Security Charged With Biased Arrest

By NATE RABINOVICH
and HOWARD SALTZ

A campus minority organization has charged that the recent arrest of one of its members was both wrongful and racially motivated.

The Latin American Student Organization (LASO), representing Hispanic students at Stony Brook, asserted that Benedict College resident Luis Aguilar, was singled out by Campus Security officers when he was arrested during a 3 AM fire alarm evacuation of that building Feb. 9. Aguilar was seen in the stairwell of the building's A-wing and was arrested and charged with obstructing governmental administration and resisting arrest, class A misdemeanors. He is set to be arraigned April 17.

But based on the accounts of Aguilar and two eyewitnesses who have provided signed statements attesting to the events, LASO members believe that the student's arrest was unwarranted. The witnesses reported that Aguilar was one of several residents standing in the stairwell during the fire alarm, which proved false, and the organization's members suspect that he was singled out only because he is Hispanic.

Citing "the racist attitude exhibited by the Campus Security officers involved" and "the permanent 'mark' that a police record would represent in Aguilar's life," the organization's acting president, Richard Lobdell, called for "an immediate investigation of the charges against and the circumstances under which Luis Aguilar was arrested" in a March 11 letter to Richard Schmidt, acting University president. LASO members said that Schmidt has yet to respond, but Schmidt said he would not comment on the matter until he consulted with Paul Madonna, University Business Manager, and Malcolm Agostini, a consultant to the president for affirmative action.

Madonna and Agostini were present at a March 13 meeting of Aguilar, Campus Security Director Robert Cornute, Assistant Director Kenth Sjolín, Advancement on Individual Merit Counselor Javier Melendez, the security officers who made the arrest, and eyewitnesses.

On Feb. 9, Security officers responded to a fire alarm set off in Benedict. Since they could not immediately determine whether the alarm had been falsely set, they evacuated and searched the building. According to Aguilar and eyewitnesses to the arrest, several residents, including Aguilar, decided to wait in the stairwell of Benedict

A-Wing to seek refuge from the cold weather while the search was under way. They had already been waiting outside for several minutes.

Security officers approached them, they said, and asked Aguilar to produce his student identification card. Aguilar told them the card was in his room on Benedict A-O, and, clutching his arm, the officers escorted him there. When Aguilar showed them his ID card, they told him that he was under arrest, he said, and they ordered him to lie on the floor. Aguilar said he refused, and the officers told him he was resisting arrest. He was taken to the Suffolk County Police Sixth Precinct in Coram and was released on bail.

A Security arrest report, filed by Officer Michael Fitzharris, said that the student "did physically resist the arrest of himself via pushing and shoving the arresting officers with his hands and body, thus causing him to lose balance while attempting to handcuff the defendant." Aguilar, however, denied that he engaged in these activities.

In the report citing Aguilar's arrest for obstructing governmental administration, it was charged that Security Officers Fred Fogel and Kevin Wamganz arrested him after he "did physically refuse to leave Benedict College A-Wing via placing his body between the exit and the two Public Safety officers during a fire alarm evacuation... after being ordered to do so by Officers Fogel and Wamganz... This conduct preventing a public servant from performing an official function of evacuating a building during a fire alarm."

Neither Fitzharris, Wamganz, nor Fogel were available for comment.

Although Aguilar was originally set to be arraigned March 14, he was unable to obtain a lawyer, and the arraignment was reset for April 17, he said.

At the March 13 meeting, which was held to discuss the facts of the case, administrators decided not to drop charges against Aguilar. A source close to Aguilar, who was present at the meeting, said this decision was made because the administrators determined that "the charges of racism" were unfounded.

However, the source, who wished not to be quoted by name, criticized the way in which the meeting was carried out. Although Aguilar was questioned, he did not have an attorney representing him, and "there was no one impartial" available to ascertain the facts, the source said.

None of the administrators who attended the meeting were available for comment yesterday.

