G-QUAD FACELIFT: Gray College is one of four dorms being renovated.

University Nears Completion on $295,000 G-Quad Renovation

By RICH BERGOVOY

Work is nearly complete on $295,000 worth of renovations to G-Quad colleges, according to Associate Director of Facilities Utilization Steve Kowalik. "Some parts of G-Quad were 16 years old, and hadn't been renovated until now," he added. The renovations were begun last April and carried over the summer.

Under the supervision of the Department of Facilities Utilization, the University hired outside contractors to replace worn hall carpeting, refinish room doors with vinyl lamination, reconstruct the ceiling grid work and replace broken ceiling tiles, reconstruct a lint collection system for college laundry dryers, and replace metal bathroom ceilings with plaster. Contractors have yet to replace worn door lock mechanisms and reconstruct the Irving-O'Neil Main Lounge into a combination Quad Office and 24 hour study lounge.

"We started out in the public areas last spring, did the work on the rooms over the summer, and now we're back in the public areas," said Kowalik. "We expect to be done soon, but that's all I can say."

But Kowalik said that the renovation work was never supposed to be finished by the end of the summer.

"There was never any calendar," he said.

But Ammann College Resident Hall Director Larry Jamner said, "As far as we were lead to understand, they should be finished. When they showed us the blueprints in May, they had it all worked out nicely."

General Contractor The State Dormitory Authority, the State Agency which owns G-Quad and all campus dormitories, granted the University $295,000 in the form of a Special Fund Estimate. This allowed the University to act as a general contractor which hired subcontractors and purchased materials for

Begin, Sadat Agree On Sinai, West Bank Issues After Summit

Washington (AP) — President Carter announced to the world last night that a "framework for peace" in the Middle East had been reached at his summit meeting with Egypt's Anwar Sadat and Israel's Menachem Begin.

Flanked by President Sadat and Prime Minister Begin, he said documents to be signed by the two leaders "will provide that Israel may live in peace within secure borders."

Carter said Israel would withdraw its forces from the West Bank of the Jordan River and permit the Palestinian Arabs now living under Israeli occupation to determine their own future.

On the Sinai front, Carter said, Israel would withdraw its forces quickly, with the result being establishment of diplomatic relations between the two old foes in a 30-year conflict.

Carter's appearance with Sadat and Begin at the White House was nationally televised.

All three smiled and waved as they boarded the aircraft at Camp David. Carter climbed in first. Begin deferred to Sadat and urged the Egyptian leader to board second. The three men and the helicopter were lit by a glare of floodlights.

When the helicopter touched down on the White House south lawn, the three leaders were greeted by some 50 dignitaries and members of the White House staff. Each of the three got a kiss from the president's wife, Rosalynn.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd said Carter asked to explain the agreements to a joint session of Congress at 8 PM Monday.

Triples in Irving Fight to Stay on Their Hall

By LESLIE FREDEY

There are 24 students who are tripled on Irving A-1 who have been told they can move — but they don't want to.

They are among a group of 29 freshmen who have become friends. When it came time for detripling and they received assignments for rooms across campus, they went to Residence Life because they didn't want to leave their hall.

Tripling began this semester with about 900 students housed three in a room mostly in G and H-Quads. Acting Residence Life Director Claudia Justy expected that it would take a period of up to 10 weeks to detriple everyone.

In reality though, detripling has taken less than a month to complete. Residence Life says that on paper they have detripled everyone but there are still triples on campus. Most of the triples are anxious to move because of the space problems that tripling poses.

However, last Friday, about 12 freshmen from Irving A-1 went to see Residence Life Associate Director, Jerry Stein, and asked to remain tripled, rather than leave the hall. "I guess it was semi-intimidating because we all went together to Residence Life at 12:30 and we were seen by Stein at 2:30," said G-Quad resident, Rob Miller.

Tony Mollo, Residence Assistant (RA) of A-1 said that most of the residents are staying tripled in the hopes that they can stay within the college or the quad. Mollo said "I think their wanting to stay has a lot to do with the unique attributes of this hall."

Stein told the triples that they would be allowed to stay tripled until all the waiting listed persons (approximately 250) have been housed. At that time, they will have

Tehran, Iran (AP) — A devastating earthquake that struck a farming region of northeast Iran Saturday killed an estimated 9,000 persons and destroyed entire cities and villages, the official Pars news agency reported Sunday.

Buildings Shook

The quake, which was felt in two-thirds of the country and caused buildings in this capital city to shake, hit Saturday at 11:38 AM.

