

Congress Opens Spirited Debate On Student Aid Cuts

By Helen Cordes

Washington, D.C. (CPS) — With a straight shock of dirty blond hair and wire-rimmed glasses, Rep. Tom Coleman (R-Mo) looks uncannily like a skinnier, slightly older clone of Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Director David Stockman.

And Coleman, as ranking minority member of the House Postsecondary Education Subcommittee, unhesitatingly mimics Stockman's insistence that federal funding of student aid be cut. Consequently, he is emerging as a central figure in the political battle now opening in Congress over the proposed cuts, which could amount to some $9.2 billion in 1982, according to some estimates.

In hearings opened last week, college lobbyists warned that the proposed cuts in student financial aid would prevent as many as 750,000 students from re-enrolling next school year. As many as 281 private schools could close as the result, speculated W. Richard Stephens, president of Greenville College in Illinois.

But against Stephens and the scores of other witnesses forecasting gloom are the forces of budget cutting, as represented by Coleman.

"Coleman," said one lobbyist, "is the guy in the middle who's supposed to carry the moderate Republicans and conservative Democrats (on the subcommittee for the Reagan plan). The election made people like Coleman more influential in Congress."

The newly-influential Coleman countered lobbyists' testimony by noting he was "personally very sympathetic to the financial aid problem. In fact, my [National Direct Student Loan (NDSL)] was the only way I got through school."

Coleman attended William Jewell College in Missouri. The Reagan budget proposes to phase out NDSLs over the next four years.

Coleman now agrees with Reagan because the student loan budget is "completely out of control."

Opponents of the plan react to those accusations with bitterness even at this early stage of the battle. "I find it very ironic," thunders Rep. Peter Peyser (D-NY), "that David Stockman (when he was a congressman) voted for the Higher Education Reauthorization bill, and now he's cutting out the very things he voted for."

DAVID STOCKMAN

The Higher Education Reauthorization Act, which enables Congress to fund college programs through 1985, mandated increases in most financial aid programs.

Most of those testifying against the program cuts dispensed with irony, and went straight to outrage.

The cuts would be "a serious blow" that would eliminate "choice for prospective students," drastically limit "research capacity, which is an irreplaceable national resource," and "raise operating costs at a time when the financial conditions" of colleges are "particularly uncertain," summarized E. K. Fretwell, who heads the University of North Carolina-Charlotte.

Specifically, the administration wants to phase out NDSLs, and make significant changes in the Pell Grants program (which until recently were known as Basic Educational Opportunity Grants, BEOGs).

If Congress approves the plan, Pell Grants would be restricted to students from families earning less than $25,000, and require that students themselves contribute $750 a year toward their education.

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) estimated the new provisions would cut "approximately 100,000 students" from the program, though OMB chief Stockman aimed for eliminating a total of 260,000.

The CBO's Alice Rivlin told the subcommittee the average Pell Grant award would be reduced 17 percent, or nearly $200. She estimated the savings to the government at $2.4 billion.

UNC's Fretwell testified that cutting off students from families that earn more than $25,000 negates the Middle-Income Student Assistance Act passed in 1978. "The cutoff doesn't take into account families with more than one child in school," added Sen. Claiborne Pell (D-R.I.).

College lobbyists were even more upset by the Reagan proposals for Guaranteed Student Loans (GSLs). The administration wants to limit GSLs to students who can prove financial need, raise the interest rates to current market levels (currently at about 17 percent, contrasted with present special GSL rates of nine percent), and stop federal help to students in paying the interest.

THE STONY BROOK UNION: Because of Elizabeth Wadsworth's (inset) decision to disband the Union Governing Board, a replacement committee is being sought.

Wadsworth Searching For UGB Replacement Committee

By Laura Craven

Elizabeth Wadsworth, vice-president for student affairs, is currently searching for a committee, to explore options for replacing the Union Governing Board (UGB) which among other things, was responsible for allocating space in the Stony Brook Union.

The UGB was disbanded in September when Wadsworth pointed out to University President John Marburger that it had no mandate or constitution and therefore needed to be replaced.