Lobdell said that LASO is making efforts to hire an attorney for Aguilar. If the University does not drop charges against him, Lobdell said, LASO may consider organizing a rally on his behalf. But, he added, "Right now, we're just groping in the dark."

Students Claim Police Brutality

By MARK L. SCHUSSEL
and BENJAMIN BERRY

A Stony Brook student and three other witnesses have charged that Campus Security officers unnecessarily beat the student, while arresting him Saturday for driving while intoxicated.

According to Natimba Themba, who was arrested after driving his car into a parked Volkswagen near Kelly A, Security officers dragged him out of his car, kicked him in the foot, pushed him against his car and punched him in the stomach. Themba, who is now in the county jail in Riverhead, said bruises on his face are the result of falling on the ground after being kicked in the foot.

Three Kelly A residents and possibly a Tootsie Taxi driver witnessed the arrest, which occurred about 3 PM at the site of the accident.

According to Mike Kulak, who was looking out of his first floor bedroom window at the time along with his suitemate David Madison, after the accident a Security officer spoke to Themba and asked him for his identification. But a few minutes later two other officers arriving together "jumped out of the car and grabbed the guy. They handcuffed him and jumped on top of him and proceeded to beat on him. These guys went crazy on him." Kulak said that Themba did not appear to be resisting the arrest.

According to Isolea Byron, who was coming out of a taxi directly opposite the scene, "The next thing you know, he was down on the floor." She said two officers got on top of him, "one had his hands on Themba's shoulder and the other on his hands. They were shaking him and beating him. They then pulled him up and pushed him against the car." She also said that Themba did not appear to be putting up a fight.

And after the incident, "They were walking around trying to calm themselves down," Byron added.

Statesman has been unable to contact the Tootsie Taxi driver.

Babak Movahedi, the director of Polity Hotline, said he was told by the arresting officer, Michael Koupash, that Themba was arrested for drunken driving and resisting arrest. Hotline was contacted by Kulak after the incident.

However, police records show that the arrest was due to driving while intoxicated.

The identities of the two other officers involved is not known at this time. Koupash and Security officials were unavailable for comment yesterday.

Themba said that he will press charges against the officers involved in the arrest.

LUIS AGUILAR, a Benedict College resident, was arrested Feb. 9 during a fire alarm evacuation.

MTA Offers Salary Increase

New York (AP) — The Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA) offered its unions of subway and bus operators a 10.5 percent salary hike over a 34-month period yesterday in its first pay offer.

The MTA's $210 million offer consisted of three 3.5 percent raises during the life of the contract, according to Walter Gellhorn, a Columbia University professor who was selected to act as spokesman during the final hours of contract talks.

The initial reaction of the leadership of the Transport Workers and Amalgamated Transit unions representing 35,000 employees was satisfaction that an offer had been made, ending a stalemate over procedure.

However, the terms were far short of what the unions hoped to extract from management. The union has said it seeks a 30 percent hike at the beginning of a 21-month contract, plus cost-of-living allowances.

The offer provided for a $35 million raise effective next Tuesday and identical raises on April 1 in each of the next two years. The financial payment would be for a 10-month period ending Jan. 31, 1980.

The MTA, faced with a $250 million operating deficit in the next fiscal year, had dismissed the union's initial 30 percent demand as "ridiculous and impossible."

Three of the city's commuter systems that fall under the jurisdiction of the MTA — the Transit Authority, the Long Island Rail Road and the Metropolitan Suburban Bus Authority on Long Island — face simultaneous strike deadlines of 12:01 AM tomorrow.

NEWS DIGEST

International

Iranian officials insisted yesterday they had received a conciliatory message from President Jimmy Carter and said the White House disclaimed it because of domestic political problems.

The message Carter allegedly sent revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini called for an international commission to resolve issues between the two countries, but said the panel should not meet before the release of 50 Americans who last night spent their 148th day as hostages inside the occupied U.S. Embassy.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said if Carter acknowledged the purported message, which cited mistakes in previous U.S. policy toward Iran, it would help in "reducing tension and resolving differences between Iran and the United States."