The quake, which U.S. seismologists measured at 7.7 on the Richter scale, was the most powerful in recent Iranian history.

Washington (AP) — The International Monetary Fund (IMF) urged patience yesterday for those who are worried about the dollar, saying the decline should benefit the U.S. and world economies although it may take a few years.

The IMF said the steep plunge in the dollar's value, and the gains made by other currencies, will help to narrow the huge U.S. trade deficit while erasing the trade surpluses of countries like Japan and West Germany.

National

Washington (AP) — Pegasus 1, one of the largest satellites ever shot into space, plunged back into the earth's atmosphere at 2:12 AM yesterday over northern Angola, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said.

NASA had predicted about 21,000 pounds of the satellite and its attached rocket stage would burn up from re-entry heat, but about 1,600 pounds, broken into perhaps hundreds of pieces, might survive and hit the earth.

The satellite, launched in 1965, measured meteoroid penetrations with two wing-like arms that spanned 96 feet.

Grinnell, Iowa (AP) — Authorities searched through rubble yesterday for a man missing after a tornado slammed into a motel and other small businesses in this central Iowa community, killing six persons and injuring at least 43 others.

New Hampshire (AP) — Three members of a vacationing New Hampshire family and an elderly woman were killed when the tornado sliced through a business district along an interstate junction south of here. The twister also ripped through a farmhouse in nearby Laurel, killing a man and his 7 year old daughter.

State and Local

Buffalo (AP) — A federal judge overturned portions of state prison-censorship guidelines that allow jailers to ban reading material that is sexually oriented, advocates the overthrow of the government or advocates anarchy.

U.S. District Judge John Curtin said last Thursday the censorship guidelines he was overturning were overly vague and constituted a violation of prisoners' First Amendment rights.

Curtin let stand two other state guidelines that allow censorship of literature that incites disobedience to law-enforcement personnel and material that incites violence based on race, religion or nationality.

A Leap Forward

The judge said that in recent years state prisons have made a "leap forward" in what they allow inmates to read. Curtin said he fashioned his ruling to conform to recent precedents holding that prisoners are entitled, with limited exceptions, to the same First Amendment protection as other citizens.

Cornute: Garage Won't Ease Parking Crunch

By JUDITH A STYSIACK

A new, 900 car parking garage at the Health Sciences Center (HSC) will not ease the campus parking crunch, said Public Safety Director Robert Cornute. The opening of the University hospital will generate more traffic than the garage can accommodate, Cornute said.

The garage is tentatively scheduled to open October 15, said Cornute, although many HSC employees are already parking on the site. Cornute added that the employees would have to move once landscaping and other final touches begin. The garage was built by the University Construction Fund with matching funds provided by the State and the US Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Despite the construction of the new garage, the opening of the University Hospital will greatly aggravate the parking situation, said Cornute. With 560 beds and an average of two visitors per patient a day, the hospital may receive 1,100 visitors a day. In addition, parking spaces will be sought by approximately 2800 hospital employees a day and another 500,000 outpatients a year.

Anticipate Shortage

The University expects to register 8000 cars this semester, but can provide spaces for only 6000 cars. "We always anticipate a parking shortage," said Assistant to the Executive Vice President Ron Siegel. "We might as well, since we have one every damn year."

New Parking Proposed

Two more garages are being proposed, one in HSC and one on main campus, according to Cornute. He said that a possible main campus location might be between the Administration and the Fine Arts Center, a major area of parking crunch.

But plans are not final. The Office of Long Range Planning must first approve the plan and perform an environmental impact study.

Assistant Executive Vice President Sanford Gerstel had previously stated that the HSC garage would considerably ease the campus parking problem. But he admitted that there was presently a great shortage of spaces, and that "people will probably be parking all over the place," until the new garage opens.

Security "will be towing very heavily," to combat the epidemic of illegal parking, added Cornute.

Fee Proposed

In a related development, the University has proposed a parking registration fee that could cost students and faculty between $2.50 and $5.00. If SUNY Central in Albany approves the plan, it would take effect this semester. The fee is designed to cover the costs of car registration and campus bus service, said University Business Manager Robert Chason.

Former Professor Chosen as Barbados Labor Minister

By ELIZABETH MOUSSAS

Donald Blackman, chairman of the Africana Studies Department at Stony Brook from 1971 to 1976 has been elevated to the position of Minister of Labor for Barbados after serving for two years as an ambassador to the United Nations from Barbados.

In the five years that he taught at Stony Brook, he succeeded in implementing several innovative programs for the students and community. With the assistance of Psychology Professor Rob Friend, Blackman started the "Wider Horizons" program which brought youngsters from the Riverhead area to be tutored by students at Stony Brook.

