

Stony Brook May Join SASU

By Dolores Girani

Although negotiations are still in progress, it is predicted that Stony Brook will soon become a member of the Student Association of the State University of New York (SASU). According to Jim Stein, president of the Albany-based organization, if nothing goes wrong, Stony Brook should be a member of the organization within the next few months.

SASU is a lobbying organization made up of students from most of the state and city universities. In the past, SASU has been successful in continuing financial aid for New York State students maintaining a mandatory activity fee and allowing students to sit on the Faculty Student Association's (FSA) Board of Directors. Most recently, SASU has won the right for some students to vote in the town in which they attend school. In 1979, SASU fought a losing battle against the State University tuition increase, but is presently challenging the room rent increase that is proposed for next year. In addition, it is also trying to eliminate tripling in the dormitories.

In April of 1975, Stony Brook decided to join the organization. After two weeks, Stony Brook retracted its decision for membership and dropped out of the organization because of political differences. Stony Brook had issued SASU a check in the amount of $7,000 for joining but cancelled the payment upon withdrawing from the organization. SASU never returned the money and cashed the check in March of 1979, three years after cancellation. According to Polity President Rich Zuckerman, before Stony Brook will join the organization again, SASU must return the $7,000 plus interest.

"If Stony Brook joins, both SASU and Stony Brook will become more powerful," said Stein. "Stony Brook is a big school, with a lot of students. SASU would be more effective if Stony Brook was a member." Stony Brook is one of the few state schools which is not a member of the organization.

"SASU looks terrible without Stony Brook," said Zuckerman, adding that "if SASU is still going to go through the rhetoric about the fact that we owe them money to join, then the hell with them." Zuckerman also says that if Stony Brook does join the organization it would be a very big victory for the school and a positive step forward.

Porno Movie's Fate Is Still Undecided

By Benjamin Berry

The pornographic movie Debbie Does Dallas will not be shown in Toscanini College this weekend as had been originally planned.

This decision was reached, according to Mark Glasse, a Managerial Assistant (MA) in the building, after he had discussed the possible legal ramifications with the Suffolk County District Attorney's Office if the movie were to be shown.

Fred Finter, a senior investigator with the District Attorney's office, said his office became involved after it had received complaints.

"The public showing of the movie might violate an obscenity statute," said Glasse. "The movie will not be shown this weekend because of what the District Attorney's Office said. Right now we're kind of in limbo."

Misdemeanor

If the movie were to be shown, and a judge were to determine that it violated the obscenity clause of the state's penal law (a Class A Misdemeanor) a search warrant could be issued and the film and the equipment used to show it could be confiscated. In addition, the individuals responsible could be arrested.

In determining whether or not something is obscene, a judge would take into consideration the standards of the community. Who exactly comprises the community in this case—whether it entails only Toscanini College, or the entire University, or the village of Stony Brook—remains unclear.

"It is somewhat of an infringement of our rights," said Glasse. "The college was in favor of it; there was no strong or vehement opposition."

Last week, the college had conducted a poll which revealed that 70 to 75 percent of the residents were in favor of the movie's showing, 14 percent against and 10 to 15 percent indifferent.

"Ron Siegel [Assistant Vice President and the University's advisor on legal affairs] said he wouldn't sign off on a facilities use form and neither will I," said Elizabeth Wadsworth, vice president for Student Affairs, who recently ruled that the same movie could not be shown in Irving College. "I would be doing something illegal."

The New York Civil Liberties Union, a division of the American Civil Liberties Union, is currently investigating whether prohibiting the movie's showing is a violation of the first amendment.

G. Gordon Liddy To Speak Monday Despite Conflict

G. Gordon Liddy, the former Watergate burglar, will speak in Lecture Hall 100 on Monday — one of a series of lectures the former aide to Richard Nixon has been delivering to college campuses across the country.

Liddy, who was sentenced to 20 years imprisonment following his conviction in the Watergate scandal, is scheduled to speak on the government's effect on the media.

Liddy was released in September of 1977 after serving four and a half years. His sentence was reduced by President Jimmy Carter. Since that time, he has authored two books, a novel entitled Out of Control and his recently released autobiography, Will. Prior to his conviction, Liddy had joined the committee to re-elect the President as counsel in 1972 after working for the FBI, and the Treasury Department.

Liddy's appearance at Stony Brook has sparked some protest.

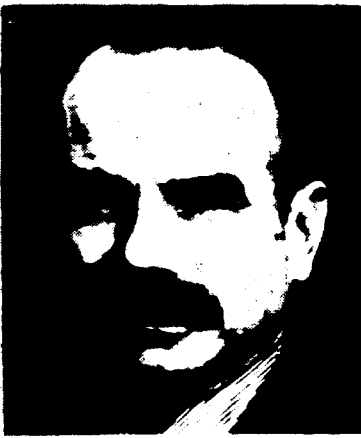

On November 17, the Polity Senate voted against a proposal to cancel Liddy's engagement. The proposal had been introduced by Commuter Senator Mike Kornfeld. "Liddy is profiteering as a result of the high crimes he committed," said Kornfeld. "My grudge is not the idea of him speaking; I'm against him getting paid for it."

However, Student Activities Board (SAB) Speakers Chairman Lois Solomn maintained otherwise. "I'm supposed to book interesting educational speakers," Solomn said. "You can't get involved with moral judgements in bookings."

Solomn said that Liddy is being paid $3,000 to speak here because he is an author, and that the topic of his presentation will not be related to Watergate.

Tickets for Liddy's lecture, which were on sale for 50 cents, are sold out.

THE STONY BROOK VOLUNTEER AMBULANCE CORPS is being sued for $250,000.

