

Former Student Found Slain

By Benjamin Berry and Nancy J. Hyman

A former graduate student at the School of Social Welfare, who had earned several credits towards a Master's degree, was found murdered on the corner of Route 25A and Nicolls Road shortly past midnight yesterday, according to Suffolk County Police.

Jerry Adams, 32, who had attended the University during the 1978-79 academic year, was found dead in his car, an apparent victim of an automobile accident. Upon closer investigation, Adams, who is also known as Yacub E.L. Shebazz, was found to have been "shot several times" in the back of the head with a handgun, according to a Suffolk County Homicide detective. No money was taken and there is no apparent motive for the slaying at this time.

Adams, who was black, was married and lived in Medford with his wife, Harriet, and their two small children. In recent months, he has been reportedly seen wearing a skullcap and selling health food products in the area of the Stony Brook Union.

This past weekend, the Mu Delta Chapter of the Phi Beta Sigma fraternity, the Theta Kappa Chapter of the Zeta Phi Beta sorority and the Scholastic Achievement Incentive for Non-Traditional Students (SAINTS), a Polity-funded organization, sponsored a beauty pageant and basketball game dubbed as a Homecoming Weekend. According to Gonzalo Diaz, chairperson of the homecoming committee and a member of the fraternity, he did not personally know Adams, but saw him at Saturday's basketball game which featured the WBL all-stars against the Mu Delta chapter. The game — attended by 300 to 400 people — was a benefit for the chapter's scholarship fund. Robert Buskey, president of Mu Delta, would not comment on the murder.

"What happened was unfortunate," said Diaz. "On behalf of the fraternity and the sorority, I express my condolences to the family. We regret that something of this nature had to happen to the surrounding campus community." He added that "the fraternity and the sorority will assist the family in any way, if possible." Both the fraternity and the sorority are in their first year of existence on the Stony Brook campus.

According to Detective Robert Sievers of the Suffolk County Police Department, Homicide Division, the case is currently under investigation. Anyone with any information regarding this incident is asked to call the sixth precinct at 286-5000. The Department of Public Safety is not handling the case.

SETAUKET FIRE FIGHTERS secure the area where an oil truck overturned yesterday morning.

Oil Transport Truck Spills 5,400 Gallons

By Daryl Rutherford

An oil transport truck containing 5,400 gallons of volatile fuel overturned at Nichols Road and Route 347, South of campus at about 10:24 AM yesterday, delaying traffic on surrounding roads for at least seven hours.

Eighty firefighters and 15 pieces of equipment from 10 companies responded to the call, but the tanker did not explode.

The accident occurred when the driver, James Capitello, attempted to turn right onto Nichols Road Northbound from Route 347 Westbound. Capitello crossed over both Northbound lanes and rolled onto the median strip between Nichols Road North- and South-bound, according to Frank Marotta, Public Relations Officer for the Setauket Volunteer Fire Department.

Marotta said that the driver, who was apparently uninjured, was taken to Mather Hospital in Port Jefferson for treatment. "He was walking around when we got here but he was complaining of back pains," said Marotta. Marotta also said that "500 to 2500 gallons of fuel" leaked out and soaked into a nearby sump. ASSOCIATE CHEMISTRY PROFESSOR Ted Goldfarb speaks to demonstrators at the Shoreham Nuclear Facility.

1,500 Protest at Shoreham

By Howard Saltz

Shoreham — About 1,500 people protested near the Shoreham Nuclear Facility yesterday, in the second day of a three-day anti-nuclear demonstration.

The peaceful demonstration at Shoreham Beach, under the watchful eyes of 50 Suffolk County Policemen and Long Island Lighting Company (LILCO) Security officers, included speeches from Stony Brook Associate Chemistry Professor Ted Goldfarb, anti-nuclear activist Dave Dellinger, and a variety of other speakers, all calling for the dismantling of the Shoreham power plant.

The demonstration is expected to culminate today, as an attenuated group will block the entrance to the facility, preventing workers from entering. Unlike today's protestors, those blocking access to the facility will be in violation of a restraining order issued by United States District Court Judge Henry Bramwell Thursday, and will, therefore, face possible arrest.

Today's demonstration, however, was not marred by any arrests or any incidents of violence. In orderly unison, the protestors sang, watched performances, and exchanged literature. Perhaps the highlight of the afternoon came when about $60,000 in LILCO bills were placed in two barrels and burned.

"LILCO is up against the wall," said Goldfarb. "They've admitted that if they don't get their price increase, they'll have to put Shoreham on ice for a year...we'll put Shoreham on ice forever."

One area of concern during the demonstration was the noticeably smaller crowd as compared to last year's rally, which drew 20,000 people. But Dellinger retorted that, because of the more widespread animosity toward nuclear power, potential demonstrators were protesting elsewhere.

"That was right after Three Mile Island," Dellinger said of last year's protest, but now, "action is extended to every place in the country. It's not because people have less interest, but because they have things in other places in the country."

Dellinger also encouraged today's blockade, even though he could not attend. "I will always encourage people who are ready to take that kind of action," he said, adding that people should defy the court injunction preventing them from blocking access to the plant today, and stand up for what they believe is right.