Wadsworth said that she has been trying for the past two to three weeks to determine an appropriate group of people to address the question of what should replace the UGB. She said that, although Marburger has asked her to come up with a solution, she feels that "Elizabeth Wadsworth should not come out with a single-handed" replacement.

Best Solution

Wadsworth said that she has been wrestling with the question but still does not have the best solution.

Wadsworth said that in forming the committee she does not want to eliminate the purpose of the UGB but "wants to try to bring together people who don't bring us into old adversarial

Wadsworth said that the main question is, "where should the Union be going?"

She cited the problems with the UGB as not having had any clear strength as to what was or should be happening within the Union.

According to Wadsworth, one of the problems with forming the committee is that is a complicated situation and there are many questions to be answered.

Wadsworth said that the committee should ideally be comprised of representatives from organizations located in the Union such as the Faculty Student Association (FSA) and Polity. However, a group of people that could stand back from the history of the Union would also be beneficial.

According to Polity President Rich Zuckerman the UGB ran the Tuesday Flicks and was the House and Operations Committee for the Union which allocated space. He said that the UGB was made up of the vice-president for Student Affairs, the Polity President, the Polity Treasurer, the director of the Union, three resident and three commuter students and any person that went to three consecutive meetings.

Patriot Swimmer Takes Bronze

By Lisa Napell

Taking the bronze in the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women's (AIAW) Division III National Championships this past weekend at Coe College in Cedar Rapids Iowa was no small feat for Jan Bender. This Patriot swimmer flew to third place and All American standing in 26.93 seconds of butterflying.

All this acclaim was not easily come by. There were hours and hours of hard work in the pool long before that trip to Cedar Rapids could even begin. At 16 years old Bender began swimming for Fairport High School in upstate New York. She began as a freestyler and switched to butterfly after about a year. "They try you out in a couple of things and if you do well they keep you going in whatever you do best," she said, pausing to add that "I didn't really like it at first but now I love it — it's my thing — it's a really hard stroke though."

In addition to Bender there were three other members of the Patriot Women's swim team at the Nationals. The

2,500 March in Atlanta

Atlanta—About 2,500 people silently marched three miles from the Georgia state capitol in memory of 20 slain black children. The marchers were led by entertainer Ben Vereen and civil rights leader Coretta Scott King. People came from as far as Iowa, Texas, New Orleans and Detroit. They walked the distance two-by-two, because, as one minister put it, it is possible that "if these children had someone with them they'd still be alive."

In the meantime, for the 22nd weekend, volunteers searched sections of Atlanta for clues in the cases. About 50 people combed the woods in southwest Atlanta and planned to look in a suburban area where a jacket was found. The jacket looks like one worn by one of the two missing boys when he was last seen.

Police spokesman Roger Harris said the mother of one of Atlanta's two missing black youngsters was called in to look at the jacket found this weekend by a volunteer search group. Harris reported yesterday that 15-year-old Joseph Bell's mother said she did not know whether the recovered jacket belonged to her son.

In New York, the mothers of two of the 20 children who have been killed in Atlanta received a rousing welcome and $1,200 from a black congregation in downtown Brooklyn yesterday.

Venus Taylor and Willie Mae Mathis told several hundred people at the House of the Lord Pentacostal Church that they were not satisfied with the support the families of the victims had received from the Atlanta community or from the federal government.

But both expressed gratitude for the Brooklyn service and a candle-light prayer vigil in Harlem on Friday night that attracted more than 10,000 people.

The killings in Atlanta "are not just a southern problem" but threaten cities around the nation," said Taylor.

In his sermon, Reverend Michael Amon-Ra told the congregation that the pattern of violence in Atlanta "is not to be dismissed as anything less than a conspiracy."

He likened the murders of the last 19 months to the violence directed against southern blacks during the civil rights movement of the 1960's.

Amon-Ra said the congregation raised $1,200 for a fund to assist the families of the murdered children.

—NEWS DIGEST

International

Damascus, Syria—The more than 100 hostages freed Saturday after being held by hijackers for 13 days aboard a Pakistani plane have another stop on their long odyssey: Saudi Arabia.

A Pakistani government spokesman says the freed hostages will be flown to Saudi Arabia today from Syria and treated as "state guests." They will visit the Moslem holy city of Mecca before they return to Pakistan. He says non-Moslems—including three Americans—will also probably be flown to Saudi Arabia.