Also, along with Rupert Vaughan, a lecturer in the Africana Studies department, Blackman set up and served as an advisor for the Malcolm King Educational Center in Tabler Quad. This center served as a supplemental education for young blacks in and around the community, exposing them to black history, economics, and methods of raising their consciousness. Blackman also helped to promote a program which transported students to the Riker's Island Prison, where they tutored the inmates and were able to actively take part in the legal system.

According to Lucia Levell, who worked as Blackman's assistant and is now an undergraduate advisor, Blackman's role went far beyond teaching and starting programs. Levell said that Blackman believed in academic excellence, and made himself available as an academic advisor and a tutor for law and writing.

Besides this, he helped students who had gotten in trouble with the university, and supported what is now the Faculty Staff Association, which helps students in financial trouble.

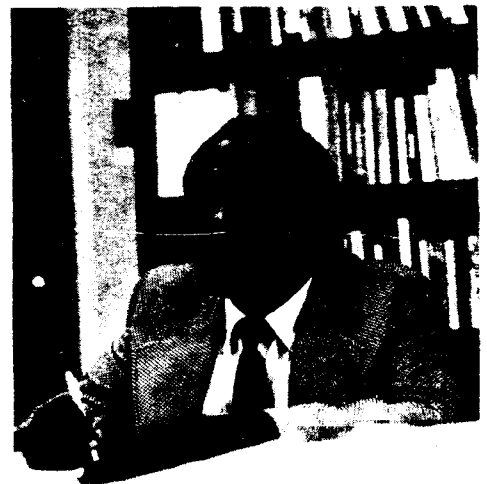

"He was a unique person," said Levell, "He just had a way of putting himself in another person's position, identifying with him, and helping him solve the problem." She added, "and if anything was wrong with the system, he took a stand, Blackman stuck his neck out."

Levell remembers Blackman as doing anything he could to help the students. "He would help with the Black World Newspaper," she said. "He was out there picking up the papers, circulating them, editing, and helping students write articles."

Pat Thorton, a former student of Blackman's said that what was unique about him was that "he played an active part in the experiences of the student. He helped them with the transition from school to life."

According to Affirmative Action Committee member, Irwin Quintine, while Blackman was a teacher at Stony Brook, he still kept abreast of the political scene in Barbados, his native land. According to Quintine, during the last election in Barbados two years ago, the party that Blackman supported won, and having knowledge of the New York area, Black was chosen as the ambassador to the UN.

Blackman said he is very satisfied with what he has accomplished for Barbados in the UN. He said that he was able to secure membership for Barbados on many committees, and that he initiated three resolutions and had them adopted, an unusual event for such a small, newly independent country.

Blackman has since been elevated to the position of Minister of Labor in Barbados. As the Minister of Labor, he will be involved with workers rights, industrial and other labor-related disputes, but he says that he will give highest precedence to the problem of unemployment, since it is a world problem as well as a national one.

Until December, Blackman will be serving as both an ambassador to the UN and as the Minister of Labor in Barbados.

each project of the renovation.

But under the terms of the grant, the University is not allowed to purchase new facilities, such as dorm furniture and cooking ranges, but is restricted to the "renovation, remodeling, and reconstruction" of existing facilities. These new purchases are made by different departments under different contracts, Kowalik said.

Construction began last April 3, after the State Dormitory Authority had forwarded the money around March. According to Kowalik, "This Dormitory Authority let it be known about a year and a half ago that there was extra money available.

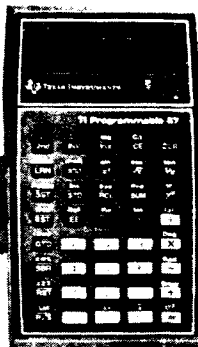

The dormitories of G-Quad were originally constructed in 1962. Residents often complained about the appearance of the buildings. "Last year, the hall was really wrecked up," said Michelle Hirman, a Resident Assistant on Irving B-2. "There were cigarette burns on the rug, things like that. I think the renovations are an improvement. But for the amount they spent, I don't think it was worth it. It doesn't really show."

"Everything they have done is menial, dinky, and bullshit," said Tom Hillgardner, a Managerial Assistant on Ammann A-1. "If they really wanted to spend the money right, they would do construction. The thing about Stony Brook is they go for the aesthetic effect."

Jamner disagreed. "They plastered over those old bathroom ceilings. That goes beyond cosmetic - that's necessary, I think the place really looks good. Now people will think of it as home."