"I'll cooperate with the police once I'm arrested," said Jon Gatto of Port Jefferson, who will be part of the blockade today, "but the statement will be made that I'm against this plant."

Road to Shoreham

Shoreham — About 30 Stony Brook students marched along the road to Shoreham yesterday, and with each step on the 2.8 mile journey between the bus parking lot and the demonstration scene, a more definite statement was made.

The Stony Brook students, who left the University early Sunday morning, met their fellow anti-nuclear sympathizers prior to the massive demonstration and marched optimistically in unison toward Shoreham Beach to hear speakers, performers, and promote their anti-nuclear power sentiments.

"It's a more direct action than last year," said sophomore Mary Constant, because of an injunction stopping the blockade would be ignored.

Sophomore Barry Rightholtz said that, because of Stony Brook's closeness to Shoreham, students should be more wary of nuclear danger.

"Everyone thinks nuclear power is great until it's near their house," Rightholtz said. "I think Stony Brook students should be more aware of the dangers because of their proximity. We go to Stony Brook and we're so near to nuclear danger; these things are going to blow up Grad Physics and Grad Chem."

Iraq Claims Large Gains

Baghdad, Iraq — Iraq said yesterday its forces punched 50 miles inside Iran and were battling for control of three major cities in Iran's oil heartland. Iran denied the Iraqi claims and said the Iranian air force was attacking "enemy units that have penetrated into our beloved homeland." President Mohammed Zia ul Haq of Pakistan was on a peace mission to Tehran and Baghdad, but there was no indication either side was ready to end the week-long war between the neighboring Persian Gulf oil countries.

Iran's news agency said Zia left for Baghdad after conferring twice with Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr about the border dispute. Tehran radio said Iran's parliament met in a closed session to consider the war situation, but that there was no discussion of the fate of 52 American hostages held captive since November 4.

Iraq claimed the capture of Ahwaz, capital of Iran's oil province, and Iraqi forces were reported inside Khorramshahr and besieging Abadan and Dezful. Baghdad said its troops had crossed the Karkheh River defense line of Dezful, 70 miles north of Ahwaz, and that "the town is doomed."

"Great Lie"

Iran called claims that Ahwaz had fallen a "great lie." The city is 50 miles east of the disputed Iraq-Iran border and the capital of Khuzestan Province. Iraq accused Iran of broadcasting from another transmitter in the name of Ahwaz radio "to make the Iranian people believe that Ahwaz is still resisting."

In the south, at the disputed Shatt al-Arab waterway, Iraqi troops fought for control of the Iranian oil port of Khorramshahr and tightened their siege of the refinery city of Abadan. Reports from the front said Iraqi troops on the outskirts of Khorramshahr were shelling the center of the city where Iranian defenders were led by revolutionary guards.

Tehran radio, however, broadcast an announcement from the Khorramshahr City Council saying "Iraqi Baathist Party mercenaries and supporters of hedonism have been crushed."

An Iranian military communique said that after destroying military targets in Iraq, the Iranian air force was launching fierce attacks on Iraqi units inside Iran and had destroyed a large number of tanks in Khuzestan Province and at Gilan Garb in the central sector of the front.

Impossible Defeat

Iran's ranking diplomat in Beirut, Mehdi Amir Kamali, said it was "impossible" for Iran to be defeated but if it did lose the war Iran would blow up oil fields throughout the Persian Gulf.

Tehran Radio said Iranian Oil Minister Mohammad Javad Tondguyan had visited Ahwaz and was on his way to Abadan to inspect the refinery that has been in flames for a week. The widespread damage to oil facilities in the fighting has cut off about four million barrels of oil a day the two countries had been exporting.

Munich, West Germany — Authorities believe a West German Neo-Nazi planted the bomb that ripped through a crowd of Oktoberfest revelers, killing 12 people, including the suspected terrorist, and injuring 213. Police have arrested six members of an outlawed fascist organization in connection with the blast.

Karl-Heinz Hoffmann, 43, leader of the "Military Sport Group Hoffmann," was picked up over the weekend along with five other members of the group, Bavarian State Justice Minister Karl Hellermeier said yesterday.

Police found papers pertaining to the group near the body of 21-year-old Gundolf Koehler, the student suspected of planting the bomb in a trash can near the crowded exit from the Oktoberfest grounds Friday night.

The powerful explosive went off before Koehler could leave the scene, police theorized. The blast tore through a crowd leaving the Munich beer festival, which is billed as "the biggest folk festival in the world."

Among the dozen victims were a Briton and a Swiss, and three of the 10 West Germans were children, police said.

Seven Americans were injured, according to the Interior Ministry.

National

Newark — It looks as if mandatory water rationing in northern New Jersey could remain in effect for months.

The National Weather Service today continued its predictions of below average rainfall through October.

If those predictions hold true, some two million New Jerseyans will have to get accustomed to Governor Byrne's rationing limit of 50 gallons of water per person per day.

Byrne's executive order, put into effect Saturday, is aimed at cutting water usage by 25 percent in 114 Northern Jersey communities.

State and Local

New York — Muggers kill a music student on a subway platform. Thugs beat a teenager with brass knuckles outside a subway entrance then steal her gold necklace. A man slashes subway riders with a meat cleaver.

Such stories of violence along the city's 710 miles of subway tracks have made crime a grim, daily preoccupation for riders.