$250,000 Lawsuit Pending Against Ambulance Corps

A former Stony Brook student is bringing suit against the Stony Brook Volunteer Ambulance Corps for an accident which occurred in the summer of 1979.

James Gleason, who graduated from the University in 1979 with a degree in Biology, has charged that he sustained personal injuries when the ambulance hit him while he was riding his bicycle.

According to Ambulance Corps President Ronnie Mason, the accident occurred during "driver training."

"The bicycle was coming out of North P-Lot and the ambulance was proceeding along Loop Road in the direction of Kelly," said Mason.

The suit, which Mason said is asking for $250,000 in damages, was initiated last August. Since the Corps is incorporated, neither the University nor Polity would be liable if the corps was found negligent. The Corps is covered by insurance.

Peter Contino, one of Gleason's Attorneys, said that the case has not yet been placed on the trial calendar. "The case won't occur until the next six months," he said.

Contino said that Gleason had sustained "genuine injuries." "I believe he had fractures and head injuries. The injuries are real; he was struck. This case is not a sham," said Contino.

"To drive an ambulance, you have to undergo certain tests," said Mason. "The person who was driving was being trained by the Corps Executive Vice President for Safety." The Corps' attorney was unavailable for comment. —Berry

ABSCAM Trial Continues

New York — The jury in the ABSCAM trial of congressmen John Murphy and Frank Thompson saw three more videotapes yesterday — including one in which Murphy denies he ever took any money from undercover FBI men.

The FBI Agents posed as representatives of wealthy Arabs looking for official favors and offering money in return. Murphy, of Staten Island, and Thompson, of Trenton, New Jersey, are accused of sharing in $100,000 in bribes in return for promising to help the Arabs with immigration problems.

The prosecution says Murphy was getting suspicious by the time he met with the undercover agents last January 10 at a Washington Townhouse.

In the tape of that meeting, Murphy told agent Anthony Amoroso that "No public official should be involved" in "taking a consideration for something that he is supposed to do or use his office to do."

Amoroso replied, "You're being coy with me, I know." Then, referring to the first time he met Murphy, Amoroso said: "I was reluctant to give you the money because you were very..."

At that point, Murphy interrupted, saying: "You didn't. You didn't give me any money... I never received any money from anyone..."

Murphy claims this tape clears him of the bribery-conspiracy charges he faces in the trial in the trial in federal court in Brooklyn.

Another tape played yesterday showed a meeting involving Congressman John Murtha of Pennsylvania. He is named as an unindicted co-conspirator in the case, and is expected to testify later in the trial.

Murtha was shown turning down a $50,000 bribe, but saying "It might be that I would change my mind some day."

Murtha also said of Murphy and Thompson: "Let me make it very clear. The other two guys do expect to, to be taken care of."

The third tape shown by the prosecution yesterday was of a meeting last February second at a hotel near Kennedy Airport in New York among Amoroso, FBI Informant Mel Weinberg and Attorney Howard Criden, who was indicted along with Murphy and Thompson but will be tried separately.

At that meeting, Amoroso went over with Criden the various deals in which the prosecution says Criden acted as a middle man for bribes to congressmen.

At the climax of the meeting, Amoroso told Criden he was an FBI Agent, and showed him his badge.

International

Iran — A top Iranian Official was quoted yesterday as saying parliament will decide whether to put the American Hostages on trial if the US fails to meet Tehran's conditions for their release. A Tehran newspaper says Ayatollah Behesh'i — Leader of Parliament's Hardliners — did not direct comment of the US reply to those conditions at his news conference on Wednesday.

Spain — Spanish officials say a US Air Force Phantom Jet crashed in a field today near Casada, killing the pilot and seriously injuring the co-pilot. They say the jet was on a practice flight. US Air Force officials say the plane was based in West Germany. They're withholding names until the families are notified.

National

Washington — The Senate voted yesterday by a narrow margin to prohibit the Justice Department from seeking to require busing. The vote was 42-to-38.

The anti-busing amendment was added to a measure appropriating funding for the Justice Department and other federal agencies.

The amendment essentially supports the intent of a house rider, previously approved by the Senate. The rider would bar the Justice Department from spending money to require sending healthy children to any school but the one nearest their home.

The amendment approved yesterday in the Senate was sponsored by North Carolina Republican Senator Jesse Helms. The push for approval was led by conservative Republicans.

Republican Senator Lowell Weicker of Connecticut led the unsuccessful effort to keep busing alive as a remedy for racial imbalance in the public schools. Weicker argued it would be unconstitutional to bar government lawyers from going to court to impose mandatory busing if there is no other alternative to achieve racial balance.

Helms and South Carolina Republican Senator Strom Thurmond both said last week's landslide victory by Ronald Reagan is a sign that Americans oppose forced busing for racial balance.

State and Local

New York — Despite a futile air sweep over 200,000 square miles over a six-day period, the Coast Guard says it will spend at least three more days looking for the freighter the Poet, which mysteriously vanished after sailing into oblivion with 34 crewmen aboard.

At a news conference yesterday, the man in charge of the search operation, Coast Guard Captain Milton Suzich, said the Coast Guard has decided to extend the search until Sunday.

He added that it then will be determined whether to continue the search or abandon it.

Suzich says the decision to extend the search came after requests by the crew's family and by Bronx Congressman Mario Biaggi.

But, Suzich says, "Our hopes get slimmer as the time passes... the fact that we haven't found anything yet gives us cause for concern."

It was explained that the search could be resumed if any clues as to the 552-foot ship's fate turn up later.