During the 13-day hijack drama, the hostages went from Karachi, Pakistan to Kabul, Afghanistan, then to Damascus, Syria.

National

Philadelphia—Police have blocked off a 50-foot area around a house where reputed crime boss Phillip Testa was killed early yesterday.

Authorities are trying to determine what type of explosive killed Testa at the front door of his home. An FBI mobile laboratory was sent from Washington to help with the investigation.

The area around the home was strewn with debris following the powerful blast, which shattered the windows of nearby houses. The explosion also collapsed the porch of the home, shattered a picture window and blew a 5-foot section of brick wall into the front yard. One neighbor said he "thought the world was coming to an end."

Washington—Contract negotiations between the United Mine Workers and Soft Coal Industry leaders are continuing, and bargainers will not say whether progress is being made. The negotiating deadline is midnight tonight. Miners in coal mine towns in West Virginia say they expect a strike. But one miner said it will not be as bad as the last strike, which was in the midst of Christmas, winter and heating bills. This time the miners are getting back their tax refunds. And in the miner's words: "we're ready."

Washington—Education Secretary T. H. Bell yesterday reasserted the Reagan administration's opposition to federally mandated school busing. He told broadcast interviewers he "certainly would not oppose" a constitutional amendment or federal law that prohibits busing students to achieve racial desegregation.

In Bell's words: "The problem with busing is at the end of the bus ride you're still back in that racially isolated neighborhood." He contends: "What we ought to be doing is working more on excellence."

Chicago—Arson specialists are sifting through the rubble of a Chicago apartment building to determine what caused a fire Saturday that killed 19 people. The blaze might have started in two places, which would indicate arson. Fire officials say, however, that they are not sure yet.

State and Local

New York—The day before he was to go to Florida with New York City officials to push the sale of $75 million of city bonds, City Comptroller Harrison Goldin predicted that New York City's budget will be balanced this year and unaffected by President Ronald Reagan's proposed budget cuts.

Goldin, appearing on the WCBS TV Newsmakers program said there "is no question New York will have a balanced budget in 1982, and that is of paramount interest to investors."

Goldin, New York City Mayor Edward Koch and other city officials are scheduled to speak to members of the investment community today to try to persuade them the bonds are a safe investment. The move is part of a push for the first major sale of city bonds in six years.

Goldin predicts that proposed Reagan cuts in federal funding, which he termed "foolish and cruel," would have no effect on this year's balanced budget.

New York—New York City police say a Manhattan man was arrested yesterday after he allegedly drove his car on the sidewalk and intentionally ran into and injured six people, including three sisters and their brother, coming out of a Manhattan social club.

Police say the six were taken to Columbia Presbyterian Hospital where five were hospitalized, one in serious condition and the remainder in stable condition.

According to police, 22-year-old Cesar Vargas Arias, allegedly drove his car over the curb at 7:25 AM and struck the group leaving a club at the corner of Payson and Dyckman streets.

Police say they had no clues as to why Arias drove into the people.

Women's Groups Say Court Ruling Weakens Title IX

A federal court ruling that anti-sex discrimination laws can be enforced only in "those education programs which directly receive federal financial assistance" has some women's rights advocates worried that Title IX of the Higher Education Amendments of 1972 may have been badly weakened.

Federal District Court Judge Charles Joiner ruled that Title IX, which forbids sex discrimination in institutions receiving federal money, can only apply to programs that directly get federal funds.

In this case, Joiner ruled that the U.S. Department of Education could not enforce Title IX in the Ann Arbor School District's interscholastic sports program because the sports program itself did not specifically get any federal funding. The school district, however, received $1.7 million in federal funds.

While warning that the decision's effect "is limited to the eastern district of Michigan," attorney Margy Kohn of the Women's Rights Project of the Center for Law & Social Policy in Washington, D.C. forecast "serious ramifications if this is upheld."

If the precedent is established, she sees it applying to areas beyond athletics. She frets it could hamper not only sex discrimination litigation, but federal laws that prohibit discrimination on the basis of race or national origin.