There were 7,234 subway crimes in the first seven months of this year — up 8.4 percent over the same period in 1979. The number of people killed during this period — 16 — was the same as that killed during all of 1979.

William McKechnie, president of the Transit Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, says, "A murder in the subway is front-page news, a murder in the street, not always."

The psychological effect of these incidents appears to be a sort of a siege mentality among many of the estimated 1.7 million daily riders.

Consider the reaction of 18-year-old Yvette Montgomery, who was going to work September 19 when two men accosted her outside an upper west side subway entrance. They grabbed her gold necklace and ring, then beat her with a stick and brass knuckles.

She fled blindly into a subway tunnel and crouched beside the tracks, rush hour trains whizzing by, before police rescued her 30 minutes later.

SB Senior Given Award

By John Buscemi

Marc Teitelbaum is a senior at Stony Brook. During the school year, he works part-time in New York City as an ambulance corpsman.

At 6 PM on March 5, he and his partner responded to a call at East 16 Street and Union Square. When they arrived, they found a young woman who had been robbed and badly beaten. She said her assailants were four men.

Teitelbaum and his partner tended to her wounds and proceeded to take her to Cabrini Hospital. On the way, he spotted four men standing by a white Mercedes with its trunk open. The woman identified them as the muggers. Teitelbaum radioed police for assistance. Then they waited, watching the men. The four soon got suspicious and ran off; the ambulance gave chase, relaying their positions to police. It became apparent that the men would try to flee into Union Square Park, so Teitelbaum drove the ambulance up onto the sidewalk, blocking their path. Jumping from the ambulance, the two corpsmen apprehended the muggers just as police arrived.

Teitelbaum and his partner were awarded the Police Department Civilian Commendation Bar and Certificate of Commendation by Police Commissioner Robert McGuire at a ceremony given at police headquarters in Manhattan September 19.

The 23-year-old English major is not a newcomer to dangerous situations. He has helped rescue children from a burning building and was involved with a case where hostages were taken.

Isn't this a tough job for a college student? "You earn your money," Teitelbaum said.

Dorms Flooded

By Tom Chappell,

Water was shut off in O'Neil and Irving Colleges for six hours yesterday afternoon as Physical Plant maintenance workers repaired a backed-up sewer drain.

Areas in both colleges were submerged in as much as two inches of water at one point during the afternoon according to Mike Hogardy, an engineer at the Physical Plant. "A lot of students got their rooms destroyed," Hogardy said.

Water was shut off at noon when Physical Plant officials arrived on the scene, and attempted to find the source of the problem. "It took us a while to locate the backup," Hogardy said. Water service was not restored until about 6 PM.

In the meantime residents were left to deal with overflowing sinks and toilets according to Irving A-1 resident Gary Rabinowitz. "It was a mess," he added. "I guess you have to expect this sort of thing at a large university," Rabinowitz said, "But not to inform us is irresponsible. This is just one more thing that adds to Stony Brook's reputation for a lack of communication with students."

While it is University policy to warn residents of planned water outages Hogardy said that no prior warning could be given in this instance because it was an emergency situation.

Missing Student Found

By Nancy J. Hyman

One of two Stony Brook students who were reported missing last week has been found, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Steven Kraseski, who was reported missing as of last Tuesday, returned home Friday morning. His mother informed campus security that he had returned, said Officer Stephen Fleming.

Security and the Suffolk County Police Department are still searching for Joseph Stumpf who was reported missing last week. He was last seen Monday, September 15, apparently on his way to Stony Brook. Stumpf is described as being about five feet, eight inches with brown hair and brown eyes. His car, which he left his home in Sayville in, is a 1971 blue AMC station wagon with the license plate 963-UNQ.

Anyone with information regarding Stumpf's whereabouts is asked to call the Department of Public Safety at 246-3333. All calls will be kept confidential.

Antenna System Proposed

By Kathy Fogel

Students who are illegally installing television antennas on campus may find that they will not have to do this anymore because of a proposed master cable system on campus.

In an attempt to get better television reception, students install their own private system of antennas, not realizing that this is dangerous, as well as illegal, according to George Marshall, Director of the Department of Environmental Health and Safety.

"Roof antennas should be grounded for lightning, but they're not," Marshall said. "Students can also run the risk of being injured." The antennas are also a fire hazard, and can cause damage to the roof, he said.

When asked about this problem, Don Marx, Director of Communication and Engineering, said, "I can sympathize with these students because TV is an important aspect of their lives, but we cannot encourage the installation of these private antennas." Marx has proposed a plan of the master cable system, which is already being installed in the University Hospital, where the head end antenna will be, and in Stage XVI. The installation of the master cable system will not only provide better reception on television sets, but also the possibility of cable channels, and programming originating from the Education-Communication Center (ECC). Programming from the ECC would originate directly from the campus, and will provide educational, as well as entertaining programs.

Due to economic problems in the State Education Department, Albany has refused to grant additional funds so that the system can be installed in the dorms. Specifications have been drawn up, successful surveys have been taken in the dorms, and a rehabilitation program to acquire the funds has been set up through the Offices of Facilities Programming.