Suzich called the Poet's disappearance the only reported case of its kind since 1963 when the Sulphur Queen vanished in the South Atlantic with 39 crew members aboard. Life jackets from the ship were found afloat, but no trace of the vessel was ever reported.

With no trace found of the 12,000-ton Poet since she sailed from Philadelphia October 24, it was theorized she may have fallen victim to a severe storm with high winds that lashed the North Atlantic shortly after the Poet left with a cargo of grain for Port Said, Egypt.

Suzich explained, "She may have either been damaged very severely or stopped by the heavy seas. I don't know what happened to the ship and neither does anyone else."

However, one puzzling aspect of the Poet's disappearance was that she passed through heavily traveled sealanes, yet no other ship reported sighting her.

Belgium Students Visit Stony Brook Campus

By Ellen Lander

Their arrival to the United States in response to the invitation of the Stony Brook varsity Basketball Team marked a first for more than three quarters of the Belgium basketball players. The team arrived at Kennedy International Airport on Monday afternoon chaperoned by coach Jan Boutmans and his wife Magda after a seven hour plane ride.

They were picked up by Varsity Basketball Coach Dick Kendall and senior Scott Larit and escorted to Stage XVI where they will be staying for their 10 day trip.

According to Kendall, the idea to invite the Belgium team originated last spring. The suggestion arose from the "7-11 tours" and Boutmans was contacted accordingly. Kendall remarked that he would like to someday repay their visit, but, "it depends upon whether we raise the money."

Kendall, Paul Dudzick, acting men's athletic director and other members in the physical education department have extended a great amount of hospitality to the Belgium team which was deeply appreciated by the coach and the team. "Mr. Kendall and Mr. Dudzick took very good care of us. They fixed up everything for us," said Boutmans.

In addition to playing C. W. Post and Stony Brook, the team will be competing against Hofstra, Southampton, and New York Institute of Technology.

The Belgium basketball team composed of 14 men ranging in age from 18 to 21 seemed anxious and excited about being in America and equally enthusiastic about playing the Stony Brook basketball team.

The team members are all from the Catholic University of Leuven, Medical Center in Leuven, Belgium. However, their home towns are spread out over the 20,000 square miles of Belgium.

Each man is from a different department at the University ranging from Medicine to Engineering to Mathematics, and plays for that particular department.

According to Boutmans, the best players from each departmental team were chosen for this team. However, a few of the top players were unable to make the trip due to previous obligations.

The loss of what may have been their top players could have possibly been one of the reasons for the consecutive losses. The Belgians first lost to C. W. Post by 105-75 and then to Stony Brook last night by a score of 92-59 (see related story).

The Team and its chaperones have been kept quite busy and their itinerary does not ease up for a minute. Three trips into Manhattan are planned, with seeing a Knick basketball game being very high on the team member's priority list. The team will be present at tonight's Knick game at Madison Square Garden.

The team and Boutmans and his wife will be guests of Kendall and his family for breakfast tomorrow morning, and, guests of hospital chaplan Reverend Smith for Sunday dinner. Smith had studied at the same university where the players are from.

The team and their chaperones were given a tour of the university yesterday and will be shown around the University hospital next Tuesday.

Many of the comments from the players, (when they were said in English) reflected their observations on the cultural and social differences between the two countries.

CRIME ROUND-UP Student Arrested

A Stony Brook student was arrested on Tuesday after his voice was identified as the one who made a threatening phone call to an administrator.

The student, whose name was not released, allegedly left a threatening message on an administrator's telephone answering machine, whose name was also not released. The student's voice was identified by members of the campus community and sworn statements were given to that effect. Although it is not certain as to the actual date and time of the phone call, it is suspected to have been made on Nov. 4, Election Day.

The student was charged with Aggravated Harrassment, a Class A Misdemeanor.

A NEW CAMPUS MAP, recently installed as part of a campus improvement project, stands in front of the Graduate Chemistry Building.

New Campus Maps Orient Newcomers

By Liz Moussas

Newcomers to the University will have an easier time finding their way around campus due to the recent installation of nine plexiglass maps at key locations.

The maps, most of which are located near University bus stops and other areas of major pedestrian and vehicular circulation, are simplified colored layouts of the University. They orient the on-looker as to where he is so that locating other buildings is relatively easy.

The installation of the maps is part of an ongoing series of projects to improve the campus, according to Charlie Wagner, director of Facilities Planning, who thinks they are a better alternative to the already existing directories which simply list campus buildings with an assigned letter.

Kevin Jones, director of Physical Plant, expects that more of the $78 maps will be installed in the near future.

Also part of the project to improve the campus is the installation of new benches, especially in the area of the academic plaza that underwent construction in the spring of 1979. The benches will continue to be installed until about the third week in December, according to Wagner. More benches of different styles and materials will be constructed throughout the winter and will be installed in the spring.

HSC Classrooms Built

By Lisa Castignoli

Due to increased enrollment in the six Health Sciences schools, two classrooms have been erected outside the Health Sciences Library, on the second level of the Health Sciences Center.

John Vaulter, assistant to the vice president for the Health Sciences, explained that because of increased enrollment — the medical school alone has tripled the size of its incoming class since its inception in 1971 — there has been a need for additional classroom space. Some of the smaller rooms can no longer accommodate the larger classes.

Vaulter projects that, in the near future, the seminar rooms located on the second level which seat only 16 students will be replaced by larger rectangular rooms. The need for more classroom space also flows from the fact that a number of classes must constantly use different rooms on different days.

The student lockers that are now located inside one of the classrooms will be relocated inside the separate health science schools.

The classrooms will be in use probably sometime this month, as soon as the insulation is installed to lessen the sounds coming from the main corridor.