Tripling Fight

"It's not nice to have people get all settled and then receive a notice saying 'get out' or 'go somewhere else...we don't want you here'," said Irving resident, Jon Angier.

Junior Mitch Grotch, the only upperclassman on the hall still tripled, said "Tripling is mentally, morally and physically debilitating," and he went on to say that he doesn't feel that the freshmen should be allowed to stay tripled.

David Levy, one of the tripled freshmen, said he thought he spoke for the group when he said, "We'd like to be doubled but if we have to be tripled to keep all the guys here, we'll do it."

Very Cooperative

Mollo did say that Stein was "very cooperative" and that "he did as much as possible to help us." Stein agreed that as Residence Life made the assignments for the people on the waiting list that they would try to hold open the available rooms in G and H Quads.

However, Stein was unavailable for comment on the possibility of finding housing within the building for the triples.

Pat Sventer, Irving A-1 resident simply stated "I just don't think they (Residence Life) anticipated so many problems." Justy would not comment as to when she expects both the detripling procedure and the assignment of waiting listed persons to be completed.

Triple Irony

The cold and impersonal bureaucratic machinery of this University has done little to further the cause of student morale on this campus, and now it is attempting to wipe out that little good it has done.

Tripling, the warped housing shortage solution of some entrenched bureaucrat in Albany, has made few friends on this campus over the years it has been used. Ironically, it appears that it has been the cause of friendships this year in Irving College's A-Wing on the first floor, where eight triples want to stay together and are being told that they have to move.

Granted that most students who are tripled jump at the opportunity to move across campus to Kelly, the more attractive Tabler or Roth Quads, but these students want to stay in the older G-Quad building where they are living in close quarters but with close friends. They want to stay together and they are being told to move.

It does make sense. The University indiscriminantly triples with no questions asked, and approaches tripling in the same manner. We urge that these students, nearly all freshman who would be removed from their only friends on campus, be allowed to remain together. Splitting them up at this point would be wrong — but maybe that does not matter, because tripling them in the first place was wrong too.

...And No One Showed Up

As the Polity Council considered its options last week after deciding to protest the Stony Brook Council determination that it would place but one student on the 13 member search committee charged with the task of finding the next university president of Stony Brook, the idea of a protest demonstration was suggested — and almost immediately dismissed.

Members of the undergraduate student government decided not to call a demonstration for a very good reason — not because the cause is an unworthy one, but because they feared that no one would show up.

In order to stage a successful demonstration in so apathetic a period as the late 1970s, the protest must be over a terrible situation affecting students directly. Demonstrations like those common about 10 years ago were generally effective, and occasionally violent. Most of the most famous, bloodiest demonstrations took place during the Vietnam War period, as students lashed back against an unresponsive government fighting what they believed to be an immoral war.

At Stony Brook, most demonstrations protested abominable conditions on campus as construction was proceeding quickly but unevenly. The most recent demonstration here took place in February 1977 when 1,000 students protested a very bad decision by former University President John Toll to implement a new and unpopular academic calendar.

Ironically, students will again wait until the next president makes a similar move before they protest in similar numbers once more, yet when they are told that they will have only token input in the determination of who that next president will be, then they are quiet.

Cosmetic Solution

Soon the University and the State will have spent nearly $300,000 on cosmetic renovations in G-Quad.

This is not necessarily bad. G-Quad has not always been the most aesthetically pleasing dormitory quad on campus. One could always find torn carpeting, half-destroyed end hall lounges, broken doors and assorted other eyesores.

But the problem is not that simple. G-Quad, like the rest of the dormitories on campus, has a serious shortage of furniture. One former Residence Life official estimated that it would cost approximately $2.5 million to replace all of it. He also said that G-Quad has the oldest furniture on campus.

The root of this problem lies not with the University but with New York State. The officials in Albany simply did not allocate enough money to fully correct this situation. In addition, none of the money could be used to buy new equipment. It could only be used to repair existing facilities. Whatever the reasons were for this stipulation, it did not serve G-Quad's purposes as much new furniture was needed.

Clarification

To the Editor:
In response to Phillip Jonathan Katz' letter (Statesman 8/11/78) regarding the "Welcome Party" for the Freshman Class of '82 sponsored by the Stony Brook Alumni Association and the Acting President and Mrs. Pond on Tuesday, September 5, a number of facts should be clarified.

Notices posted announcing this party clearly read "Free for freshman with meal cards — others one dollar." No freshman were barred from this event because they did not have meal cards, but a minimal charge was necessitated by the fact that Lackman Food Service was generous enough to provide this service with the Alumni Association subsidizing most of the cost of the event and hoping to keep the price down.