Ghotbzadeh told a Tehran news conference that Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr received a similar message from Carter on Sunday, "which indicates the continuation of such a dialogue in messages."

A top U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said the reported message "was a fabrication." He said he did not know where it originated and that it did not represent the views of Carter or his administration.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Josip Tito's doctors said yesterday there has been no substantial change in his condition, which they describe as "very grave."

"The health condition of the President of the Republic has not essentially changed compared to the previous day," according to the daily medical bulletin issued by the 87-year old leader's eight doctors. "Intensive treatment continues."

Saturday, Tito's doctors said there were signs Tito's pneumonia was abating, but that his high fever persisted. He also was described then as "very grave."

The weekend marked the beginning of Tito's third month of care at the Ljubljana Clinical Center in Slovenia. His kidneys have failed entirely, and he has been kept alive by an artificial kidney machine for more than a month.

Washington — With his signature today, Jimmy Carter sets in motion a slew of reforms that should help small savers battle inflation and change the way banks and thrift institutions do business.

The bill — called the most significant banking legislation since World War II — will phase out over six years all limits on the amount of interest banks and thrift institutions can pay savers.

This will be particularly helpful to small savers who rely on passbook accounts, which currently pay only 5.5 percent at thrift institutions and 5.25 percent at commercial banks.

The legislation encourages — but does not require — a specific board of federal regulators to increase passbook interest rates by at least 2.25 percentage points during the next six years. After that, banks and thrifts can pay anything they want to attract customers.

Cougar, Washington — Geologists flying over erupting Mount St. Helens reported yesterday the appearance of a second crater on the cone of the volcano with eerie blue lightning arcing between it and the first.

The 9,677-foot snow-covered peak in southwestern Washington had been mostly shrouded in clouds since it began erupting Thursday, in the first such display in the contiguous United States since 1917.

But the weather started clearing Saturday night, revealing the unusual sight, said U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Sylvia Brucchi in Vancouver, Washington, about 40 miles southwest of the mountain.

Mudflows on the mountain froze in the cold weather Saturday night, but plumes of steam and smoke continued to blast yesterday from both craters to an altitude of about 15,000 feet. No lava has emanated from the volcano, but earthquakes continued to rattle the mountain.

Fiscal Woes Haunt Media Center

By KIM MOGUL

What exactly is that building adjacent to the Lecture Center? Doesn't it contain dead bodies?

The Educational Communications Center (ECC), a multimillion dollar enterprise equipped with offices and rooms for the media is a mystery to most of the people at Stony Brook, and the source of many rumors.

ECC was built in the late 60's. It was one of Nelson Rockefeller's "state of the art" projects for the expansion of the University. Although the ECC building served as a morgue, it was built for the purpose of making visual aids in the form of videotapes for professors and was placed under the auspices of Continuing Education (CED). A staff of professionals were hired in 1969 when the equipment arrived.

It included equipment for photo labs, a sixteen track recording studio, two large television studios and numerous other facilities for television and film production.

According to Frank Bergert, a student employee of ECC, massive budget cuts began almost immediately following the opening of the building. "They [the professionals] had to cut $50,000 out of the equipment budget, so they cut one piece of equipment, the humidifier." The removal of the humidifier ultimately caused the rusting of remaining equipment.

Student Jeff Cohen, said, "Money wasn't allocated for the installation of the recording studio so Frank, Ed Becker [the audio engineer at ECC], and I spent hours putting the whole system together."

In 1971, Albany made a decision to withhold the color television equipment originally promised. By 1978, a skeleton staff was left because 75 percent of the staff had been fired or had quit due to these budget cuts. There was little activity up until this time. [Hartzell teaches three film courses for the Theatre Department.]

There have been many firings of directors, the most recent one being Frank Ryan. "he tried to get things started by going to Albany several times but he received no support. Albany just doesn't want to know this building exists," said Bergert.

