takes the position that the anti-registration rally in this situation is analogous to a rally for peace. Declaring such, the RSB believes that the aggressive acts taken by the Soviet Union in Afghanistan must also be addressed and condemned. That it is not enough to stand against the U.S. imperialist acts which exploit many of the world's people, but if peace is ever to be omnipresent, all nations or groups that resort to oppressive acts and trespass upon the rights of others must, at the same time, be condemned. If there is to be an end to aggressive and suppressive acts, the free people of the world must unite to aid those who are not. The U.S. must not be the only power to raise arms because we have seen how the U.S. has abused those people it has so-called "freed". All nations, together, must if it is necessary take arms against the oppressors and fight for the rights, freedoms and liberties of all the world's people.

Developments in Hand College have pointed out inconsistencies in Residence Life Policies concerning student staff. These are faults in the system, and not the result of personal conflicts. Subsequently, we have asked Residence Life to clarify:

1. Responsibilities of R.A.'s, M.A.'s and Residence Life
2. Arbitrary use of the right to place staff members on probation.
- Denial of Due Process associated with probation.
4. R.H.D.'s Recognition of the concerns of the College Legislature.

We regret these circumstances have hindered the working relationship between the Staff and Residence Life. We can only hope all this will result in policy changes for the better.

Cooking Fee Violations

once a week, Grossman said that the arrangement is not consistent with Residence Life's extermination policies. Its paraprofessional manual which enumerates the rules and policies to be followed by Quad Directors (RHD's) and student staff, mandates that "each building [be] routinely exterminated every fourth or fifth week on a rotating basis."

Also criticized was a provision in this fiscal year's cooking fee budget, which allowed for about $5,000 to be allocated for writing and publication of a dormitory cookbook. A film about cooking in the dormitories was created as well.

Polity President David Herzog, said that he was unaware of the film, calling the idea "ridiculous." "No one knows that it exists," he said.
