Students Hear Talk By Pro Abortionist

BILL BAIRD addressing Stony Brook students last night

By EDDIE HORWITZ

"Women must have the absolute right to make the final decision on an abortion" claimed Bill Baird as he spoke in the Union Auditorium before a small crowd of 75 last night.

Baird, who runs abortion centers in Hempstead and Boston said that there is a war going on right now between the anti-abortion and pro-abortion groups. He is fighting against what he calls the "right to life" groups and the Roman Catholic Church. He predicted that anti-abortion laws will emerge within two years.

"Can a government or a religion say to a person, 'you must go through with a pregnancy,'" Baird asked. He said that this is barbaric. It is as if the country owns a woman's body for nine months. He also attacked the law that minors must have their parents' permission to receive an abortion. He stressed that it is a woman's right to do what she wants.

Baird called the Roman Catholic Church's stand on abortion hypocritical because according to him they own a drug company that manufactures birth control pills. He called the church a "male dominated, sexist institution" and the pope a "great oppressor of women." The church has condemned abortions as murder, but has never said the same about capital punishment, he said.

Arrested

Baird brought out a board that has various birth control devices on it, and told the audience that he was arrested a few years ago in Suffolk County for showing this board to a group of women. A woman in the group had brought an infant in with her, and he was arrested for corrupting the values of a minor.

Baird has been fighting for women's rights in abortions for the past 13 years. He has been put in jail eight times and claims that threats have been made against his life. At present, his family is in hiding because of threats made on their lives, he said.

As the only person to appear before the United States Supreme Court twice, he won on a bill in favor of birth control in 1972 and currently has a case pending concerning the rights of minors to have an abortion.

Yang Stays Despite Cutback

By DAVID RAZLER

Nobel prize-winning physicist Chen Ning Yang will continue to receive $50,000 per year for his salary and research expenses despite a severe cutback in the program under which he was hired.

University President John Toll said that Stony Brook would provide Yang with $37,500 to make up for the cuts in the Einstein Chair of Science program, which was created by the state legislature to bring prominent professors to New York.

In 1964, the legislature approved a program of 10 chairs, five Albert Einstein Chairs and five Albert Schweitzer Chairs. Universities in New York were invited to compete for them with proposals for what they would do with the grants which at the time were set at $100,000 per year. In 1971, the annual allocation was cut to $80,000 and $50,000 in 1972.

Cut back

Last month the annual allocations were cut back to $12,500 to help make up for restorations in cuts in local school aid. Toll said that many legislators "did not have a chance to examine all the cuts" and that he is sure the chairs will be restored when the supplementary budget is allocated. However, he said that to prevent disruption of present University programs, that Yang would be paid out of the Stony Brook budget.

Yang is currently involved with research in

CHEN NING YANG

Elementary Partical Physics. He also teaches several classes, mostly on the graduate level. Yang said that the initial cutbacks in the chairs did not really affect his work. "It was bad, but the University and the Federal Government have been able to support us, so I have no complaints," he said.

Toll said that Yang was valuable to the campus community because, in addition to teaching and doing his own research "people come here from all over the world to work with him," he said.

Toll said that Cornell, Rochester and Syracuse, and Buffalo State Universities also have Einstein Chairs.

Gunnigle Heads Foundation

An ex-president of Marine Midland Bank has been appointed to head the Stony Brook Foundation, the organization which supplies the University with scholarships and research grants.

Edward Gunnigle, former president of Marine Midland's Tinker National Bank division has been appointed President and Executive Director of the foundation. He has been treasurer of the organization for the past three years after he was asked to serve in that position by the University President John Toll.

Gunnigle is also a member of the Suffolk and American Bar Associations, and president of the Board of Trustees of Saint Charles Hospital. He recently left Marine Midland after the corporation consolidated several of its divisions and eliminated his position.

Gunnigle said that his new job would be a full time position. "I'll be over there every day," he said "It's pretty nearly a full time operation." Gunnigle added that he didn't know exactly what changes if any he was going to make in the way that the Foundation operates. "I'm just getting my feet wet," he said "[the foundation's] progress has got to be evaluated."

Gunnigle said that at this time the foundation has assets of about $500,000. However, all but $100,000 of these funds were in accounts managed by the foundation and dedicated to the specific scholarships and projects.

Foundation Chairman Charles Pierce, president of the Long Island Lighting Company said, "We know that Mr. Gunnigle's dynamic leadership will stimulate increased development of the already mutually beneficial ties between the University, the Foundation, and our Long Island region's business, industry, and civic leaders." He added that the foundation's activities were essential if the University was to continue with its present programs.

"The Stony Brook Foundation has been instrumental in the development of the University's Public Service and Educational programs." Toll said. He added that the Foundation will play a more critical role in the immediate future as we develop plans for the opening of the Urban Policies Center and the University Hospital. We are delighted that Mr. Gunnigle will be providing leadership for the foundation and the University's efforts to gain necessary support for these and other vital programs at Stony Brook."