I can assure Mr. Katz that the large, and growing, commuter population attending classes on this large campus is a fact of which we are all aware. It is to the credit of Polity officials that when plans for this party were being made they suggested that it be open to the entire university community, but this was not possible given the constraints of time, money, and manpower available for such an undertaking. The Office of Student Affairs had also hoped that future events of this sort include all campus groups and efforts will be made to guarantee that.

Finally, the early scheduling of this event in your school year made it difficult to advertise other than in Statesman, with the posting of signs, and by hand-delivered flyers (campus mailboxes had not yet been assigned). As the school year progresses it should become easier to communicate future events through the commuter newsletter and as current commuter addresses become available.

Sincerely,

Mel Morris,
President Alumni Association

P.S. I would also like to thank all the Freshman that made the party a success.

Intern Program

To the Editor:

The New York State Senate is offering a significant opportunity for undergraduates to acquire a practical education in the legislative process through its Session Assistants' Program. This is a full-time internship in a State Senator's office from January through May, 1979, the better part of the Legislative session.

Brochures, application forms and other information on the Program are in the hands of Campus Liaison Officers.

The Campus Liaison Officer for the New York State Senate's Session Assistants' Program on your campus is W. Averell Harriman College for Urban and Policy Sciences, Harry Weiner, Dean. Please contact this person for information about the Program and application procedures. If you cannot locate the Campus Liaison Officer, please inform us.

I would appreciate your printing notice of this opportunity in your newspaper as a service to students. I would be happy to clarify any points with you or with interested students. Feel free to telephone me at (518) 472-8723.

Thank you for your help.

Sincerely,

John M. Flynn

LOOKING in on The Rainy Night House, that haven in the Union basement, during a typical mid-afternoon.

The Rainy Nighthouse, When It's Time For a Respite

By MELISSA SPIELMAN
and CHRIS FAIRHALL

After struggling through the normal everyday hassles of a typical day in the Brook, one will find it necessary to have a respite and re-cooperate in some place with a calming atmosphere. The Rainy Night House (RNH) is that "mellow place."

One member of the devoted group of Rainy Night House patrons explained "it has one of the better atmospheres on campus." And if one is looking for a place to have a relaxing retreat, the RNH will do a good job providing this haven.

The Rainy Night House, situated in the basement of the Union, has an informal decor and one will immediately notice a weathered gray carpet with cigarette burn print, coffee cans serving as ash trays and yellow construction paper signs which inquire, "Have You Cleared Your Table?" But, according to Rainy Night Manager Linda Sacco, this request is infrequently followed.

The counter, where people buy all sorts of goodies, is situated in the front of the shop. The middle of the room has a number of tables for four and in the back are low tables with yellow and orange cushions. It is an area for optimum vegetation, and students remain there for hours at a time.

The walls also bear three large murals. The first one people will notice is a scene of mountains, lake and forest in the foreground—with the sun faintly showing itself through the sky. The reflection of the trees in the water below the snow capped peaks and grayish sky evokes a serene mood.

There is another mural beside mountains which is composed of a blue lake surrounded by a forest of yellow and orange leaf aspen trees. In the background it seems as if the snow capped mountains continue from the first mural.

In the third mural, on the wall opposite the counter, is a view of the sea with sunlight radiating through the clouds at one side and a glowing full moon on the other. Commenting on the murals, Freshman Avi Rosenthal said, "I think it puts it in a good atmosphere. The place would be a lot different without them."

Next to the last mural is a translucent cylinder, which is usually turned on in the evenings, and emits orange, yellow and green glashes. There is also a low, carpeted stage equipped with several chairs, speakers and a blonde wood piano which resurrects memories of elementary school music rooms. There is a sign inviting patrons to play piano; and customers that have previously taken advantage of this offer have ranged from virtuosos to obvious neophytes.

The stage is also used for live entertainment, including folk, rock, blues acts and stand-up comedians.

The human component of the decor consists of two or three students working behind the counter, a collection of others playing chess at tables in the front and, across the way, students sprawled across the cushions on the floor. There is frequently a sizable line at the counter, particularly at midday. Sacco explained that three people, instead of the usual two, serve food from 11 AM to 1 PM on weekdays to alleviate the lines.

Lunchtime Line

As many have noticed, however, lines around lunchtime are omnipresent. Frequently one will see a line of a dozen people outside the RNH, and they will not be relieved to find when they get inside they will have to wait behind another seven or eight people at the counter. Sacco added that if there was any more help it would make things too crowded behind the counter.