Ryan's appointed successor Lewis Lusardi, has brought about favorable changes and an increase in activity in the building. Departments are now seeking out ECC for technical aid. "Tapes are being produced for the Chemistry Department," Lusardi said.

According to Lusardi, an idea was brought up to use the ECC building as a raining center for a communications minor. "On a list of what majors and minors students would like to see on campus, business was first and communications was second. There is now a business minor, and a committee headed by Dr. DeBoer [Assistant Dean for Undergraduate Studies] is working on a communications minor."

Considering the length of time it took for the University to establish a business minor, chances for a communications minor in the near future look dim. However, if a communications minor was incorporated into the curriculum, Albany would be forced to allocate the money for the equipment which the building lacks.

If there is enough student and faculty interest in making a "state of the art" production center out of ECC, Stony Brook could attract more students and possibly decrease the attrition rate, thereby finally making it a worthwhile investment.

"Stony Brook is a late 20th century phenomenon but as far as instructional media is concerned, it is in the 17th century," said Lusardi.

SB Club Honors General

A celebration commemorating the death of Toussaint L'Overture, a Haitian General who was killed for leading the movement to liberate Haitian slaves from French colonists will be held Thursday April 3 by the L'Overture Club (the Haitian students organization on campus). All students are invited.

Jules Germain, President of L'Overture Club, said the celebration will focus on Haitian culture. An all day fair will take place in the Union lounge followed by a presentation of Haitian Folklore dance featuring the Nago Dance Company at 6 PM in the Union auditorium. In addition, Germain said that Joubert Duval, sociologist and editor of Cahier de l'Etudiant (a Haitian-American student oriented magazine), will speak in the African Studies Library, on voodoo and the Haitian culture. The events will conclude with a disco party at Hendrix College at 10:30 PM.

L'Overture, who was killed on April 7,

1803, after being arrested and jailed by the French, because he was considered a threat to Napoleon Bonaparte, was a slave for 50 years before he set out to liberate his people from the bondage of slavery which had existed in Haiti since 1503. During the liberation period he became Governor General of Haiti. Germain said many historians claim that L'Overture was one of the most remarkable military leaders the world has ever known. His famous quote, spoken as he boarded a boat for France while under arrest is: "While rejecting me at Saint Domingue [Haiti's name before its independence], you are only cutting the trunk of the freedom tree of Blacks. It will grow back up by its roots because they are deep and plentiful."

Germain said that the 50 members of the L'Overture Club will also present a volley ball tournament in the gym and a party in Roth Cafeteria April 26 as a part of the "L'Overture Weekend."

The conference is geared toward career inquiries and opportunities of minority students and offers professionals representatives from such fields as public relations, media, medicine, law, the arts and psychology.

One of the areas to be dealt with during the conference are the issues facing the minority students at Stony Brook. Minority faculty and staff will be available to discuss academics, student activities and major areas of study.

The three day conference will commence at 3:45 PM with an address by Acting University President Richard Schmidt, and will be divided by occupation into various sections. Each presentation and its question and answer period will last a half hour. Following the presentations there will be a general reception.

Public Servants?

The primary purpose of a police force is to protect its constituents. It is sadly ironic that here at Stony Brook, it is the police who we need protection from.

Two recent arrests, those of Luis Aguilar, which he claims was discriminatory, and Natimba Themba, which he says involved police brutality, concern not only those involved, but the entire campus community as well. If either, or both, of these charges is true, it would be clear to all that many officers of Campus Security are nothing more than over-zealous individuals who have little regard for those they are supposed to protect. It is sad that they break the law they are sworn to uphold.

Aguilar's charge that Security racially discriminated against him when he was arrested for being in a building during a fire alarm evacuation, is one that will be difficult to prove. But even without the charge of discrimination, Aguilar has a good case against security's arresting him in the first place. Surely, obstructing governmental administration, for which he is charged, was not intended to include people who, after waiting outside at 3:00 AM for a sufficient period of time, returned to the stairwell of the building seeking warmth. Furthermore, the high-handed manner in which Aguilar was arrested merely furthers the image of Security officers as callous, uncaring enemies of the students.