If the master cable system is installed, private antenna systems will have to be removed. The new system is expected to provide better reception, be less dangerous, and provide the possibility of closed-circuit television. "Everything has been drawn-up and approved," said Marx. "The only drawback....is money."

Hot Water in G&H To Be Made More Accessible

By Laura Craven

Construction began last week on the long-awaited plans to improve the efficiency of the hot water distribution system at Stony Brook.

The installation of a new "loop," which was designed a year ago, in the existing pipeline of the high temperature hot water system, will be built underground from the power plant through the athletic fields to G and H Quads to enable more efficient service of heat and hot water.

"There will be no benefit felt this winter," said Kevin Jones, Director of the Physical Plant. The underground loop will be implanted prior to Christmas and will require a three- to four-day shut-down. The pipeline, however, will not actually be connected until May, and will require a one-week shut down which will begin at 12 AM after Commencement.

According to Jones, the new loop, which Stony Brook has been trying to get approved for about eight years, will give much more reliability to the service of G and H Quads, which are at the extreme end of the two existing loops. He also said that the outages that have plagued those quads in the last three to four years could possibly have been prevented had they gotten this new loop then.

"Believe me, it's been as frustrating to us [heat and hot water outages], as it has been to G and H Quads," Jones said, "everytime we sneezed, G and H got pneumonia."

The University is now serviced by two pipelines, one which services the Academic section and both Kelly and Tabler Quads, and the other, the southern route, services the heart of campus, the Fine Arts Center, and then G and H Quads. According to Jones, the problem is that G and H Quads are at the extreme end of the two lines and, if a problem arises and one line has to be shut down, the entire campus is fed through the other line and there is not sufficient water flow. Then, when service is returned to normal, G and H Quads follow the rest of the University by four to six hours.

Three Independent Lines

The addition of the new run will give the University three independent pipelines and, according to Jones, increase the reliability tremendously. "Once connected," he said, "all three will be kept on all the time to equalize the pressure throughout the system and will stabilize operations significantly."

EROS: Reaching Out

By Christine Castaldi

For the past ten years, Eros has been helping the students on the Stony Brook campus. Eros is a peer professional counseling service on campus with the express purpose to answer any questions about sex, pregnancy, or just a place to come in and talk. Eros' main function is to provide information on birth control, sex, and abortion. Both men and women students are welcome to this free service.

Eros also deals with health care, venereal diseases (VD), sexual relationships, and communication. The service speaks with men, women and couples. The Eros staff works in conjunction with the gynecology clinic in the infirmary, and the counselling department. According to Eros' Coordinator, Jennifer Lynch, the entire staff must go through extensive training before being allowed to counsel. The staff is also involved in continuing education — there are seminars, work shops, and discussion groups held every few weeks in order to see any progress made on any pending issues.

Even though the membership to join for a counselor is voluntary, each member must make a two year commitment of approximately five hours per week, said Lynch. According to Eros statistics, the pregnancies on campus from June 19, 1979 to May 1, 1980 were approximately 200. According to the National Statistics, the pregnancy tests that were done in the infirmary, prove that reported pregnancies on college campuses are about 30 percent of the actual pregnancies which occur. This means that the actual amount of pregnancies on campus could be around three times as much than stated above.

400-500 Interactions

Eros handles approximately 400 to 500 interactions (people either calling or coming into the office) per semester — 80 percent are female. Eros also gives 20 to 25 dorm lectures per semester. According to Lynch, "Eros has an Outreach Program whereby we try to educate and inform the campus community through various programming and activities." "These activities include the dorm lecture program, Literature Information Tables in the Student Union, birth control classes held in the Infirmary, participation in the group shop program through the counselling department and organizing and running a sexual awareness workshop for new student orientation."

According to Lynch, "Eros also visits abortion clinics and local gynecologists to make sure they meet our standards before we refer to them."

Handles Complaints

Eros represents students by dealing with complaints from students who have had problems with Infirmary health care by bringing the complaints to the attention of the infirmary administration and discussing possible solutions to problems. In addition, Eros handles complaints about clinics and physicians.

According to Lynch, "we are always learning down at Eros." "I think Eros has gained the respect of the campus community as well as the campus administration."

In the future, Eros is going to try and have more literature published and present the information to the in-coming students at student orientation time. Eros is located in Room 119 in the Campus Infirmary. Their number is 246-LOVE.

Hospital Surgical Unit Boasts Technology

By Lisa Castignoli

The Intensive Surgical Care Unit (ISCU), located on the 18th level of the newly-opened University Hospital, is serviced by some of the most sophisticated and highly technical equipment.

Each suite has a closed-circuit television set which monitors each patient's actions that is then relayed to the Community Center, known in other hospitals as the nurse's station. According to Hospital spokesman Jim Rhatigan, a Cathro Ray Tube (CRT), which is used as a unit-managing system for patient care, is located at the three community centers on each level. This system is operated by a technician, said Rhatigan, thereby relieving the nursing staff from time-consuming paperwork and allowing them more time for nursing. The Westinghouse wall in each suite is designed to house any additional equipment that may be needed simply by removing a panel from the wall.