Those who frequent the RNH in the evenings will find very small lines if any, and the atmosphere is relaxing at this time when the only light is emitted from two small globes in the front of the room and the pulsating cylinder. Music, regardless of the time, is always a part of the environ and WUSB has been providing the sound lately because the stereo is currently out of order.

RNH provides a variety of what one regular termed, "all the necessary little stimulants" at lower prices than expected. One of the most popular orders is a hot bagel with butter (35 cents) or cream cheese (40 cents). There are shelves of luscious pastries tempting the most ardent dieter who just stopped in to get a cup of coffee or tea. It is hard to turn down buying a fudge roll, apple turnover, jelly donut, brownies and cheesecake, all prices between 25 and 50 cents.

Along with munchies, one must have something to drink, and people will not be let down with what the RNH has to offer. There is over a score of different teas, including Cha Ching, Spice, Irish and Alfalfa Mint, all of which cost 25 cents. There are a variety of sodas, OJ, milk, and there is also beer, wine, and sangria. Sangria goes for 50 cents a glass, and there are different prices for the beers which range from 50 cents for Miller to 75 cents for Lowenbrau light special.

Former Student Co-Op

There have been many changes in the Rainy Night House over the past few years, and Sacco intends to make more. The murals, painted just last spring, are one of the first changes already implemented and other changes are in the offing. New carpeting, lighting, different upholstery on the cushions and a new stage will be high on the priority list. The menu is also expanding with the additions of birch beer, cheese and crackers, bottles of wine and more varieties of tea.

Changing Atmosphere

RNH exists courtesy of Stony Brook students past and present. It opened at the beginning of the decade as a student co-operative called the Broken Door. It was then decorated with Peter Max murals and showed various films, but ran into financial difficulties and was taken over by SCOOP, today, the student business corporation. Students do all the maintenance work, and prospective employees begin as fill-ins and after a semester are hired on a permanent basis. Although the RNH is a non-profit business, Sacco said it does make enough money to pay for some entertainment and repairs.

Guinea Pigs?

Sacco said she wants the RNH to be more open and said she will add "plants, and maybe even guinea pigs if I have to. . . we need life down here, not the basement feeling."

"It's very frustrating—you always want to put in more, there's so much to do," Sacco said. "If students have any comments or suggestions about the Rainy Night House, I'd like to hear them."

There are many hours when students can make their observations and voice their views about the RNH. Its hours are: 10 AM to 4 PM and 8 PM to 12 AM on weekdays and it is open until 1 AM on Friday and Saturday nights.

Middle East Summit

The administration officials, who declined to be identified, said the documents "provide a framework for continuing negotiations" and not a completed agreement.

Forty issues remain unresolved after the 12-day summit, including the ultimate fate of Israeli settlements in the Sinai and the nature of the final arrangement for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

The agreement of the Sinai comes closer to being a final settlement, the officials said. It provides that Israel eventually restore Egyptian sovereignty "throughout the Sinai" and that Egypt will make peace and establish normal relations with Israel.

The Sinai agreement calls for phased withdrawal of Israeli troops, starting as soon as six months from last night and the return of Sinai airfields to Egyptian civilian control.

It commits both Israel and Egypt to agreeing to a treaty within three months, with a major Israeli withdrawal three to nine months after the treaty is signed. After the first Israeli withdrawal, the two countries agreed to establish normal diplomatic relations, the administration officials said.

The Streak Ends; Yankees Lose to Red Sox

New York (AP) — Manager Don Zimmer and the Boston Red Sox were able to smile again yesterday after staying alive in the American League East with a 7-3 victory over the New York Yankees.

"We didn't win two out of three here as we had hoped, but we're not going to quit," Zimmer said after the Red Sox climbed back with 2½ games of the Yankees.

"Now we have to get on a winning streak and hope for help," Zimmer added. "Being 2½ ahead with 13 to play for Boston they have the advantage. But we're going to try to hang in there."

Asked if he was holding his breath when the Yankees scored two unearned runs with a pair of errors in the eighth, Zimmer quipped, "I've been holding my breath for three weeks."

The victory, snapping a five-game losing streak, was only the fourth in the last 18 games for the Red Sox, who led the division from May 19 until last Wednesday before being displaced by New York.

Not Out of It

"They could have buried us today, but they didn't," said second baseman Jerry Remy, who drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly. "We got some breaks for a change, something we haven't gotten for three weeks. It's about time. Now I think we're back in the thick of it."