Elections Held in Vietnam . . .

Millions of North and South Vietnamese voted yesterday in the first major step toward the reunification of Vietnam, divided in 1954 and wracked by war for decades.

Top leaders from the Lao Dong Communist party and governments in both Saigon and Hanoi cast their ballots for a 492-member National Assembly shortly after the polls opened at 7 AM, according to Saigon and Hanoi broadcasts monitored in Bangkok, Thailand. The officials reportedly were followed by rows of citizens marching to vote.

Authorities predicted a near 100 percent turn out.

The assembly will include farmers, workers, intellectuals, representatives of religious groups and most of the existing leadership. Real power, however, is expected to rest with a small Communist party group in Hanoi.

. . . and in Portugal

First scattered returns in Portugal's parliamentary election last night indicated a conservative backlash in the Roman Catholic north against leftist leadership in Lisbon.

Results from a handful of districts appeared to confirm the forecast that the conservative Social Democratic Center CDS party was effectively winning support for its campaign line that "things have gone far enough."

Also showing strength along side the CDS was the centrist Popular Democratic party PPD which had attacked the "Marxists" during the campaign.

Charge Ford Behind Funding Delay

Two Democratic presidential candidates said yesterday that President Gerald Ford wants to delay the revival of federal campaign subsidies because he doesn't need the money for his own Republican race.

But former Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter said Congress was at fault and predicted that the aid probably won't be restored before the primary elections are over.

Carter, Senator Henry Jackson of Washington, Representative Morris Udall or Arizona, Alabama Governor George Wallace and Senator Frank Church of Idaho spent an hour answering questions on a nationally televised interview program.

All but Church are on the ballot in Pennsylvania's presidential primary Tuesday, although Wallace complained that his candidacy is not getting proper attention.

Downtown Beirut Shelled

Unidentified gunmen shelled downtown Beirut yesterday, setting a large fire and bringing the day's death toll in Lebanon's Christian-Moslem civil war to 70.

Security officials said 182 persons were wounded in gunfire that once again marred the tattered truce in the year-old war.

The deserted building where Pan American Airlines had its offices was hit by two rockets and a mortar shell. Two stories were gutted by flames as fire brigades were kept away by sniper bullets, police said.

Security officials said right-wing Christian Phalange party militiamen infiltrated leftist strongholds astride Beirut's commercial center and the seaside tourist hotel area. The mortar and machine gun battle ensued and several persons were killed on both sides, they added.

Pollution Settlement Rejected

Environmental Conservation Commissioner Ogden Reid turned down a proposed settlement with General Electric about PCB pollution because the company wanted what Reid called "complete exoneration," according to a published report.

The New York Times reported yesterday that Reid balked at a clause in which the state would say that GE "acted in good faith, unintentionally, and in reliance upon its federal permit" to allow discharging PCBs into the Hudson River.

Under the agreement GE would reportedly have paid the state at least $2 million and cut its discharge of the poisonous industrial chemicals, polychlorinated biphenyls. The company would not have been required to make any "restoration, reclamation or other like remedy" to the river, Reid told the Times.

Rumsfeld: U.S. Is Not No. 2

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld reiterated yesterday that American military capability is "adequate to do the job today" and said what is important is what ability the United States will have in the future.

"No, indeed" Rumsfeld responded when asked if charges are true that the United States has become No. 2 to the Soviet Union militarily.

Participation Is Gurton's Reason For Running for Polity President

By JASON MANNE
(fifth in a series.)

Participation. In a word that is the essence of Wendy Gurton's platform for Polity President.

Gurton feels that the present structure of Polity is not functioning in the best interests of the students. "Everyone interested in determining decisions like where our money goes should be able to participate" Gurton said. "Everyone who wants to participate should be able to vote."

And if enough people participate, vested interest groups will not be able to run the organization. Gurton said. "We need a balance determined by the people, 'It's up to the people to struggle it out.'" Gurton said she did not believe the present representative structure was fair because the representatives were isolated from the students. "A few representatives telling us not to do anything is suicide for students," Gurton said.

Gurton is the only political candidate being run by an organized political group. "The Revolutionary Student Brigade is running me because we feel that any tool can be used to help students fight against attacks on education, such as cuts in programs and tuition hikes, is necessary at this time."

Hindering the Fight

Furton said she believes Polity is presently hindering the fight against cuts in educational programs. "When students want to determine something, such as to fight against the cuts, Polity has consistently gotten in the way of that unity and participation." Gurton said. She said that Polity calls demonstrations and refuses to allow open discussion. "They want credit and control," she said.