"If it's only a reading program that's integrated, this court ruling would suggest that the rest of the segregated school is okay," she hypothesizes while stressing she had not seen the Joiner decision herself. "That would be terrible."

Federal Funding

Kohn instead argues that "because institutions get huge amounts of federal funding, the whole school is covered by Title IX. Federal funding is infused into the entire (school) budget through tuition and fees."

Limiting Title IX to programs that directly get federal monies — usually called "categorical grant programs" — would seriously inhibit women's right efforts, says Jean King, the lawyer who represented the Ann Arbor athletes who claimed their school district favored male programs over female sports programs.

"Federal funds don't touch anything we care about," King told Higher Education Daily. "It leaves nothing to Title IX except the school lunch programs."

Over the past several years, women in colleges have employed Title IX to sue over such issues as unfair employment practices, the sexual harassment of students by professors, and even female students' efforts to join previously all-male marching bands and "eating clubs."

The U.S. Department of Justice is currently involved in Title IX lawsuits against the University of Alaska, alleging it has failed to provide equal opportunities for its female athletes. A Justice Department lawyer estimated that "probably 75 percent" of the government's college-related sex discrimination cases "revolve around athletics."

Indeed, the National Collegiate Athletic Association sued the government in 1976, asking that sports departments be excluded from Title IX regulation because they are not directly funded by Washington. The case is still pending.

Similarly, the U.S. Supreme Court may soon hear a case in which a Georgia school district wants to exempt all its programs from Title IX, except those in which its teachers are paid directly with federal money.

But a spokesman for the Project on the Status and Education of Women in Washington speculates the direct-funding issue may be resolved by President Reagan's proposal to change all categorical grants into block grants. Under the proposal, state and local officials would be given federal funds, which the officials could then apply to programs according to local needs.

The spokesman, who asked not to be named, suggested the block grants "might mean that all school funding — out of one pot, so to speak — would fall under Title IX."

Kohn, however, said "that depends on how the block grant is ultimately construed, and who is doing the (money) distributing under what principles."

Training Sessions On Assertiveness Offered Here

By Cameron M. Kane

An assertiveness training workshop, where instructors teach students how to be assertive in relations with family, friends, faculty and administrative personnel is being offered by the University Counseling Center. Assertion according to the workshop personnel is defined as the direct communication of your opinions to others without coming off as threatening and, without being fearful of personal responses.

The problem is most people think that their assertions are impositions that "will make others either attack us or not like us . . ." said Sandy Albano, coordinator of the assertiveness workshop. Parents "don't respond positively to a child's assertions;" they usually punish a child with ostracism or guilt, she added. "People are not, through socialization, taught the difference between assertiveness and aggression."

Categorized under non-assertive behavior are both aggressive behavior and passive behavior. Aggressive and passive behavior modes are opposite to each other but, they are very similar in their respective ignorance of personal rights. Aggressive individuals express their opinions in a demanding and assaultive manner. These individuals while disregarding the personal rights of others, also assume little responsibility for the consequences of their own actions. Passive people deny their own right to express themselves via direct communication. "People who act passively tend to explode every now and then . . . with certain people and in certain contexts," said Albano.

"A typical Ku Klux Klan man who feels frustrated and abused at work, manipulated by the system, finds it easy to target his anger to Blacks, Jews and otherwise. He is angry but he doesn't know why; he has to find a reason so, he finds a difference that he attacks," Albano explained. It is also "not unusual for students living in a suite to scapegoat one of the suitemates," she added.

The fundamental theory of the assertiveness workshop is that you have the personal right to change your mind, make mistakes, express opinions, communicate feelings, become irritated, stand up for your rights and generally, you have the right to impose yourself on other people as long as you do not infringe upon their same rights.

"When a person acts non-assertively, they are usually acting out of some irrational idea that is connected to a mis-notion about personal rights," said Albano. The gut feeling that they have "no right to disagree with parents, teachers or friends" leads them to

COLLEGE SELECTION IS COMING!

College Selection is the process whereby current campus residents reserve a housing space for the Fall 1981 school year.