Not Impossible

"We have to keep on winning and hope somebody beats them," said Boston captain Carl

Yastrzemski, who collected two RBIs with a pop single and a homer, his 14th of the year and 380th of his career. "It's going to be tough, but it's not impossible. Maybe they'll hit a cold stretch."

Pitching Strong

Righthanders Dennis Eckersley and Bob Stanley combined for a four-hitter as the Red Sox captured the regular season finale with the Yankees.

Eckersley 4 for 5

Eckersley allowed three hits and one run in six 23 innings before Stanley was summoned to put down a New York rally which produced one run in the seventh.

Eckersley picked up the victory, his fourth in five decisions against the Yankees this year. That boosted his record to 17-8.

Good Relief

Stanley, who has developed into an outstanding reliever in his second major league season, earned his ninth save, his first since July 24. The 23 year old hurler has a 14-2 record.

Long Gap

"I finally did what a relief pitcher is supposed to do," Stanley said. "It's been a long time between saves."

One Hitter to Sixth

Eckersley said he didn't feel "really strong". However, he blanked the Yankees on one hit for six innings before running into trouble in the seventh and giving way to Stanley.

"I didn't have good velocity, but my location was pretty good," Eckersley said. "I've been able to throw off-speed pitches over the plate all year. That helped today. I knew what I had to do and I did it."

Jets, Giants, Football at a Glance

The New York Giants took the opening kickoff 71 yards on 11 plays and Joe Pisarcik passed for two touchdowns while completing 15 of 25 passing attempts as the Giants downed the Kansas City Chiefs 26-10.

Quarterback Jim Zorn sprinted to a first down on a fake field goal in the fourth quarter and David Sims gained 121 yards on 23 carries while scoring three touchdowns as the Seattle Seahawks handed the New York Jets their first loss of the season 24-17.

The Los Angeles Rams, led by Pat Haden and an aggressive defense, scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter and defeated the world champion Dallas Cowboys 27-14.

Mark Van Eeghen rushed for 151 yards and Arthur Whittington scored two touchdowns as Oakland gaining 348 yards on the ground rolled over the Green Bay Packers 28-3

Ron Jaworski hooked up with Harold Carmichael for second half touchdowns of six and 18 yards as the Philadelphia Eagles topped the New Orleans Saints 24-17.

Delvin Williams rushed for 121 yards rushing and teammate Gary Davis added 89, each scoring one touchdown as the Miami Dolphins defeated the Buffalo Bills 31-24.

Houston's Toni Fritsch booted a 19 yard field goal with 1:16 left to play to cap an 80 yard 11 play drive and lift the Oilers over the San Francisco 49ers 20-19.

Rich Upchurch ran back a punt 75 yards for the go-ahead touchdown with 3:17 to play as the Denver Broncos overtook the San Diego Chargers 27-14.

Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw riddled the Cincinnati secondary for 242 yards, completing 14 or 19 passing attempts. The Steelers rolled up 451 total yards against the Bengals while crushing them 28-3.

Brian Sipe threw a pair of touchdown passes in the first half and recovered his own fumble for a touchdown with 1:19 remaining in the game as the Cleveland Browns held on to beat the Atlanta Falcons 24-16.

In a major upset, The Tampa Bay Buccaneers surprised the Minnesota Vikings 16-10.

Patriot Defense Is No Handicap for Galludet

By PETER WISHNIE

They may not be able to hear other people talking, but that doesn't stop them from communicating. They may not be able to hear the cheers from the crowd, but that doesn't stop them from getting excited. They may not be able to hear the signals from the quarter-back, but that doesn't stop them from playing football.

The team is Gallaudet College, a school for the deaf located in Washington, D.C. They communicate by sign language, get excited by just having the chance to play football, and call signals by the feeling of the vibrations of a big bass drum.

This past Saturday, the Stony Brook football club played Gallaudet. Head coach Fred Kemp explains the reason why the club was scheduled to play a deaf team. "It is a good learning experience to play a deaf team and college is meant to be a learning experience." The game was a good experience for Stony Brook because it is important to learn how to lose and to deal with it, according to coach Kemp. "It is easy to win, but when you lose you must do it with class," stated defensive coach Dennis Desmond. Kemp feels that the team took the 38-14 loss with class.

The score is of no indication of how the Patriots played. They made it a close game in the beginning of the fourth quarter, when Mike Marrone caught a five yard pass from Rich Domenech to get six points, and a pass from Domenech to Jeff Miller to score the extra two. This made the score 22-14 in Gallaudet's favor. Stony Brook only needed a touchdown and the extra two points to put them back in the game.