As for a more complete platform Gurton admitted she had no concrete proposals. "I don't think one person can make a lot of concrete proposals and promises to students that will bring real change to students. It is bullshit when they [candidates] give you concrete proposals and plans." Gurton said she thinks only mass participation can result in real plans and proposals.

Communication Is a Key Issue In Class Representatives Race

(Sixth in a series.)

There is one issue that unites all of the candidates for the class representative—communication. Every candidate interviewed by Statesman has listed that as the No. 1 problem on-campus.

The class representatives sit on the Polity Council along with the president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer. The freshman representative is elected in September; the other three class representatives will be elected Wednesday.

SENIOR REPRESENTATIVE

Bill Dorr of Centereach is a commuter senator and chairman of the Student Activities Board Informals Committee. Gene Rollins of Miller Place is also a commuter senator, has served on several Senate subcommittees and is a former Commuter College Executive Board member. Phyllis Vegliante, a resident of James College, is a member of the Polity Hotline and used to work for Action Line, a problem-solving organization no longer in existence.

Vegliante called the communication between Polity and the student body "crummy" and said she would send leaflets to college legislatures. Rollins suggested a catalog similar to the Whole Stony Brook Catalog, especially distributed to freshmen, to tell the students what activities will be happening at the University. Dorr hoped that the SAB concerts could help fill that gap.

Rollins' other major concern, he said, was student services. He said more student businesses were needed and this should be Polity's chief concern. He said his major concern during the budget hearings was services.

Dorr called for a mandatory meal plan for all students, at a much lower price than is presently charged. "Let's have everybody eating together again," he said. "I am very much in favor of a mandatory meal plan." Dorr said with more students, even though they would be charged less, more money would be guaranteed and two food services could be brought onto campus. "The one that has the lower prices and the better food would be getting the students," Dorr said. "They would only be guaranteed the chance to get the students' money."

Dorr said SAB was much more open and he has tried to solicit students' opinions regarding concerts.

Vegliante was the only candidate to say she was going to specifically represent seniors. "Seniors have certain problems of their own." She proposed the establishment of a senior advisory committee, with delegates elected from each dorm, to advise her on matters of concern to seniors. For example, Vegliante said that many seniors on athletic teams have the chance to attract a professional scout, but Polity has tried to cut back funding for athletics. "That was a major thing last year and that's still a major thing," she said. Vegliante said her advisory committee would also serve as another way to broaden communication.

The class representative will sit on both the Senate and the Council. Dorr said the Council

Candidates Unopposed for Student Assembly

By JONATHAN D. SALANT
(Eighth in a series)

Mark Minasi and Stanley Greenberg have spent the last year as chairmen of committees of the statewide Student Assembly. Next year, they will become voting members of the body.

Minasi, currently Polity treasurer, and Greenberg, Polity secretary, are running unopposed for the two delegate seats. Minasi is chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee while Greenberg heads the Legislative Affairs Committee. Greenberg, who was Gray College senator before being elected Polity secretary last May, was also campus coordinator for the Student Association of the State University before Stony Brook left the group last October.

Minasi, a former Langmuir senator, is a member of the Committee on Academic Standing, a former member of the University Senate, and former chairman of the Union Governing Board House and Operations Committee.

Been Around

"I could probably represent Stony Brook better than most people on this campus because I know the organization and I know the campus well," Greenberg said. "I was elected by the campus once already. I've been around here."

"For the last two years, I've been to most of the SASU or Student Assembly meetings," Minasi said.

Greenberg is not running for a Polity Council position this year while Minasi will remain as treasurer until at least December. However, Minasi said he will have no trouble doing both jobs. "The fact that I'm running indicates that I have the time."

Statewide Organization

Both candidates strongly favor some sort of statewide organization, but have different opinions on its design and scope. Minasi favors Stony Brook rejoining SASU until at least June. "I think we should be there with a voice at the annual meeting," he said. "The annual meeting is going to tell us a lot of things. It is going to tell us whether its [the organization] worth salvaging at all."

Greenberg disagreed. "SASU has decided that it would be unresponsive to students," he said.

Greenberg said the SASU structure may not be necessary for an effective statewide organization. "A central office like the SASU office is not necessary to a statewide organization," he said. "You can run things from campuses."

Student Voice

Both Minasi and Greenberg said a statewide student voice was needed in Albany to fight against such things as room and tuition hikes. "Nothing was done this year," Minasi said.

"I'll try to improve the voice of the students and organize the students," Greenberg said. "It's not something that one delegate can do; it's something that a bunch of delegates have to do. There are a number of delegates that want to do that already. The ones that know what has to be done have to convince the ones that don't know it has to be done that it has to be done."

Last Wednesday, Statesman ran an interview with two of the candidates for the undergraduate candidate for Stony Brook Council student representative, Glenn Taubman and William Harts. The third candidate, Tony Vacca, failed to show up for the interview. His platform and petitions were submitted to Polity on Friday and excerpts from his platform follow:

"I am running for the Stony Brook Council because I feel that I can best serve the needs of the Stony Brook students. I feel that I have the necessary experience to deal with the difficult problems that plague this campus.