All resident students planning to go through College Selection should give attention to the following:

- College Selection will take place April 6-9.
- All outstanding bills must be paid prior to College Selection.
- A $75 housing deposit must be paid during the week of April 6-9.
- All students participating in the process must be full-time matriculated students.
- You must pre-register for classes during the advance registration week of April 20-24. Failure to register will result in the loss of your room reservation.
- Your entire bill must be properly paid or deferred by JULY 27, 1981 or your room reservation will be cancelled.

FURTHER INFORMATION on the College Selection process will follow prior to Spring break!

The Summer Session of Columbia University offers students the opportunity to study at the most distinguished educational institution in America's most cosmopolitan city. The rigorous and challenging curriculum, distinguished faculty, outstanding research facilities, and New York City itself combine to stimulate the individual and support the student's course of study.

Daytime and evening graduate and undergraduate courses for academic credit will be given by more than forty arts and sciences departments and professional schools. Among these are:

Foreign Languages. Arabic, Aramaic, Armenian, Chinese, French, German, Greek, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Latin, Russian, Spanish, and Yiddish.

Focus on Design. An intensive introduction to the design professions including architecture, historic preservation, and urban design.

Summer Theatre Program. A series of courses and workshops in repertory theatre, acting, playwriting, and production techniques, taught with the assistance of guest artists. A fully-mounted production of a play by Eugene O'Neill.

Study Abroad Programs. French language, art history, and philosophy in Paris; Italian language and art history in Florence.

Additional Courses. Students may choose from courses in a variety of areas including anatomy, anthropology, architecture and planning, art history, biochemistry, biology, general and organic chemistry, computer science, economics, engineering, English and comparative literature, film, geology, history, international affairs, journalism, mathematics, music, physics, physiology, psychology, and creative writing.

The summer student body is a select group of highly motivated men and women, two-thirds of whom attend Columbia during the academic year. College and university students are encouraged to apply for admission. Columbia's 32-acre Manhattan setting is generally regarded as one of America's most handsome urban campuses. All the resources of the University are at the disposal of summer students, including the extensive library collection, computer resources, complete recreational facilities, social and cultural activities, and residence halls.

CRIME ROUND-UP

Five Arrested

By Nancy J. Hyman

Five men were arrested in Langmuir College Friday afternoon by the Department of Public Safety.

The five non-students were Robert Monico, 19, of Wantagh and John Trusley, 20, James Divita, 18, Glenn Bogle, 18, and John Kugan, 21, all of Levittown. There were all charged with disorderly conduct.

Beer Theft

Two young men were arrested last Monday night for allegedly stealing a case of beer from the End of the Bridge Restaurant.

Campus Fire Marshal John Poulos witnessed Kenneth Bendfelat, 16 and Michael Kelly, 18, both of Smithtown, enter the End of the Bridge and remove a case of Heinekin beer at about midnight. Poulos then requested assistance from Public Safety in apprehending the two subjects. They were arrested and charged with Burglary and Petit Larceny and were taken to the Sixth Precinct for booking.

Rainy Night Arrest

A 21-year-old man was arrested in the Stony Brook Union last Saturday after he refused to leave the Rainy Night House.

It took about five people to restrain Robert Casey in Public Safety Headquarters — three of whom were injured. Casey was brought to headquarters upon refusing to leave the establishment. He has been charged with Criminal Trespass, Assault, Resisting Arrest and Disorderly conduct.

Search For UGB Replacement Committee

Zuckerman said that he received a memo from Ron Siegel, assistant vice-president for Finance and Business, in the beginning of the fall semester stating that the constitution of the UGB was invalid and that the UGB's existence was therefore null and void.

"It's a simple situation of students had a large say in how the space in the building was appropriated," Zuckerman said. "The new group Wadsworth is setting up isn't going to have the same degree of student input."

Zuckerman added that Bill Fornadel, acting-director of the Union, has temporarily inherited the responsibilities of the UGB, and there is now no student input at all.

"Why they didn't just get Marburger to sign the constitution, I don't know," Zuckerman said. "This whole thing reeks of limiting student rights on campus."

Zuckerman said there is now a paradox he would like to see resolved. "If the UGB has not legally existed for the past five years because the University president never approved the constitution," he said, "then does that mean that everything the UGB has done for the past five years, including allocating space, is illegal and should be considered null and void?"