However, this is when their defense collapsed. On the very next drive, Gallaudet made the score 30-14. The drive started out on their own 28 yard line. Several running plays caused a first down and then a 30 yard pass from Mike Pauloue to Wally Witzcak of Gallaudet gave them a first down on the Patriots 20 yard line. A few plays later, Ricky Ward ran in for a touchdown, Gallaudet made one more touchdown, making the score 38-14. "The reason for the defensive collapse," said interim Patriot defensive captain Bob Clasen, "is that a lot of our defensive players were injured, and we had inexperienced players, which hurt us. We also made a lot of mental mistakes because we weren't prepared for the reason that the defense was changed in the past week."

Inexperience probably did hurt them on the defensive side, because out of the entire defensive unit, there were only three returning players for the game. The defensive squad lost two very important players due to injuries. One is right corner back Jerry Korman, and the other is middle line-backer Lenny Meyer who is usually the head of the defense.

The defense was not completely at fault for the loss of the game. There were few key offensive plays that killed a couple of scoring drives. One, in the first quarter when the Patriots were down 16-0 when Gallaudet scored twice by running right pass the defensive line for a 56 and a 73 yard scoring drive. The Patriots had the ball on their own 18 yard line. A short pass and a run moved the ball to their own 33. The offense, it seemed, was getting something together. It was third down and one to go. Domenech carried the ball himself, but he was stopped cold in his tracks by the Gallaudet defensive line.

A more important offensive play came about mid-way through the third quarter when Stony Brook was trailing 16-6 but threatening. They had the ball on Gallaudet's 33 yard line. It was second down and six to go for the first down. A sloppy pitchout by Domenech which Miller just couldn't handle gave the ball back to Gallaudet.

Stony Brook scored its first touchdown in the second quarter on a five yard run by Miller. Domenech, once again, tried to pass Gallaudet's defensive line for the extra two points. He was stopped dead at the one yard line.

There was one good aspect for the Patriots. That was their passing game. Domenech threw for 240 yards completing 18 out of 35 passes. His main receiver was number one, Greg Borough. Domenech threw fire-rockets all day to Borough, who caught eight passes for 140 yards. "I had a good passing game. I made some mistakes by overthrowing a few passes and by misreading the defense at times. I had good pass protection and my receivers were on good routes which makes for a good passing game," said Domenech.

Running Game Fails

The Patriots tried to run early in the game but they failed to do it successfully. The only thing left to do was to pass. "They were daring us to run, so to keep them off balance you must pass," said the offensive coordinator Marv Weitz. Weitz feels that the offense wasn't that sharp, however, he is satisfied but not pleased.

The Patriots didn't win but they put in a good effort according to Weitz. "I don't think the outcome of any one game is very important. The effort of the team is far more important than the outcome."

Fall Training Will Help Baseball Team in Spring

By LENN ROBBINS

For the first time in over three years, the Stony Brook baseball team has a fall program. It's a new idea, and head coach Ed Reuss has developed a slightly different coaching attitude for the new season. With the exception of one game, Reuss doesn't care whether he wins or loses.

"The entire philosophy of the fall season is to look at some players we normally wouldn't have had a chance to see," said Reuss. "We've got a couple of freshmen and a junior transfer that may really help us."

Reuss, and the returning players from last year's squad feel the new season will definitely benefit the team when the spring season begins. Right now the team is trying to see where they can strengthen themselves. "We're just trying to see whose got what," said starting catcher Harry Lorowitz. "The idea of the fall season is to prepare us for the spring. Winning or losing isn't important right now."

Tech Bombed

When the spring season comes, winning and losing will be important. Last year the Patriots finished with an 11 and 13 record.

However, the team came on very strongly at the end of the year. Although the team is one and four so far, their only victory was a 12-7 bombing of arch rival New York Tech, on Tech's home field.

Tournament Friday

On Friday night, the Patriots will be playing in a tournament at Baldwin Park. The tournament is the only meeting this fall that Reuss wants to win. Along with Stony Brook, the tournament will host Tech, Adelphi, Brooklyn and Queens. Despite beating Tech (which will be the number one seed in the tournament) the Patriots dropped a pair of double-headers over the weekend to Brooklyn (11-4 and 3-1) and to Adelphi (8-3 and ??). Once again pitching was the major problem for the Patriots, a problem that has hurt the team for the past two years. Even so, Reuss is optimistic for this year.

"I can see us strengthening at every position," said Reuss. "I think the pitching will come around and we'll be a big improvement over last year."