Another feature of the hospital which allows for speedy service to patient's is the concept of "hospital-in-the-round." The towers of the hospital are designed so that the three community centers of each floor comprise the nucleus of the operation with the 30 rooms forming the outer circle. This circular construction makes it easier to see the patients from the community center. It is also less time-consuming for the staff to pass through the core than to walk around the outer

BUSINESS DIGEST

Compiled by David Durst

The Dow Jones Industrial average jumped 10.83 points, to a new 1980 year high of 974.57 last Monday and it was all downhill from there. The rise in the discount and prime rates sent the market into a tumble Friday that analysts say could be the beginning of a major correction.

The Dow closed at 940.10, down 23.64 on the week. Transports fell 8.99 to 337.53. Stocks that had made big gains in recent weeks were hit hardest. ATT closed down 2 5/8 to 51 7/8; Bristol Myers lost 4/4 to end at 46; Datapoint dipped 4 1/8 to close at 82 3/8; and IBM lost 2 3/8 to finish the week at 64 5/8 after being as high as 69.

Gold and silver also sank below their highs by the end of the week. Gold closed at 669.50 per ounce after being up to 730 earlier, and silver gave up 3.20 from its high of 25.00 to close at 21.80. The appearance of no new developments on the Iran-Iraq scene was given as the reason for the drop in precious metal prices.

Oil Leak

Company Official later confirmed that "between 500 and 800 gallons" had leaked out.

Marine Pollution Control, a private firm, responded to the accident and was contracted on the spot by Vantage Oil Company to assist the fire companies in cleaning up the spill. "Vantage Oil will be held responsible for the contents [of the tank truck]," said Marotta. "They [Vantage] can also be responsible for the cost of the chemical foam and any environmental damage," as determined by the Environmental Protection Agency." Marotta said that 400 gallons of chemical foam was used to cover the spill.

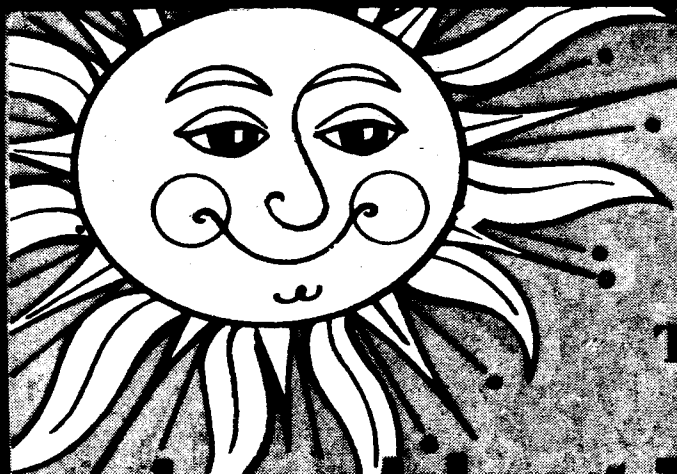

Road blocks were set up to prevent vehicles from hampering the firefighters' efforts, and in case of explosion from the spilled fuel.

Positive Change

The recent decision to implement new facilities for getting hot water to G and H Quads is a welcome sign, especially in light of problems G and H Quad residents have suffered over the past few years.

We feel that those responsible for bringing about this change should be commended. There have been many times in the past when poor heating and lack of hot water in G and H Quads was blameable on administrative indifference or callousness, but we feel that the administration has made a good move in bringing about this much-needed change.

The creation of a new system that will channel hot water directly to G and H Quads, instead of having them on the end of a long sewer line, where, frequently, there would not be enough hot water left, is a good indication that the Administration is willing to take appropriate steps to correct difficulties like this.

Student Democracy

Petitioning for positions in Polity, the student government, ends today at 5 PM. We would hope that, unlike past years, student apathy is not at such heights so as to make the meaning of such elections a farce.