"Beginning four years ago as the office manager of the McGovern headquarters in Patchogue and as a student representative in the student government of Suffolk Community College, I felt the importance of student participation in the things that affect us. Participation on various committees allowed for contact with faculty and staff members, a vital prerequisite for dealing with the trustees of Stony Brook. While at Suffolk, I called for the Suffolk Board of Trustees to open their meetings, and I call upon the Stony Brook Board to do the same.

"As to the issues of the campaign, we all know the importance of the budget as it affects the quality of education. Budget cuts are unacceptable and I pledge to speak up for the students when the Board of Trustees considers the budget.

"I also believe that it is not in the best interests of the student community for Security to bear arms on campus. I intend to speak out strongly on this very important issue before the Board.

"The Board deals with so many issues that concern us as students that it is imperative for the student representative to first and foremost guard the interests of the students and to speak up to protect our education. This past year, Rich Gelfond as the student representative, did a superlative job for all of us. I fully intend to maintain this work. We cannot afford to fail!!

STAN GREENBERG

Communication Is Major Issue in Polity Race

was more powerful and oversaw what the Senate has done, while the Senate was more representative. "The Council has taken problems out of the Senate's hands," he said. "I don't approve of that."

Rollins said the Senate closely approximated student voices and should reflect what their constituency wants. The Council was, on the other hand, "experienced enough in different areas to make quick decisions. The Council can meet very quickly and the Senate can't."

"The Senate should allow others to voice their opinions more," Vegiante said. "I don't think the Senate and Council are doing anything that is helping students."

JUNIOR REPRESENTATIVE

Pat Thornton is a Polity assistant treasurer, a member of the Program and Services

Council, and an RA in Ammann College. Jeff Gordon is major concerts chairman of SAB.

"Communication plays an important role in the development of anything," Thornton said. "If you want to service all of the people you have to let all the people know you are there to service them." She suggested letters to her constituency to "let the juniors know I'm here."

"There's a lack of communication on campus between the Council and the student body," Gordon said. "I want to go out and meet people. I want people to call me. If they have any ideas, I want them up at the Council."

Gordon and Thornton differ on the role of the junior representative. "As junior rep, you just can't represent the junior class," Gordon said. "You don't have an issue like the freshman rep. does."

Thornton said juniors face specific problems. She said the junior year is when students have to take care of requirements for their majors. "Most of their problems comes into that field [academics]," she said. Thornton said that as an RA, "I talked with a lot of juniors and have helped them solve their problems."

On the relationship between the Council and the Senate, Thornton said, "the Council plays an important role but the Senate can overrule what the Council does." Gordon called the Senate "a circus. It's run very poorly. There should be a sense of professionalism in the Senate." He said the Council was "more successful in carrying out their job than the Senate. They take their job much more seriously."

Regarding other suggestions, Gordon called for more programming, especially by SAB. Thornton said there should be another career conference-type event.

SOPHOMORE REPRESENTATIVE

Sharyn Wagner of Gray College is a member of the University Senate, and Polity Legal Affairs Committee, and went on the Polity demonstrations to Albany and Washington. O'Neill College's Tom Neilsen is on the Union Governing Board, chairman of the University Food Quality Control Committee, and a member of SAB's Majors and Informals Committees.

Both candidates said they would represent all students, not just sophomores, and called for opening up Polity to more students. "Polity is so closed that they often go away from their purpose and get involved in [internal] political issues," Wagner said. "I will definitely work to get more students involved in Polity."

"Our office [in SAB] has always been open and anyone can come in," Neilsen said. "That's the kind of office I would like to run as sophomore rep."

Regarding communication, Neilsen said that responsibility rested with the Senators. "People have mentioned to me how they don't know what's going on," he said. "Polity has no way of communicating except through senators. The Council would tell the Senators and they would go back to the colleges. All this information should be known."

Wagner said Polity should use some of its ad space in Statesman to run a column on student government.

On the relationship between the Council and Senate, Wagner said the Senate was a "fair organization" while the Council was a "closed, cliquish group, the group that tends to alienate students." Neilsen said the Council creates the issues and tries to point the Senate in a direction while the Senate debates the issue and, with more participation, injects "more input and more ideas."

Neilsen said he wanted to continue the lawsuits against the University, reduce proxies in the Senate to only one per senator, and "plan to take an active role." Wagner said Polity should give more details about its openings for positions on committees to get more of the campus involved.

Vote Yes for Student Activities

Every semester, as part of your bill, you are charged a $35 Mandatory Student Activity Fee. This fee, cumulatively, adds up to a total of over $600,000 annually and is used for the maintenance of all student activities.