"The way I see it," Zuckerman added, "is that the University has caught itself in a catch-22 and it should be amusing to watch it get itself out."

Congressional Debates on Aid Cuts

The proposals will do nothing less than "virtually destroy the program, and will create such confusion that lenders, parents and students will withdraw in large numbers in a very short period of time," warned Dallas Martin, lobbyist for the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators.

He predicted "80 to 90 percent," or two million, of the students now getting GSLs will quit the program.

In contrast, the CBO's Rivlin says the proposal "would reduce the eligible pool of borrowers by roughly 50 percent." Yet she added the proposed changes in the GSL program might make lenders less likely to make loans under it.

Consequently, students who lose one kind of financial aid won't necessarily be able to replace it with another kind. "Financial aid officers will not be referring NDSL borrowers who need $400 to $500 to the bank to apply for a GSL," testified Joseph Cronin, president for the Massachusetts Higher Education Assistance Corporation.

"The administrative costs for a lender are the same for a student who borrows $500 as they are for a student who borrows $5,000," Cronin explained. "The student who borrows significantly lower amounts reduces the bank's profit," and so probably won't get a loan.

But subcommittee Chairman Paul Simon (D-Ill.) does not "have any idea at his point" what kind of cuts his committee, which will start holding hearings across the country soon, will ultimately make. But he does foresee cuts: "We may face a mandate to cut back $200 million, $300 million."

"Whether Congress will support the cuts will depend on the public," Peyser said. "A recent New York Times poll showed 66 percent in favor of increased student loans. They've got to let us know."

Assertiveness Training Sessions Offered

either deny their rights, becoming passive in manner, or to over-assert themselves, becoming aggressive in manner.

The assertiveness workshop views conflicts as a "natural part of relationships with parents, students and faculty. You have a right to feel irritated, sad or angry in relationship's but you must take responsibility for these feelings," asserted Albano.

The dynamics of assertive behavior are taught in the workshops by analyzing the elements that make it up. The workshop studies volumetric voice responses, nonverbal cues and positive feedback as a "very basic introduction to people" of assertiveness skills, said Sarah Gudaitis, instructor of one of the workshops.

"The workshop offers a guideline to working on assertive behavior," said Albano, "and opens the door for people to work on assertive skills in their normal relationships."

In addition to the ongoing assertiveness training workshops, there will be two seminars coming up on March 18 and April 8.

WEATHER WATCH

Bob Hassinger and Chris Grassotti (Courtesy of the Stony Brook Weather Observatory)
Summary

A complex frontal system now located along the East Coast is spawning a series of weak disturbances, resulting in cloudy and wet weather for our area. During the day, the system should organize itself and begin to pull much colder air into the region. If this cold air arrives soon enough, it may change our rain to periods of snow. At this point, a slight accumulation cannot be ruled out.

Temperatures tomorrow will struggle to get into the 30's and this pattern of below-normal temperatures will continue at least through the middle of the week.

High pressure dominates the middle third of the country, while a storm entering the northern Rockies is producing rain and snow.

Forecast

Today: Cloudy, breezy and cool, with periods of rain, possibly mixing with or changing to a period of occasional snow. Temperatures, initially in the low to mid 40's, will drop through the 30's during the afternoon.

Tonight: Any snow flurries ending, followed by clearing. Windy and turning much colder. Lows 17 to 22.

Tuesday: A mixture of clouds and sun, blustery and very cold. Highs 27 to 32.

Wednesday: Partly sunny, less windy and continued cold. Highs in the upper 30's to low 40's.

In Search Of Equality

Universities, throughout history, have been havens for progressive thought. Within university walls, the seeds of revolutions have been planted and social change instigated. The university has always served as a leader in promoting societal self-evaluation and advancement.

Discrimination because of sex has been an incessant problem over the centuries, affecting every facet of life. Universities have not been excluded.

Title IX of the Higher Education Amendments of 1972 was aimed at stemming discrimination based on sex in universities. In the past, Title IX has been used by women in college to press lawsuits over issues such as unfair employment practices, unequal athletic programs and sexual harassment of female students by professors.