Stricter Towing Begins

Beginning on Monday, the Department of Public Safety will begin stricter traffic enforcement of illegally parked cars blocking access to emergency vehicles.

A warning notice placed on cars recently, said that "local fire departments require unencumbered roadways of 20 feet in width for free access of fire fighting equipment."

According to University Business Manager Paul Madonna, the stricter enforcement policy, which includes towing, is being implemented on the request of the Stony Brook and Setauket Fire Departments.

"We are responding to the legitimate requests of the fire departments," said Madonna. "They could not navigate their vehicles through Kelly, Stage XII and Tabler. We have a moral responsibility" to enforce these regulations.

Madonna said that notices have been sent to Residence Life and Quad staff informing them of the policy.

BUSINESS DIGEST

Compiled by David Durst

The Dow Jones Industrial average closed up 17.32 points yesterday at 982.25, a new 1980 year high. The average bounced around the 970 level for most of the day, trying to break through the barrier that proved to be its nemesis several times before.

At about 2:30 PM the Industrial average broke through the 970 barrier and quickly gained ground on heavy volume. Trading during the first hour yesterday was the heaviest that the NYSE has ever had, and the closing volume was 69.34 million shares.

There were 1,140 stocks up on the Big Board while 465 declined, and the average share of common stock rose 55 cents. The five most active stocks on the Big Board yesterday were:

- IBM 71 1/4 up 3/8.
- Boeing 40 up 1/2.
- Texaco 43 5/8 up 1 5/8.
- LTV Corp. 18 3/8 up 1.
- Canadian Pacific 38 1/4 down 1 1/4.

Analysts said that defense and energy related stocks led the advance in anticipation of Ronald Reagan's presidency. At this time, many analysts feel that defense related issues have a chance at becoming the stock market's next leader and I tend to agree. But investors should be cautious because although the stock market appears to be very strong here, it has run into trouble several times before and there is no guarantee that this will not happen again. For those investors that are convinced that this market move will continue, but want to be protected should they be wrong, stop-loss orders might be effective.