Even more alarming was Themba's arrest for driving while intoxicated Saturday. Perhaps Themba was guilty of that crime. That is not going to be debated here. Nor do we intend to refute that Themba may have resisted arrest, though witnesses claim he did not. But what is of great concern is that Security, for no logical reason felt it necessary to beat, kick and punch Themba into submission. We feel that Themba, and all students as well, deserve an explanation from Security as to why this was allowed to happen.

It can be expected that Security will deny the charges in both the Aguilar and Themba cases. And although neither case has been legally decided, both Aguilar's and Themba's arguments are not without merit, for there are numerous witnesses in each case. And, certainly, the cuts and bruises on Themba's body that we saw when we visited him in Riverhead County Jail, were very real.

Recognize Artists

John Houseman brought up a very important point at the Stony Brook Foundation Dinner. Quoted on the front page of Friday's issue, it read, "Fundamentally, the artist always gets screwed, and, at the moment, they are ready to screw the arts royally." The implications here are many. Artists, including actors, actresses, musicians and other performers of the fine arts, have always been in the background when it comes to receiving funding and even recognition. Houseman, who founded The Juilliard School (of Theatre Arts), feels that in the end the artists get ignored, and when there is a budget cut to be made, they will be on the short end of the stick. We agree. Look at how long it took for the Fine Arts Center to be built after all the other departments.

There was no reason for this. The fine arts are just as valid a science as biology or chemistry. This is not to say that these sciences are overfunded. Adequate supplies are lacking in all departments. But, being a science-based school and due to the fact that artists have never been known for their strength in lobbying (in fact, as Houseman pointed out, many are too concerned with their work to be bothered with politicking), there is a chance Stony Brook will never be as strong in the arts as it should be.

At first glance, it appears that the Fine Arts Center is doing well in terms of funding. But, like the newborn baby who has attention showered upon him, what can assure us that this attention will continue to be given?

Students and faculty must be alert when the time comes and ready to recognize priorities and give equal emphasis to the arts and sciences. It is up to us to say what we want. The foundation, in awarding three artists Thursday night, reminded us of our debt to the arts, a debt that we must pay back in terms of honoring and supporting the arts in any way we can.

And, then, hopefully, no one will get screwed royally.

Staubach Likely to Retire

Dallas, (AP) — Roger Staubach, barring a last-minute change of heart, is expected to retire today after 11 years with the Dallas Cowboys in which he became the highest-rated passer in National Football League history.

Staubach's announcement is expected between 12 PM and 12:30 PM EST at Texas Stadium. "His inkling all the time was that he would retire," said Coach Tom Landry. "I haven't seen anything to say different."

Tex Schramm, president and general manager of the Cowboys, said, "Generally, you don't call a press conference to announce you're going to continue to play. I still have hopes he will continue to play another year."

The 38-year-old Staubach, who has guided Dallas to two Super Bowl victories, won his fourth league passing title in 1979 when he almost personally carried the Cowboys to an 11-5 record and the Eastern Division championship of the National Football Conference.

Staubach brought Dallas from behind five times to victory as the Cowboys' defense crumbled.

"We could have lost five more games if it hadn't been for Roger," said Landry. "He had a great year." Staubach also was knocked out five times, a statistic that concerned wife Marianne and the Cowboys' brass.

The former Naval Academy All-American went to doctors in New York City and Dallas for extensive examinations. Staubach has had no problems with the KOs although in one game he had no feeling in his legs for some 10 minutes.

Staubach, who was making some $200,000 a year, has extensive business interests here, including real estate. Also, he has numerous endorsements and is being heavily courted by the television networks as a commentator.

The 6-3, 202-pound Staubach holds a number of Super Bowl records and was the Most Valuable Player in Super Bowl VI.

Although he has been in numerous Pro Bowls, Staubach never made NFL All-Pro.

Staubach has a career completion percentage of over 56 percent and gained an average of over five yards everytime he rambled downfield on one of his famed scrambles.