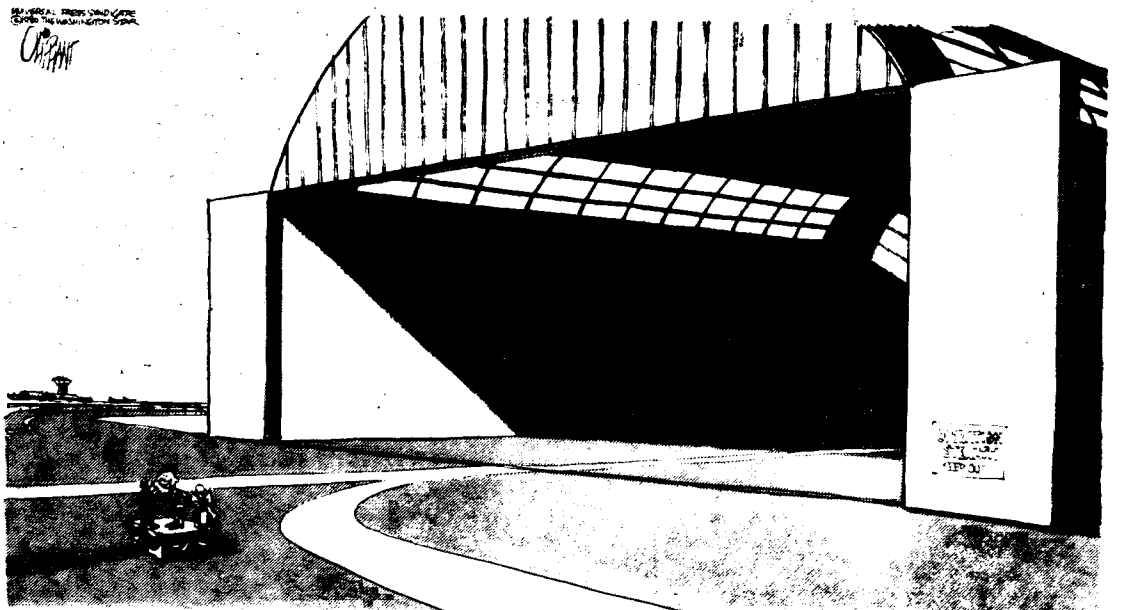

The democratic process is based on citizens freely choosing their representatives. But this system will not work if those citizens refuse to exercise this right to choose their leaders. Moreover, when too few candidates vie for an elected office, the meaning of a democratic election is also lost.

On this, the last day for petitioning for elected office, we would like to see as many people as possible get involved and run for office, for, that way, the true meaning of democracy will come through.

In the event of a blue code emergency, where a patient's heart stops, the blue code button of the Westinghouse wall is activated. According to Rhatigan, the resuscitation crew must work rapidly since the brain can only be without oxygen for four to six minutes before it suffers damage. The resuscitation cart is wheeled through one of the community centers to the patient's bedside. Once inside the suite, the red button on the Westinghouse wall is pushed and the lapse clock over the patient's bed is activated. The crew then works to revive the victim before excessive brain damage can occur.

In the case of a power outage, said Rhatigan, or a breakdown of one of the three diesel generators, an emergency generator automatically turns on within three to four minutes of the outage. However, no life-support systems will ever be interrupted since they will be connected to a battery-operated bridge.

The hospital is concerned with the patient's physical well-being as well as his psychological attitude. The glass towers are constructed to permit as much sunshine and airiness as possible. From every room there is a breathtaking panoramic view which allows the patient to see the waters of Long Island Sound or rolling hills of green trees. This atmosphere is said to be beneficial to the patient's emotional state and aids in "complete" recovery. The decor of the hospital rooms are designed to add an air of tranquility to the hospital thus making the patient feel more comfortable in his temporary surroundings.

The patients also have the added security of knowing that there will be an on-call resident living in his own suite on the same level. He can be reached at any hour, should it be deemed necessary. In addition, there will also be two specially equipped vans available for inter-hospital transferral for the critically ill patients.

Sophomore Mike Barrett argued that nuclear power plants were unsafe. "These things aren't put together right," he said. "For 30 years, they said they'd know what to do with nuclear waste, and they still don't know."

One member of the movement, who joined the students on their bus to Shoreham and on the march to the beach was a 60ish woman whose age set her aside from her companions, but her beliefs and fervor did not.

Jean Beckwich, the president of Conservation United for Long Island, a 1,200-member non-student group based in Setauket, vowed that she and other members of her group would oppose nuclear power just as they have done for the past four years. "We're working for a world nuclear moratorium," she said.

"We don't have many meetings," Beckwich said of her group's structure, "we just keep working." She then turned to her younger comrades, and said, "I think you kids are doing a great job."

end Terry Russell in the back corner of the endzone. Gus Baco's second extra point conversion gave the Patriots a 14-0 lead and two touchdowns within 90 seconds of each other.

At the end of the quarter, Stony Brook held a two touchdown lead and the defense had given up only 26 yards. The Patriots seemed set on not letting their record fall to 0-2.

"Before the game the Offensive Line Captain Stu Sharoff got up and told us that this was the turning point in the season," admitted Nicholas. He just said we couldn't afford to lose our first two games and we had to get on the winning track right now. No one was down after last week's game, in fact we were more psyched for this game."

It wasn't until the second quarter that Rutgers-Newark produced their best offensive series. They didn't pick up a first down, but they didn't fumble and they did manage to get their punt off. Surprising everyone, McTigue decided to put the ball in the air on first down. Jim Friscia took a perfect ball on the twenty yard line and ran it in from there.

"Our offense was effective today," stated Sharoff. "The defense gave us excellent field position. It was a big win; last weeks game gave us a little extra push. If we win the rest of our games we can get another shot at Fairfield in the playoffs."

McTigue added a four yard touchdown run in the third quarter and Baco added a 10 yard field goal to close out the scoring for the Patriots. When Barreto was done explaining his snowball theory he gave his opinion on playing Fairfield again: "The sooner the better. Last weeks loss might have been a blessing in disguise, if we would have won we might have gotten cocky. We know what we can do, we just have to prove it to everyone else."

Women Pats Play 3 Away

Farrell won 6-0, 6-0, and the number 4 seeded player, Lisa Roth took her game 6-2, 6-1. Farrell and Merlino both brought back "bagels" (love matches) from their games.

Capturing the title in the fifth singles match was Roni Epstein who won 6-2, 6-2. Sixth seeded player Cathy Wong took her match at 6-2, 6-0.

The only trouble that set in was with the number one seeded player Mary Ann Ryan who was defeated by a New England top ranked player in a heatedly contested battle, ending with a score of 6-1, 6-1. However, Ryan resumed her play as she contended, with Farrell, to win the number one doubles slot with a score of 6-3, 6-3.