With a recent federal court ruling giving a very lenient interpretation to government anti-sex discrimination laws, the positive implications of Title IX may not be as great.

Discrimination of any sort is an evil which must be stamped out and not tolerated. The advances in combating sex discrimination, have, to a large extent, been fostered by legislation such as Title IX. As a university dedicated to higher education and higher ideals, we must never compromise our quest for equality.

LETTERS

No Referendum

To the Editor:

Concerning my letter of March 9 about the Senate's plan to appoint a committee to complete the 1981-82 Polity budget if the Senate doesn't complete it themselves, I would like to submit this follow-up letter.

If you remember, I said that any budget produced by this committee would be unconstitutional because Poor Richards' Budgeting Act was never put on referendum. Well, it seems that this act, as well as several other amendments, were added to the constitution that had never been put on referendum and a few amendments that had been passed by referendum were left out of the constitution. Last year in the Senate, we didn't appoint such a committee because it was never approved by the Student Body.

Many other former and present Polity officials, including myself, fail to remember Poor Richards' ever being put on referendum. We also fail to find Senate or Council minutes from last year to put this act, as well as a few others, on referendum; or minutes from last year's Council, Election Board, or Judiciary to accept the election as legal (validation of the election). I speak of last year because I know that they weren't this year.

Yet, Poor Richards' shows up in the Constitution.

Unless such documentation can be produced and verified within a reasonable amount of time, a full scale investigation will be in order—and not just on a university level (I've seen people go to jail for less—as well as a few resignations by Polity officials.

Kaukonen

To the Editor:

I'd just like to say what a great time I had at the Jorma Kaukonen concert. That guy sure can make a guitar wail.

It was a bit of a drag at first, though, before he came on. They had this comedian, Chris Rush. He was pretty funny, I guess, but he had a shaved head. All I know is I came to see Kaukonen. I kept yelling and booing for him to get off stage. Hey, I paid $6 and what was this guy doing? A lot of us kept yelling "Yor-Mah, Yor-Mah!" real loud until we were hoarse. Rush still wouldn't get off the stage, said something about Kaukonen not being there yet. I didn't really understand what he meant. What did he mean? Where could he be? I wanted to see Kaukonen.

I don't care what anybody says, I still think he would have played longer if it wasn't for Rush. Rush cracked me up a few times though, when I wasn't screaming my voice ragged. One joke made me laugh so hard I didn't yell "Yor-Mah" for a while, but then I stopped laughing and started shouting again.

My question is: Why do they have other things at concerts? Anyway, I'm psyched for the next show.

Strike Out

To the Editor:

Your editorial in Statesman, March 4, is a pip. You strike out every time you come to the plate.

There is no "transgression of the 14th amendment (sic)" blatant or otherwise. Due process of law is not defined in this portion of the Constitution or, for that matter, anywhere else in the Constitution. The Amendment says nothing about the "right of the accused to have a lawyer" or "to be able to examine witnesses" (sic) statements." The Fourteenth extended to the actions of the several states the language of the fifth Amendment. The rights of the accused to counsel, of access to the nature and cause of the actions, and of confrontation of witnesses are found in the Sixth Amendment, applicable to criminal prosecution. Hearings under the Student Conduct Code are not, repeat not, criminal actions. They are administrative proceedings.

The modifications in the code only affected procedures, not offenses. There is no issue of ex post facto "law."

It may be that the modification process was defective but that remains to be seen. The facts that penalties may be set by the hearing officer and that the option of peremptory challenge has been removed are not violative of the spirit or letter of due process in these kinds of actions as defined elsewhere by the courts.

Your editorial does a grave disservice to this community by its intemperate tone and uncritical language. The process, as it stands, affords a degree of protection greater than that required by current judicial opinion, and poses no threat of Star Chamber actions.

Before you write your next editorial on the Constitution, why don't you read it first: It isn't very long.

Lacking Dignity

To the Editor:

I would like to briefly state one thing. Death is a delicate matter. It should not be spoken of euphemistically. Nor, should it be spoken of without dignity. Your cover article on the death of Emily Rogers lacked dignity.