On Wednesday, for the first time in five years, students will vote on whether to maintain the Mandatory Fee or to switch to a voluntary system. Statesman strongly urges voting in favor of continuation of the Mandatory Fee.

At face value, the benefits of the Mandatory Fee are not completely self-evident. From a cursory glance, it would seem that the only difference under a voluntary system would be that a student paid a fee for each activity that he or she participated in, with the total adding up to approximately the same $35 per semester. Quite possibly, this would be the case in activities such as the COCA movies or SAB concerts. But without the Mandatory Activity Fee, the almost innumerable activities and services that the students take almost for granted, would be greatly reduced if not eliminated. A poignant albeit self-serving example is Statesman itself. Without the Mandatory Activity Fee, Statesman would continue to publish, but on a once-a-week basis with greatly reduced size. The money to allow Statesman to publish would come from its independently generated advertising revenue. But what about Fortnight, Blackworld, which contain virtually no advertising? These publications would almost certainly fall by the wayside.

WUSB, the campus radio station which has recently been granted the right to go FM, is completely dependent on the Student Activity Fee for its funding. Without the fee, WUSB will almost certainly be hard pressed to even continue its limited AM broadcasts, let alone the possibility of a viable FM station.

Without the Mandatory Fee there would be no funding for the Stony Brook Volunteer Ambulance Corps, the campus' only viable link with major medical services.

The Intramurals program, which encompasses all non-varsity sports activities, is completely funded by student activity funds, and would consequently be eliminated.

All varsity teams and clubs are also now funded through the Mandatory Student Activity Fee. With its elimination, these would also be dispensed with.

All clubs and associations which are funded through the Mandatory Fee would be left without any monies with which to hold events or activities.

The Polity Student Government, in many cases the only force fighting for the real needs of students against an increasingly cold Administration, would be left without financial means. The indispensable Polity lawyer would undoubtedly be eliminated.

The Residential College Program, which brings a portion of the mandatory fee back to the dorms for individual use, would be eliminated. This would end all college activities: parties, speakers, college equipment and supplies.

The list of activities which would have to be curtailed is almost without end—these are just representative examples. A defeat of the Mandatory Student Activity Fee would be one step further towards a university that is uninhabitable of its most important constituents, the students. Help keep this campus a liveable place for yourself. Vote, and vote in favor of the continuation of the Mandatory Student Activity Fee.

A Silenced Voice

I was just about to rush over to Stage XII to help out with the Food Day activities there, when I first heard that folk singer Phil Ochs had killed himself. The news of his death stopped me in my tracks and forced me to sit down and stare helplessly at the floor. For a few long minutes nothing else mattered; all I could think of were the times I'd seen him perform and the memory of his songs, his powerful, inspiring, heart rendering songs. The emptiness within me was overwhelming.

Ochs was a composer and singer of songs of social protest, a member of a tradition that has included Joe Hill, Woody Guthrie, Pete Seeger, Joan Baez, and Tom Paxton. In his early 20s when the Vietnam war began, Ochs was to be moved by the tragedy and anguish of the Indochina conflict to write biting, eloquent lyrics that have since become famous. In 1963 his song "I Ain't Marching Anymore" was one of the first pieces written to protest the war.

According to a family friend, Ochs had long been depressed over his inability to write any new songs. The roots for his suicide perhaps lay in the history of the turbulent 1960's. Ochs wrote his greatest songs at the height of the protest of those memorable years. The antiwar movement reached a peak during the days of the 1968 Chicago Democratic Convention, only to be followed by increasing frustration as Richard Nixon was elected and political radicals were brought to trial. The movement reached another peak following the May 1970 invasion of Cambodia. Observers everywhere predicted that the vociferous dissent would continue, but the fall of 1970 saw a new and unforeseen quietude, brought on perhaps by the deaths at Kent State. Although the war was to continue for more than four years, the heyday of the peace movement had ended. Protests became harder to organize, especially after the spring of 1971 and the May Day civil disobedience in Washington, even though stubborn individuals and peace groups were to continue their efforts with little publicity until the day the war ended last spring.

But as the antiwar movement faded after 1968, and especially after 1970, it seemed that Phil Ochs faded as well. In a way, the demise of his song writing ability wasn't surprising. Some of history's major works of art and literature have been created in protest to war and other forms of social and political oppression, witness Picasso's "Guernica," Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," Upton Sinclair's "The Jungle," and many of the Charles Dickens' novels. So perhaps the war and the protest it spawned gave birth to Phil Ochs' creative powers as well; perhaps they served as his life force. And when the war receded from the national consciousness and protesting became a thing of the past, perhaps Ochs lost the spur he needed to compose his songs.