The rest of the doubles was easily won as Merlino and Roth achieved an 8-0 win and Linda Mahoney and Janet Wallach attained a score of 6-3, 6-0.

The Patriots gained victory in a sweeping win September 26 against New Paltz with a score of 6-1. This time second seeded player Ryan defeated her opponent 5-7, 6-2, 6-4. Skillful playing was again exhibited by Farrell who won 6-0, 6-2, Roth who won 6-0, 6-0 and Roni Epstein 0-6, 6-2, 6-2. The only singles loss was in the number one slot, where Merlino played in a close match, eventually losing 6-3, 7-6.

The doubles proved to be no problem where Ryan and Farrell were concerned. They played a nine game pro-set, both teams turning in identical wins at 9-5.

The Patriots were not able to keep up with their winning streak in West Point. They were defeated September 27 by a score of 8-1.

The only players who managed to capture a win there were the number one seeded doubles team of Ryan and Farrell who brought in a win at 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Coach Fahner was very happy with the three day trip. He feels that the matches as a whole proved to be very successful and most promising. "The team," he says, "has to work deeper on their second serves; however, they played with much more concentration and with more maturity."

On October 1, the team will continue their competition with a home match against Suffolk Community College.

Men's Classic

"Those who played tennis over the summer are doing well," said Patriots Coach Les Thompson. "The key to life in anything is to practice, to improve. In tennis one has to play in winter and spring to improve." The other teams have regular fall and spring seasons with summer programs.

The Great Dane Tennis Classic basically ends the season as far as competition goes, but, if the weather holds, the team will continue to practice. The team had many tryouts during the fall, but there are still places available on the team. Anyone who is interested in trying out should contact Thompson, whose office is in room 107 in the gym.

Soccer Undefeated

By Frank J. Estrada
The Stony Brook Patriots Soccer Team remains undefeated after plowing through the C. W. Post Pioneers Saturday, 3-2. The Patriots' record is now 4-0.

The dismal Pioneers were no match for the determined Patriots. Stony Brook just outplayed, outclassed, and completely dominated the game from beginning to end. "They were nothing", remarked Patriot goalkeeper Phil Lesko. "They weren't up to our caliber; it should have been 6-0, not 3-2." Regardless of Stony Brook's fine performance, C. W. Post still managed to do something that Manhattanville, Queens, and Dowling could not do. The Pioneers scored against the Patriots.

The scoring started seven minutes into the game when Patriot forward Tim Cusack tallied his third goal in four games. After receiving a head pass from forward Jeff Schmidt, Cusack footed the ball in, past Pioneer goalie Rich Fuschetti. C. W. Post came back about half an hour later to tie the game and end the Patriots' shut-out streak. On a pass from Pioneer fullback Gerard Reilly, forward Steve Burton took a point blank shot on net, beating a helpless Lesko. The half ended 1-1.

Stony Brook's score went up again just 3:15 into the second half. A usually low-profiled midfielder, Caesar Campbell sparked when he performed a solo number. From nearly midfield, he dribbled the ball skillfully past several pioneers then cut a sharp, well-placed shot from 16 yards out into the lower right corner of the net.

Caesar came back 17 minutes later to assist in the Pat's third goal. He slipped a pass over to midfielder Danny Nieves who displayed some fancy footwork as he razzle-dazzled his way through a crowd of opponents. Nieves took a left-footed shot that landed in the familiar lower right corner of the net. On an accidental handball by Nieves in the penalty area, C. W. Post was awarded a penalty kick with 13 minutes left in the game. Pioneer forward Hector Juarez took the kick with 13 minutes left in the game, and beat Lesko to the final goal of the day.

"I think the midfield controlled the game today" said Patriots' Coach Chris Tyson.

"Consistent Soccer"
"Eventhough we gave up two goals, we're playing more consistent soccer; we're improving every game."

The Patriots' next game will be at Hofstra Wednesday. "We beat them last year, so they'll be ready for us," noted Coach Tyson.

Pats Top Post

By Lenn Roberts

There are at least three different versions of this year's Stony Brook Football Club.

Version I was told by head coach Fred Kemp, "We have a better balanced attack than in the past few years."

Version II was told by defensive captain Steve Barreto, "We're like a snowball coming down Mt. Everest. We're getting bigger and stronger."

Version III was told by cornerback Tom Brusca, "We're like a freight train picking up steam. We're rolling and we're going to keep rolling until we meet Fairfield in the playoffs and then we're going to explode."

After Saturday's 31-0 Patriot destruction of Rutgers-Newark College, one has to wonder if the explosion has not already come. The victory was the most lopsided score in five years of Stony Brook football and it would have been a lot worse if Coach Kemp had not cleared most of his bench for the fourth quarter.

It was a big turn around from last week's painful 15-14 loss in the final thirty seconds to Fairfield College, the number one ranked team in Club Football. "We played a real good game against them [Fairfield] especially when you remember it was the first game of the season," said quarterback Jim McTigue. "The game showed us what we were capable of doing. We knew we had to come out strong this week."

On Rutgers-Newark first series, three plays netted minus two yards and it was time for the New Jersey team to punt. It was also time for tackle Anthony Cianci and defensive end Ed Hctor to block that punt and have Barreto recover it on the 13 yard line. It took McTigue just two carries to put the Patriots in front; the explosion had started.