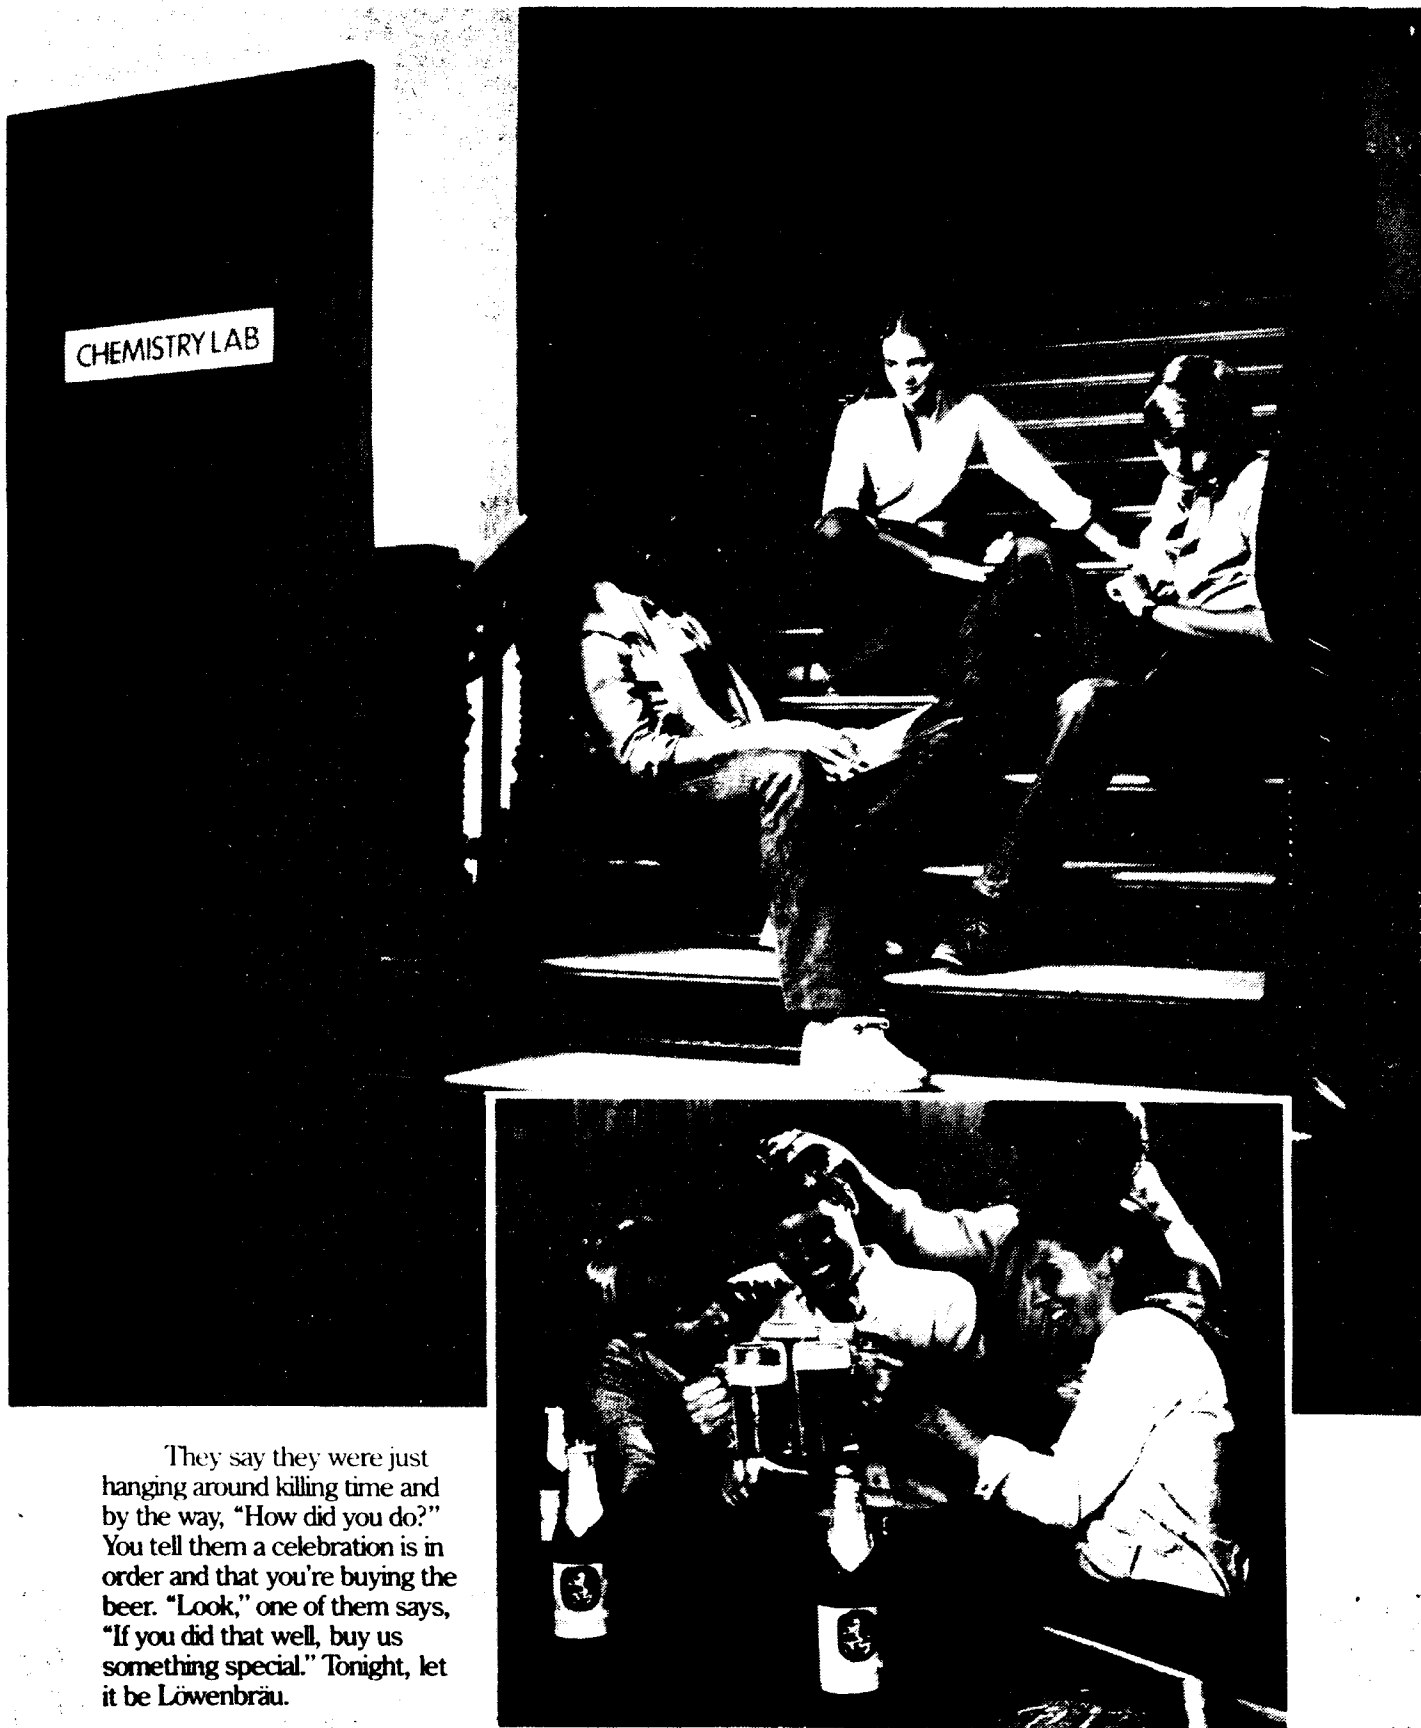

A stop-loss order is a standing order to sell any amount of stock when the price reaches that level. For example, if an investor had bought Boeing stock at yesterday's close of $40 and wanted to be protected from downside risk while at work or school, a stop-loss order placed at some price under $40 would automatically sell his stock out, if Boeing's price ever fell to that level.

In other financial news, United Airlines says it will join in a virtual doubling of fares on routes between California and New York, a move that appears to be ending the seven-month price war on those routes.

United said it will match fares announced by Eastern Airlines and American Airlines, which will raise the cost of the least expensive round trip ticket between New York and Los Angeles to $501 and the least expensive New York-San Francisco fare to $562, beginning January first.

The lowest such fare on both routes is now $268. It dropped as low as $198 this summer as Eastern's entry into the markets set off a price war. Both American and United Airlines stock rose yesterday on the NYSE. American closed up 5/8 at 9 3/4 and United finished up 1/2 at 18 3/4.

Check Cashing Lacking Money, Closes Early

By Christine Castaldi

The Faculty Student Association's (FSA) Check Cashing Service, has been shutting its windows early for the past few weeks creating problems for students because it is the only place on campus where this service is offered.

According to FSA's Controller Grace Gallo, "sometimes we are unable to remain open during the day because we run out of money." One of the reasons for this short supply of money is that many students employed on campus receive their paychecks at the same time and cash their checks all at once. "When this happens we do not have enough money to cash all the students' checks," said Gallo.