This is wild speculation, to be sure. But starting about 1970, Phil Ochs was not to write a song for almost four years. And in 1970 there were signs of a troubled spirit inside this master of the protest lyric. It was in that year that he appeared in Carnegie Hall dressed uncharacteristically in a glittering, gold costume, outraging his audience and prompting one of those present to cry out, "Phil Ochs is dead!" It was shortly thereafter that I saw him perform in Philadelphia, dressed in the same costume and backed up by an equally glittering rock band. Together they played songs befitting their costumes, but songs the audience had not come prepared to hear, had not wanted to hear. Boos greeted the entire performance.

During the next couple years, Ochs travelled to Europe, South America, and Africa, as if to find a new identity or meaning to his life. But finally he returned home and became, on the surface, at least, the Phil Ochs of old. He donned again the simple clothes he had always worn and once more sang the songs that had moved so many of us. And he renewed his efforts for peace and justice, helping in 1974 to organize a musical tribute to the late Salvador Allende of Chile, singing in 1974 at a rally calling for Richard Nixon's impeachment, and performing in Central Park last May before 50,000 people celebrating the end of the war. Despite his apparent rebirth, however, Ochs's composing skills never returned, and one day earlier this month he hanged himself from the top of his bedroom door, forever stilling the voice of a mighty trumpeteer of social protest. The purveyors of war and misery must be breathing more easily these days.

Phil Ochs will sing no longer. Those of us whom he inspired are the less for his death, but the wealthier for the songs he left behind. Phil would not want us to mourn, not at all. Instead he'd call on us to continue to work for peace and justice, and maybe he'd sing some of his familiar, always eloquent words:

*For I flew the final mission in the Japanese skies
Set off the mighty mushroom roar
When I saw the cities burning,
I knew that I was learning
I ain't marching anymore.*

Forbidden Thoughts

About 400 B.C., a citizen of ancient Greece was put to death because of a dream. In the dream he had seen himself killing the emperor. Authorities ruled that no one, asleep or awake, was allowed to think such forbidden thoughts.

Under American law, there is no such thing as a forbidden thought. No one can be punished merely for having mischief in mind. As Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes once put it:

"There is no law against a man's intending to commit murder the day after tomorrow."

If Motorist A knocks down Pedestrian B, it makes an enormous difference whether he did it with malice aforethought, or on a fleeting impulse, or through simple negligence. Although A's act is the same in each case, his punishment would vary according to the state of his mind.

But without any act, with only an intention however evil, he would have committed no crime.

A striking example arose during wartime. Joseph Malin, a disgruntled American soldier, decided to defect to the enemy. Late one night he set out for enemy lines. But by mistake he arrived at another American camp.

In short order Malin was brought to trial on a charge of high treason. Yet his only act—joining his own troops—was perfectly lawful.

But couldn't he be punished at least for his treasonable intentions? The court said no and set the soldier free.

The incident took place during the Revolutionary War, two centuries ago, and the court's decision was handed down in the third year of this nation's life.

Complete Scientific Programmability from Hewlett-Packard for $30 less than ever before.

The HP-25: Just $165*

Think of the HP-25 as an electronic slide rule you can program completely. The reason: It solves repetitive problems easily and quickly.

Here's how. Switch to PRGM.

Enter the keystrokes you need to solve your problem once and then flip the PRGM switch to RUN. That's it. The only thing you have to do for each iteration from then on is enter your variables and press the R/S (Run/Stop) key. It's that simple.

The result: Repetitive problems are no longer a repetitive problem.

But that's only part of the HP-25 story. Here's more. You can add to, check or edit your programs at will. You can also write one-second interruptions into your program in case you want to note intermediate answers.

And because the keycodes of all prefixed functions are merged, the 49-step program memory can actually store up to 147 keystrokes. (How's that for a memory capacity!) What's more, you can store numbers in eight data registers and perform 72 preprogrammed functions and operations (logs, trig, mean deviations, rectangular-polar conversions, summations—you name it). Not to mention RPN logic; fixed decimal, scientific and engineering notation; and much, much more.

In fact, if you wanted to know all the HP-25 can do for you it would take a book. But don't worry, we've already written one—125 pages-worth—just chock full of applications programs and problem solutions. Such as Algebra and Number Theory, Numerical Methods, Statistics—even Games. In detail.

And don't forget the best news. The price. The HP-25 was an exceptional value at $195. Right now it's an out-and-out bargain at $165*.

The HP-25. There's never been a calculator with this kind of capability at this kind of a low price before, with HP's name on it. And you know what that means. Design, performance and a back up support system you just can't get anywhere else.

The HP-25 is almost certainly available at your college bookstore. If not, call 800-538-7922. (In Calif. 800-662-9862) toll-free to find out the name of your nearest dealer.

Hockey Club Receives Funding On Final Day of Deliberations

By STU SAKS

The hockey club got its first scare on February 22 when the Polity Budget Committee recommended that their $13,365 request be cut to $0. And for nearly 13 weeks, the club lived with the uncertainty of whether they would be funded next year.