Patriot Lacrosse Defeated 18 - 6 By Suffolk C C

By Steve Weinstein

"Lacrosse is a game made up of sticks and legs," stated coach John Ziegler. "On Saturday, we had the sticks, but not the legs." Ziegler was referring to the Stony Brook defeat at the hands of Suffolk Community College, 18-6, on March 14.

"Suffolk is a quality team and we just couldn't keep up with them throughout the entire game," Ziegler continued. "They have an excellent goalie and their offense puts on tremendous pressure. They play smart lacrosse and have many fast break situations."

After winning its first game of the season, Stony Brook was prepared to put Suffolk away, but after the first half, the shell-shocked Patriots found themselves down 12-1. "At halftime, I told the guys to just go out and enjoy themselves and try to keep up," Ziegler said. "I was surprised to see them so up after being outscored so badly. They know they can keep up with Suffolk and they want a rematch with them at the end of the season. We just didn't have enough manpower to play with them, especially in the midfield."

In the second half, the Patriots got their act together and reeled off five goals while only allowing Suffolk to put in six. Terry Russel, the 6'5" attacker scored two goals as teammates Don Kane, Steve Pollack, Dave Bagno and Ray McKenna each had a goal.

"I'm very happy with the way we played. In fact, this was probably the best we have played the whole year," stated Ziegler. "Last year's lacrosse coach was at the game and he told me he couldn't believe the improvement on the team."

The Patriots next game is against Monroe on Saturday, March 28. Stony Brook returns home on March 31 to play host to Southampton at 3:45 PM.

Soccer Season Ends in Defeat

The Stony Brook Patriot Soccer Team lost in the Arrows Invitational Tournament (AIT) held during the past three weeks.

The indoor soccer event, consisting of four teams, started March 1, when the Patriots edged out Suffolk County Community College (SCCC), 6-5. Also that day, C. D. Huascaran beat Dowling, 7-5. On March 8, the Brook lost to C. D. Huascaran, 2-1 and Dowling went down again, this time to SCCC, 9-6.

This past weekend, C. D. Huascaran defeated SCCC 5-3 and with a record of 3 wins and 0 losses, the Spanish-American League (C. D. Huascaran) team won the tournament. Also this weekend, the game between the Brook and Dowling, originally scheduled for Sunday, was rescheduled for Saturday.

However, Dowling was not informed of this change of schedule. Stony Brook went to St. James Saturday ready to play and Dowling didn't show. "We were so mad," said Patriot Coach Chris Tyson. On Sunday, Dowling went to St. James and was stood up by the Patriots. "It [the AIT] was poorly organized," said an upset Brad Switzer, a player for Dowling.

Pat Swimmer Takes Bronze in Nationals

other members of the medley relay team, in which Bender swam the third leg, were freshman Beth McAulffe (backstroke), senior Brenda Kessler (breast stroke), and freshman Judy Liotta (freestyle).

Unfortunately, Coach Dave Alexander was unable to accompany the women on their journey as he is only a part-time coach and had unbreakable job commitments elsewhere. "We really needed him there," said Bender. "The relay would have done a lot better if he was there, it'd have been a lot more organized." Women's Track Coach Kim Hovey went along in Alexander's place. "He felt really bad that he couldn't go," added Bender. "We felt bad too."

Bender is a transfer student and she said that the Patriots were "great; I just transferred here in January and compared to the teams I've been on and the coaches I've swam for—especially the coaches I've swam for—the girls were so friendly, which brings the team together, and the coach is so involved and he really cares, not just about the swimming. He's behind you all the way whatever you're doing."

Bender plans to keep swimming as a Patriot and hopes to build on this year's success both as a team and individually.

Thirteen Firsts For Equestrian Club

By Matthew Lebowitz

The Stony Brook Equestrian Club, 44 members strong, emerged victorious yesterday at the St. John's Intercollegiate Horse Show by taking 13 first places, eight second places and eight third place ribbons.

High point rider of the day was Joe Fellingham with double blue ribbons. Janet Knox of Adelphi University took two blues as well, but in the final "ride off" was defeated by Fellingham who showed excellent control of his horse.

As a team, the Patriots finished the day as High point college, defeating Suffolk Community College by five points.