Stony Brook May Close Down ^(V.23)

By JACK MILLROD

Governor Hugh Carey ordered the State University's Board of Trustees yesterday to examine the possibility of permanently closing the Stony Brook campus at the end of this year.

The order, which came as a complete shock to students, university officials, and local legislators alike, was based on the findings of the Massachusetts-based Sloan Commission on Government and Higher Education. The commission had hinted earlier that it would recommend closing, or at least downgrading, either the university center at Albany or Binghamton, but now insists that two of the four SUNY centers be immediately closed, citing Stony Brook and Binghamton as the most logical choices.

However, the University hospital would remain open. According to Carey, funds originally intended for the University would be channeled into the development of the hospital, with hopes of making it a superior tertiary care center, as originally intended.

"I cannot tell you how difficult it is for me to make the following announcement," Carey said at a press conference held yesterday immediately after an emergency session of the SUNY Trustees. "The state of New York does not have the resources to continue supporting four major university centers. The current economic state of emergency we find ourselves in requires swift and decisive action."

According to the plan outlined by the governor and supported by SUNY Chancellor Clifton Wharton, the Stony Brook university center, Wharton, the Stony Brook university center, if closed, will cease all operations this June, and await the report of another commission appointed to study the possible uses of the campus. The governor proposed that all Stony Brook undergraduates be automatically transferred to either Albany, Buffalo or Suffolk Community College.

"I am absolutely shocked," Richard Schmidt, Stony Brook's acting president, said hours after the governor's announcement. "I have called an emergency meeting of the Stony Brook Council for tomorrow and can have no further comment before then. I'm just shocked."

Vice President for Student Affairs Elizabeth Wadsworth, who asked not to be identified, said the announcement did not come as a complete shock. "We have fallen over 800 students short of enrollment goals and would certainly miss this fall's goal. The bottom has fallen out of our research, and a month ago the Chancellor said there was little hope of getting the $200 million more we need to finish the campus. Nobody has been saying much, but we knew something drastic may happen."

Wharton, who addressed the reporters after Carey, said that if the campus is closed, at least two-thirds of Stony Brook's 1,000 faculty members will be placed at other SUNY campuses, but he doubted that many of the campus' thousands of other employees would have the same opportunity. "If we could keep everybody on the payroll there would be no need to close Stony Brook," Wharton remarked.

Few local officials could be reached for comment, but Suffolk County

Executive Peter Cohalan said there would be "hell to pay" if the governor's plan was not rejected. "That university means millions to Long Island, and its closing would leave thousands out of work. There must be another way," he said.

Most students expressed amazement and disbelief when informed of the governor's announcement. "I've spent three years at Stony Brook," said senior Hershel Santano. "If they close this campus, where am I supposed to go now? Brockport or Potsdam?"

While few officials seem to know what would become of the Stony Brook campus if Carey's proposal became effective, the Evelyn Wood's Reading Dynamics program has expressed interest in the site. Another proposal would establish a small teacher's college similar to the one existing two decades ago in Oyster Bay.

Classes Cancelled Thursday, Friday

By JACK MILLROD

Acting University President Richard Schmidt has announced that all classes on Thursday and Friday of this week are cancelled.

The decision, which came after a two-hour meeting with his cabinet Friday, was made to give members of the University Community Good Friday off and to expand the spring recess originally scheduled to start next week. Schmidt said classes are being cancelled because of two unused snow days, and that many students will not be able to attend classes on those days.

When asked why the University did not cancel classes for the two holy days of Passover, Tuesday and Wednesday, Schmidt said that "that was not a possibility, there is not enough time to properly inform the entire campus population of such an action," and that would be in direct conflict with the State Board of Regents guidelines."

Those guidelines mandate that the University hold 75 days of classes each semester.

He added that there were no other days which classes could be cancelled because of vacation and that professors needed the time before finals to finish their syllabuses. "If we were to hold classes Thursday and Friday few would attend some professors would cancel classes and others would teach very little. "Very little of the syllabus will be covered," said Schmidt.