Motion after motion to fund the club during the Senate budget hearings were tabled. Finally, though, on the last night of budget deliberations last Wednesday, the hockey club was granted $7,500 (since reduced to $7,050).

There is relief now for the players and the general manager Carl Hirsh, a junior, who was admittedly concerned about the prospects of having a team next year. "I was worried," he said, "but I thought there were enough people [in the Senate] who had enough sense to protect a growing investment."

Hirsh expressed disfavor with the way money is allocated to sports at Stony Brook. But he is not the first to do that. The system was somewhat modified this year, but the changes didn't benefit the hockey club.

In February, the Budget Committee also recommended that the squash team not be funded. But since then, the Senate voted to hand the teams a lump sum of money and let the team captains and the men's and women's athletic directors, who comprise the Athletic Council, divide the money as they see fit. The Council is expected to include squash in their own allocations.

The hockey club does not have varsity status at Stony Brook. It is not a team, but rather a club. The "teams" receive coaches and travel money from the State, in addition to getting money from the mandatory student activity fee. Hockey, like the football, riding, and men's gymnastics clubs, is dependent solely on the activity fee allocated by Polity. These sports, although they compete intercollegiately, are not represented on the Athletic Council.

With the $6,000 cut from their original request, Hirsh said the club would be forced to cut down on its ice time, which costs $75 an hour. "We will have less practice sessions on the ice," Hirsh said. "We will try to get ourselves in condition in the Gym."

The original request also included the cost of furnishing a bus to all home games which are played at Superior Ice Rink in Kings Park. Hirsh said that the cut precludes that possibility.

The Name is Changed

The hockey club will play in the Metropolitan Collegiate Hockey Conference next year. This is the same league that Stony Brook finished 4-10 this year, but with a new name. And according to Hirsh, the name is not all that's new.

"The league structure is changed," he said. "The old people have been voted out and the new people have been voted in."

Hirsh is one of the five new members of the league's governing board. "The league's idea is that we want to get into the NCAA [National Collegiate Athletic Association]," Hirsh said. "With the old executive board, we weren't going anywhere fast."

Hirsh said that officiating would be a priority for change for the coming season.

During an ice brawl against John Jay College last season, 230-pound Patriot Al Gass was asked by a referee to help bring matters under control. Gass complied, but in so doing, shoved the other referee. Gass received a commendation from the league for helping a referee, but at the same time was suspended for shoving a referee. This, Hirsh said, was typical of the league's disorganization.

Another priority, according to Hirsh, will be to regroup the existing teams in the league along with the two new entries in a manner that would separate the weaker teams. Wherever the Patriots are placed, however, they will be happy just to be able to play.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Track Team Places Last

Stony Brook finished in fourth place, just one point behind Binghamton State University, in the SUNY Center Track Championships held Saturday in Albany.

Rich Sentochnik smashed the old school record in the six-mile run of 32:36 when he recorded a time of 31:10, good enough for second place. Kent Witt won the hammer throw with a toss of 119-0. Matt Lake finished second in both the mile and three-mile runs with times of 4:23 and 15:11 respectively. Scott Slavin won the pole vault with a height of 12-6.

Albany State University won the meet with Buffalo State University second.

Mets Top Astros on Hodges' Hit

Houston, Tex. (AP)—Joe Niekro's wild pitch and Ron Hodges' single gave New York two runs in the eighth inning yesterday and the Mets pulled out a 4-2 victory over the Houston Astros.

Ed Kranepool singled to right, moved to second on Dave Kingman's single, took third on Wayne Garrett's grounder and scored the tie-breaking run on the wild pitch by Niekro. Hodges followed with a two-out single that scored Kingman.

Felix Millan's single gave the Mets a third-inning run. Cesar Cedeno put Houston on top in the fourth with a two-run homer over the left field fence, his fifth homer in a 10-game hitting streak and New York tied it in the seventh when Hodges singled, moved to third on a bunt and a wild pitch and scored on Del Unser's single. Ken Sanders, 1-0, who replaced Mets' starter Jon Matlack in the seventh inning, got the victory.

Brawl Highlights A's Victory

Cleveland, Ohio, (AP)—Joe Rudi, who hit a two-run ninth inning homer to win Saturday's game, slugged a two-run shot in the first inning yesterday to start the Oakland A's to a 9-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians in a game marred by a bench-clearing brawl in the sixth inning.

Rudi staked Oakland starter Mike Torrez, 2-3, to a 2-0 lead in the first. He followed a leadoff walk to Bill North with a line shot over the left-field fence off Pat Dobson 1-2. It was Rudi's second homer of the year.

The brawl began when Cleveland's Buddy Bell slid hard into Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris for the second time in the game. Campaneris' throw hit Bell in the face as he slid in and the two came up swinging.