"Last week I went to FSA and they had a sign in front of their window saying that they were out of money," said student Melissa Lee. "If FSA claims to cash checks then they should anticipate the needs of the students and faculty. I feel that it is unfair to the students when they are in desperate need of money that they are unable to cash their checks at FSA," she added.

Not only is FSA running out of money but they are also losing it. "We never make enough money from the check cashing fees to cover our personnel expenses," said Gallo. "There is also a sufficient amount of bad checks received by FSA. Sometimes FSA can have approximately $6000 to $7000 outstanding in bad checks."

Bad checks not only add to FSA's expenses, but also increase the work load of the employees. Firstly, notices are sent out to the students who wrote the checks, and if no response is received, FSA used other techniques such as numerous phone calls, which costs money.

Students are now paying 25 cents to cash checks under $50, and 50 cents to cash checks over $50. The fee is primarily used to pay the salaries of two full-time and two part-time employees. These fees are relatively new, having gone into effect last year. The increase was brought about to alleviate the deficit of several thousand dollars which occurred between July 1 and February 29.

Larry Siegel, a member of the FSA Board of Directors, and Polity Treasurer said, "we are not planning to raise the check cashing fees, we don't want to do that. What we are trying to do is correct the problem of running out of money on busy days."

According to Siegel, "it might be possible for Polity to give FSA an overnight loan to alleviate the problem of running out of cash."

The check cashing service is located on the second floor of the Student Union Building. Operating hours are from 10 AM to 5 PM, Monday through Friday. However, checks over $50 will not be cashed after 3 PM.

Self-Governance

The recent controversy as to whether the X-rated movie Debbie Does Dallas should, or could, be shown at dormitories here has heightened to the point of being ridiculous.

Ridiculous because what was a question to be decided by residents of a building became one for the Administration to answer; ridiculous because what was a story for the campus newspaper became one overplayed by three national newspapers, two television stations and two radio stations; ridiculous because the Suffolk County District Attorney's office has entered the case on the grounds that the film is obscene.

This, the most recent action in the controversy, is perhaps the most absurd. Even those that disagreed with showing the film in Irving College last weekend argued that doing so against the wishes of a large number of residents was violative of their rights because it was shown in their home. The situation in Toscanini College, however, is different. Only 14 percent of the residents objected to it being shown there, yet it still becomes an issue the District Attorney's office feels warrants investigation.

The very definition of "obscene" the District Attorney's office uses to make a determination as to whether the film can be shown contradicts its involvement. What is "obscene" is determined by "local community standards." What is the community standard? It is obvious: about 70 to 75 percent of the residents in Toscanini favored showing the film, with another 10 to 15 percent indifferent. Or, and this remains a possibility, the DA's office will base community standards on the entire University, even though dormitories have traditionally governed themselves independently of others. Or, will the community standard be the one of the Three Village community, one which is obviously different from that of the University?

We would like to believe that outside authorities such as the DA's office would allow us to govern ourselves. We hope that even those opposed to showing the film would agree that since the majority of the residents have said what they want to do in their home, they should be allowed to do it.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Wednesday's Statesman that the results of a poll taken in Toscanini College about the showing of Debbie Does Dallas revealed 70 to 75 percent indifference among the college's residents. In fact the results revealed 70 to 75 percent in favor, 14 against and 10 to 15 percent indifferent.

Myopic View

To the Editor:

This is a reply to an editorial in last Friday's Statesman concerning the Administration's decision to ban the showing of the X-rated movie, Debbie Does Dallas.

It is the claim of your editorial board that the decision of the Administration, not to allow the movie to be screened, is "nothing less than a censorship of people's expression and a violation of their First Amendment right to free speech." This view is myopic and displays a lack of knowledge of the social situation in the halls.

While the law of the State of New York explicitly states that the hallways, lobby and lounges of a dormitory building are public areas, the law of decency, as dictated by the use of these areas, indicates that they are used to perform such necessary activities that fall into a category of things that should be private (i.e. going to the shower, cooking dinner, getting the mail). As far as I can govern my own affairs, I respect every residents right to privacy in their own building.

This brings us back to the porno flick. How would you like it if one day I came into your home, invited everybody in the neighborhood, and screened a movie which you considered highly offensive. This is exactly what is being done in Irving College. If you finished reading the U.S. Constitution you will notice that the Fourth Amendment protects individuals from such obnoxious acts. You may argue that this same right to privacy should allow the residents to screen the movie. This is true, but it does not extend as far to afford them to declare other people's homes an "open house" for the screening.

Furthermore, you state that "... the power to make this decision belongs to the majority — when it becomes someone else's it is censorship." Obviously, you don't know what censorship is. The power to censor rests with those who are in power; majorities and minorities have no bearing on the meaning of censorship.

Yet, your opinion that "... the power to make the decision belongs to the majority..." is your most arrogant statement. The Bill of Rights, which you purport to protect, protects minorities as well as majorities. In fact, that was its purpose. A tyranny of the majority could easily deprive us of all our rights, if voting and democracy were all that mattered.

All of what I have said rests on the premise that a dorm is a resident's private dwelling. Unfortunately, the law disagrees with this. Yet, I appeal to anyone's common sense of decency to understand how I and many other people feel this way. Just because the state does not respect us, does not mean that we can not respect each other.

Finally, I would be a bit remiss if I didn't comment on your stand (or lack thereof) on pornography. Look in a dictionary for the definition of the word. Plainly speaking, pornography is anything that evokes lust. With a report in Tuesday's Newsday (11/11/80) showing that reported rape has increased by 42 percent on Long Island, I conclude that this world can do with a little less lust and a lot more love.