Once again the Barreto led defense gave the offense excellent field position when the All-league linebacker forced a fumble and Charlie Nicholas jumped on it at the Rutgers-Newark ten yard line. This time it took McTigue three plays before he found tight

Women's Tennis

By Ronna Gordon,

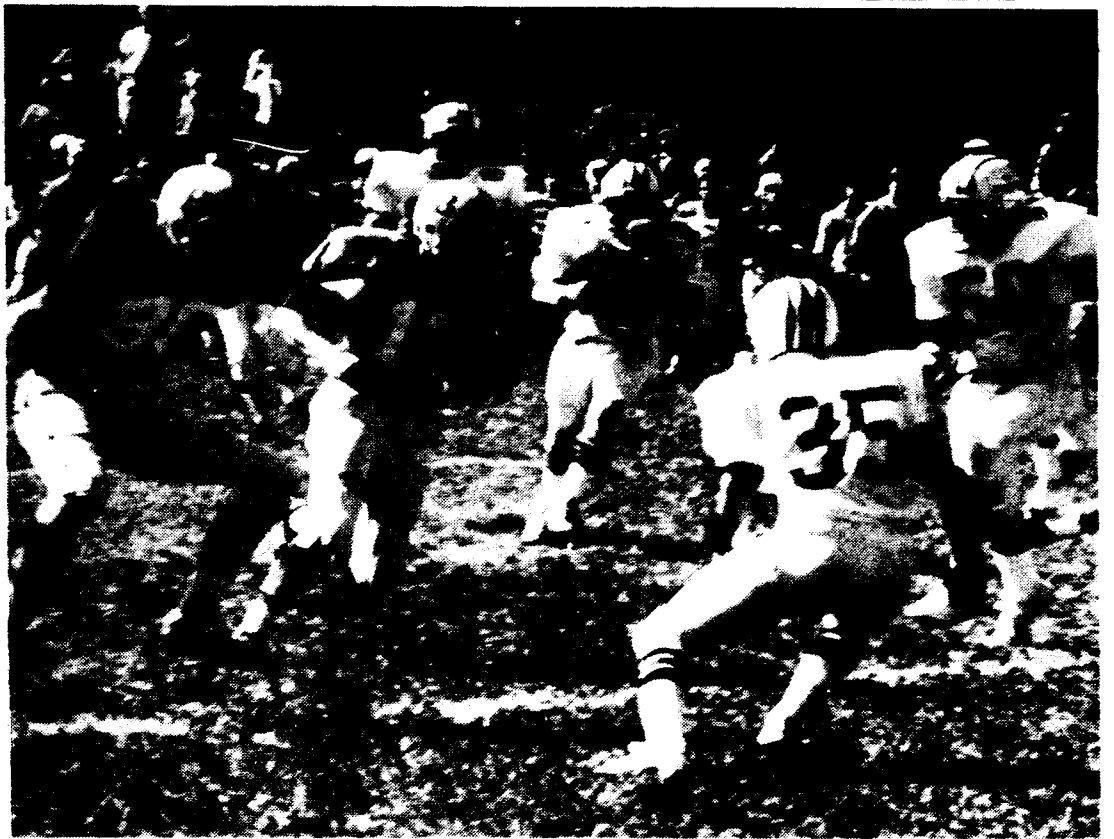

Led by Coach Thomas Fahner, the Stony Brook women's tennis team captured two out of three matches in a recent road trip to Concordia, New Paltz and West Point, thus far obtaining a season record of 2-2. Sweeping Concordia and New Paltz with an easy victory of 8-1, 6-1, they were defeated 8-1 by West Point in a highly competitive battle.

In the match against Concordia September 25, the Patriots were triumphant as they won seven of the eight games played.

Highlighted in extremely proficient playing was second seeded player Diane Merlino who won 6-1, 6-0. The number three seeded player Candice

Men's Tennis Classic

By Christine Foley

Stony Brook's men's tennis team recently competed in the Great Dane Tennis Classic at Albany, a tournament of sixteen challenges. Being a young team experience-wise they did well, although the final results will not be known until next week.

The Classic consisted of teams from Albany, the Metropolitan area, Iona and Concordia (last years co-champs), and the best teams in the East. In order of seeding, the team's members are: John Buyko, Bruce Sauer (captain), Steve Sacks, Cliff Betrosky, Dennis Marcus and Gary Katz.

In the singles, Cliff Betrosky played a senior from Cortland and lost 5-7, 4-6. Gary Katz played well, but lost his singles. John Buyko won his singles match easily, 6-2, 6-3. He drew for his second match the best player in the East, Borgess, Concordia's defending single's champ and champion of the Metropolitan area. Buyko lost 6-0, 6-0, but played well before a large crowd.

In doubles, Bruce Sauer and Steve Sacks won their first match against Union College, then lost to Renssler Polytechnic Institute. Second seeded doubles, John Buyko and Dennis Marcus won their first match against Sienna and lost the second to Renssler Polytechnic Institute.

This fall the team also competed in the developmental tournament of nine colleges at West Point. Stony Brook's team had the disadvantage of an informal fall season and some team members not being able to practice over the summer.