Both benches emptied onto the field but there were no other fights besides the Bell-Campaneris main bout. Boog Powell, who raced down to second with the rest of his teammates, suffered a sprained right ankle when he was stepped on by one of the players. He left the game, along with Bell, who suffered facial cuts and was taken to the hospital for precautionary X-rays.

Seed Change Does Not Affect SB Tennis Team

By ED SCHREIER

Because No. 1 Singles player Ron Schmeltzer had to take the Medical Board Examination and couldn't play, each member of the Stony Brook tennis team had to move up one spot against New York Tech Saturday. The Pats responded impressively with a 5-1 win over Tech. Stony Brook won five the six singles matches thus clinching the victory before the doubles matches, which were subsequently cancelled.

Steve Aronowitz playing No. 2 won the fifth and deciding match for the Patriots he said he wasn't worried about moving up in the order. "I played second twice before [this season], and this season more than any other, I've been exposed to more pressure."

Aronowitz, a freshman out of Newtown High School, seemed to be having some trouble with his opponents style of play. "This was the first time I played someone that dropshotted to that extent," he said, and he got me very tired throughout the match." Aronowitz said it was not his toughest match, but that he brought the difficulty upon himself. "I lost my concentration at various times during the match and I made it hard for myself by committing unforced errors," he said. "I might have made the match easier."

Also moving up in the order were Suffolk Community College transfer John Duzich and freshman Steve Lewis. "They moved in and did great job, said Stony Brook coach Les Thompson. "They were down at seven and eight team ranking and filled in at five and six." Duzich won 7-6, 6-3, while Lewis easily handled his Tech opponent 6-0, 6-0. Both are undefeated this season with Lewis at 5-0 and Duzich at 3-0. Another reason for them moving up was the loss of Mark Edson last week. Edson, a starter, got a job as a tennis pro and is now ineligible to play on the team.

The shift in the lineup is something the players are getting used to. There have been six different lineups thus far this year, and they have been adapting well. This can be attested to by a look at their record. With four victories so far this year, they already have one more win than they did during the entire season last year. Thompson was very pleased with his teams performance. "They played well and won the close matches," he said, "and won without Ron Schmeltzer. We put it together today, this was an older team, but we were in better condition."

The tennis team is now 4-4 overall and 2-2 in the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Tennis Conference. They play Tuesday against Hofstra University at 4 PM.

Their next conference match is Thursday against Concordia College at 3 PM on the tennis courts.

Match Scoring

JOHN DUZICH returns a backhand in Saturday's win over N.Y. Tech.

'Gold Fever' Leads Heavyweight Four to Victory

By ERIC WASSER

Oyster Bay—What is it that would drive someone to wake up at 4:30 AM, run until 6, and row until 8, every single morning? "I know it sounds corny," said Crew member Steve Silks, "but we do it for the love of the sport." Stony Brook's dedicated crew weather and took two of five events in the L.I. Sound Championships Saturday and came close to taking a third.

Stony Brook's undefeated varsity heavyweight four remained that way by downing Kings Point by 40 seconds, a margin maintained through most of the race. "We did what we had to do to win," Silks said. The race was never in doubt "because we had gold fever. We really wanted those medals," Silks added. Stony Brook's other win came in the heavyweight eight over St. John's University. The eight carries the team members from the four (Captain Fred Starheim, John Brisson, Chris Haran, and Silks, plus Brian Quirk, Mark Herman, Jon Cayle, and Phil LeNoach. Stony Brook never lost their lead but could not pull away and only won by a half length. the win against St. John's gives the heavy eight four victories in five races.

The Stony Brook fans were running up and down the beach hollering. "Stony Brook. To the Corps. For the Corps. Hard Core." After the race Coach Paul Dudzick told the heavy eight members, "You guys are now the team to beat in the New York area. It makes it harder when everyone there is trying to beat you. You want to be No. 1... then you've got to prove it next week at the Mets [N.Y. Metropolitan Championships]."

"We beat St. John's rather easily two weeks ago," said heavy eight member Quirk after the race. "This time they were psyched and now when we face them in the Mets we won't be overconfident."

Light Four Loses

In the light four Stony Brook lost the lead, late in the race and finished 1.5 seconds off the pace. "Today is the first time that they've rowed together," Starheim said. "I didn't think that they would do as well as they did. But to lose a lead like that... that hurts. It just looked like someone just caught a crab out there [had an oar caught in a patch of turbulent water]."

In the other two events, the light eight remained winless, losing to a strong King's Point's boat, and the novice eight finished fourth in a four boat race behind St. John's and two King's Point boats.

THE STONY BROOK HEAVYWEIGHT FOUR (background) in an earlier win over St. John's, remained undefeated with a win in the L.I. Sound Championships Saturday.