Thomas Hillgardner

Growing Racism

To the Editor:

When asked about the high drop-out rate for all students here (minorities in particular), the University has said, "we'll look into it." When asked about the racist and sexist hiring practices (less than 18 percent of the faculty are women and much fewer are Black or Latin), the University has said, "we'll look into it." When asked about the racist harassment of minority students by Public Safety, the University has said "we'll look into it." When asked about the $5.4 million invested in companies in South Africa, the University has not said anything.

Now with a rash of racist incidents spreading through Long Island and all over the country, members and friends of the International Committee Against Racism (InCAR), have sent a letter to University President John Marburger on November 11, 1980 insisting that the University do more than just "look into it." The following is a reprint of that letter.

Dear President Marburger,

The resurgence of racism is widespread. All across the country racist groups like the Klu Klux Klan and the Neo-Nazi Party are growing. From slogans painted on a Nassau County high school to the window breaking in Port Jefferson Station (only 5 miles from campus), it is clear that Long Island is a reflection of the national trend.

Three weeks ago, a white male student informed students of a minority organization that he had been approached by a Klansman in the library at Stony Brook. Although this has not been substantiated, Stony Brook does not live in a vacuum, and as racism is growing all around us we have a responsibility to take a firm anti-racist stand and do all that we can to prevent this rapid growth of racism.

The University must come out with a statement against such activity. Not to do so is a statement of compliance.

We demand that the University publicly condemn the Klan, stating that no Klan will be allowed on campus. Specifically, that means that any student who is a Klan member be expelled and any faculty, worker, administrator or Public Safety officer who is a Klansman be fired.

As this is such an urgent and important matter, we request a reply to be printed in Friday's issue of Statesman, November 14, 1980.

that Stony Brook has a basketball program with a lot of good future varsity players." Last year's high scorer, Greg Williams showed promise of duplicating last year's performance with 10 points in the first half and a game high of 23 points.

Outstanding Players

Impressive performances were also turned in by Keith Walker and Joe Goldstein. "Walker shows flashes of being tremendous," said Tate. "Walker did it all—made plays, rebounded, and matched Williams's 23 points. Goldstein played excellent defense and exhibited good rebounding skills."

Asked how he would appraise his team's performance, Tate said, "I'm a skeptic; it's still too early to tell. I was satisfied with a lot of things but I still look for the team to improve."

Forward Jeff Schmidt passed the ball to Cusack on the left side. Cusack dribbled up towards the goal and fired a knee-high shot from about 17 yards out. The ball squeezed right between two Ranger defenders, hit the far upright, and into the net it went, snapping Drew's five-game shut-out streak. "It was a perfect shot" related forward Hank Decora. "Tim threaded the needle."

Fifteen minutes later, the referees awarded Drew a penalty kick for a minor infraction in the penalty area. This fumed the Patriots. Ranger Ares Michaelides took the kick and Patriot goalkeeper Phil Lesko, blocked it. The referees must have been annoyed by this because less than three minutes later, they awarded Drew another penalty kick, this time for a mysterious reason. A disgusted Tyson ran to the field to ask for an explanation for the referees' drastic decision. Tyson was greeted by the referees, David Malo, and Zofar Zwirsky, with a yellow card. "The referees were awful" said Patriot manager Wayne Schuck. Ranger Louis Rodrigues took the kick and beat Lesko. The Rangers contently accepted their gift.

The referees did not change their ways. One minute after the penalty kick, they ejected forward Cusack from the game. What happened was that Cusack was kicked in the leg by a Ranger. The referees did not see this but they did see Cusack's retaliation. Cusack was injured in the Ranger foul and it is doubtful whether he will be able to play for tomorrow's show down with Trenton.

The Pats striker Jean Decayette scored the winning goal with seven minutes left in the game. Schmidt received his second assist of the match as his shot deflected to Decayette's feet waiting in ideal firing range. Decayette played it well, calmly finding his way around the goalie and in the goal.

Said Decayette, "confidence and authority got us through this victory." "Even with the odds against us we came through like champs," said defender Kevin Woods. Fullback Craig Haft had an interesting comment about the match with the Rangers, "the referees couldn't even give them the game."

Tomorrow's game at Trenton will mark the end of the outdoor soccer season.

Belgium Students

The team members have already been initiated into part of Stony Brook's ambiance by visiting the Rainy Night House in the Stony Brook Union. Most of them stated that they really enjoyed themselves complementing the atmosphere, but Frans Rombouts complained that he "did not like the beer served in plastic cups."

The basketball players seemed to be very impressed with the gymnasium building. Marc Desmet and Stefan Soeverijns agreed that the floors of the gym were of high quality. "Wooden floors are rare in Belgium," said Soeverijns. He said that "vinyl" is used instead.

Due to the fact that the team is stationed at a university, educational differences become more apparent. A few of the players explained that their semesters although similar to ours in some ways, is vastly different in others. Like at Stony Brook, the Belgium students have two semesters in a year, but unlike our curriculum, their semesters run from October to January and from February to June, with a two or three week vacation for Christmas, and no break between semesters.

Since the University in Leuven has relatively little on-campus housing, a majority of the students live in the town. The different academic departments are spread out all over Leuven. There is, according to some team members, relatively little freedom of choice in Belgium, as far as academic decisions go. At the age of 12, one may decide to either go to high school or a technical school.

By 18, they have the option of going to college. However, once they choose their course of study, they must follow a rigid schedule that is devised by the University. And, the players were quick to add that if one subject is failed, the total semester must be repeated.

The complaints about American food was minimal. Most of their meals were provided by the Cedarbrook Restaurant located across the railroad tracks on Cedar Street and route 25A. The players were happy with what was served, but, they indignantly pointed out the "french fries" are incorrectly labeled. They claim that what we refer to as "french fries" should really be called "Belgium fries" because they originated there, not in France.

Patriots Cold Start Ends Up as Warm Victory

By Peter A. Wishnie

By the way the Stony Brook Patriot basketball team began last night's game against the Catholic University of Leuven at Belgium, they were better off than it was only an exhibition game.

After the first minute of play, Jo Staes of Belgium stole the ball and converted it into two points. For the next 10 minutes the Patriots seemed lost and were committing several turnovers even though they were never down by more than four points.

"It was expected," said coach Dick Kendall on why Stony Brook got off to a slow start. "This is our first game of the season and we were nervous." Forward Richie Malave added, "we are experienced basketball players but when it comes to playing together we are inexperienced." This is the first time that the starting five of captain Joe Grandolfo, Pedro Morales, Keith Martin, Malave and Scott Wilson has ever played together as a unit.

—Halftime Break

However, at 8:46 of the first half, Malave drove for a layup to put the Patriots up by four as they regrouped and went on to defeat Leuven, 92-59. For the rest of the half, Stony Brook outscored Leuven 26-7 and entered the locker room with a 23 point lead, 46-23.

What really sparked the team was the play by sophomore forward, Keith (Iceman) Martin. Martin's great defensive play was the fuel that catalyzed the Patriots fast break. "Our fast break works when someone gets a rebound and throws an outlet pass to one of our guards," said Grandolfo. Martin initiated the process with 13 rebounds and six steals. "I have the opportunity to play to my best capabilities this year that I didn't have last year because other players were playing in front of me," said Martin. Martin had a well rounded game as he contributed with 18 points.

Besides Martin, Stony Brook's starting guards will be a big contribution to this season. Grandolfo and Morales were passing to each other throughout the game but as Grandolfo said, "we were just looking for the open man." Both players must have been open frequently as they combined to score for 35 points.

Grandolfo led both teams with 21 points. Malave had 20 and three steals. Morales contributed with 14 points and also three steals.

The Patriots first regular season game is the Stony Brook Invitational Classic on November 21. The game is at 8 PM and admission is free.

Men's Soccer Team Must Defeat Trenton To Become Champs

By Frank J. Estrada

The Stony Brook Patriots Soccer Team went to Madison, New Jersey yesterday, and defeated the Drew University Rangers in a playoff game, 2-1. The Patriots are now one game away from becoming the champions of the Division III Eastern Colleges Athletic Conference (ECAC), in the Downstate New York-New Jersey region.

The ECAC picked four teams to compete in the playoffs. Stony Brook, the only New York team, is seeded fourth. Seeded first is Drew University. The other two playoff teams are the Trenton State Lions and the William Paterson Pioneers. In playoff action, Drew defeated Paterson on Tuesday, 1-0. Yesterday, aside from the Brook-Drew game, Paterson lost to Trenton, 5-3. The final game will be tomorrow at Trenton as the Lions host the Patriots.

The Patriots took control of yesterday's game right from the beginning. "We never let Drew play their game, we made them pay" said Patriot Coach Chris Tyson. "We took the home field advantage away from them." By beating the Rangers, Stony Brook ended Drew University's nine game winning streak.

Neither team scored in the first half but the Brook was clearly dominant. Ten minutes into the second half Patriot leading scorer Tim Cusack broke the ice by scoring the first goal of the game.

Successful Start For J V B-Ball

By James Nobles

In an exhibition game preceding a varsity contest against Leuven, Belgium, yesterday, Stony Brook's promising junior varsity basketball team made its 1980-81 debut with a 99 to 55 win over a squad of players drawn largely from the Health Science Center.

In an interview before the game, Coach Allen Tate characterized the confrontation as "just a work-out" in preparation for the real season opener against Suffolk West on December 1, at Suffolk. The game proved to be successful with Stony Brook jumping off to a 10-0 lead in the first quarter and ending the first half leading 50 to 26.

Said John Tolbert, a six foot transfer student from Mt. Vernon, "We want to blow every opponent out. We want to prove

Women's Swim Team Begins And Is Stronger Than Ever

By Rod Woodhead

With three months of grueling practice already under their belts, the members of the women's swim team are prepared to plunge into their season. Even as head coach Dave Alexander cautiously predicts a "winning" season, the Patriots, stronger than last year's championship team in every event, seem capable of going 9-1.

Last year, the first year that the women's swim team existed, the aqualadies surprised everybody with a 6-2-1 record, and even managed to capture the non-scholarship title of the prestigious Metropolitan Conference. This year, with the help of their talented new recruits, the Aqualadies should continue to strengthen their reputation as a championship caliber team.

Pats Swimmers

Spearheading the team's offense will be the Patriot record holders Patty Vega (freestyle), Cindy Hamlett (backstroke), co-captain Brenda Kessler (breaststroke), Mary Lou Rochon (butterfly) and Johanna Hynes (diving). No less important to the team will be new swimmers Jeannine Baer (distance freestyle), Judy Liotta (sprint freestyle), Tonia Swenson (freestyle), Beth McAuliffe (backstroke) and diver Mary Ellen McGarry who, along with others, will give the team a 'one-two' punch in many events.

According to Alexander, his goal this year is to have as many of his women as he can qualify for the state championship. Last year's team managed to place 13th out of 27 in the states; this year Alexander's goal is to be in the top 10.

The Patriot's first home meet is on Monday Dec. 1 at 5 PM against Hunter College and Nassau Community College.