Despite this explanation, Stony Brook's Jewish community is outraged. Rabbi Alan Flammel and officers of both Hillel and Polity, when informed of the decision by Statesman, said they will take legal action against the University today and that they will hold a protest in front of the Administration Building at noon.

Flam, and others, charge that the University is violating the U.S. Constitution. Flam, who contacted the American Civil Liberties Union, said, "It's an open and shut case." "This is the worst case of religious discrimination I've heard of since the Holocaust. It's an utter outrage that such a highly regarded institution can do such a thing."

Polity President David Herzog said he will contact SUNY Chancellor Clifton Wharton today in hopes that a special meeting of the SUNY Board of Trustees will be convened to overrule Schmidt's decision.

Wharton and members of the trustees were unavailable for comment.

Hostages Refuse to Leave

Iran (A&P) — The ruling Revolutionary Council announced yesterday that Iran was now ready to release all 50 American hostages but that the hostages did not want to return to the U.S. A senior White House spokesman confirmed the report.

"It appears that the hostages are having such a good time over there that they do not want to come back," said one State Department official.

Reports from Iran

indicate that the hostages no longer speak English and converse in fluent Persian. "We try to feed them white bread," said Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotzabegh, "but they will only eat pita bread. It seems as if they have completely adapted to Iranian culture."

President Jimmy Carter, who called a hurried news conference, said that the U.S. will try and extradite the Americans. "I can't understand it," said Carter,

"things were going so well - I have been whipping Kennedy's ass, jogging in my fastest times yet, and now the hostages say they like it over there. This whole situation makes me look like a jackass."

Lillian Carter (the President's mother) who is known for her bluntness and candor, said, "If those traitors want to stay in Iran, let them. Personally, I couldn't give a flying fuck."

NEWS DIGEST

National

Wisconsin — In a surprise move, Ted Kennedy's campaign officials announced that the presidential hopeful has legally changed his name to John.

"I always liked the name John," the Massachusetts senator said, insisting that the move had nothing to do with his late brother's popularity. "A lot of people are going to say that I'm capitalizing on someone else's name," he said, "but the fact that my name slightly resembles another's is purely coincidental."

Reaction to the move has so far been overwhelming indifference. One Kennedy supporter, his wife Joan, expressed anticipation at the prospect of being married to John Kennedy. "I can't wait," she said. "Imagine — waking up every morning with John Kennedy."

Bayonne, N.J. — Mrs. Hannah Nussface of Pathmark Lane reported yesterday that she has been seeing a UFO over Bayonne every day for 24 years.

"Ever since we moved here in 1955," Mrs. Nussface told Princeton University astronomers, "the same UFO has appeared at about 6:30 in the morning. It's big and round and gives off an extremely bright yellow light." She said "it moves slowly across the sky, disappearing behind the oil refineries in the west at about 7:30 PM." She added that the exact times of the UFO's emergence and disappearance change with the season.

Princeton astronomers have offered no explanation. "We're still looking into it," said Professor Charles Meathook. "We can't say for sure that it's a spacecraft, but we just can't seem to find a scientific explanation, either." George Koala, a NASA aeronautics expert brought in to investigate this phenomenon, suggested, "It might be a weather balloon."

Washington — In a surprise White House announcement yesterday, President Jimmy Carter said that the deposed Shah of Iran would become a special assistant for economic affairs.

"We feel that Mohammed possesses the necessary qualities to stem the rampant inflation which is plaguing our country," said Carter's press secretary Jody Powell. "His vast knowledge of oil will also be a tremendous asset to our energy program," Powell added.

The Shah, who is recovering from surgery in Egypt, is expected to assume his responsibilities next month.

We ~~Approve~~ Protest

Statesman applauds Gov. Carey's recommendation to close Stony Brook down by the end of 1980. With all the attrition, vandalism, and having to take hard courses, we feel that it is a good idea to close it down, and send students to easier schools like Albany and Suffolk. After all, we're paying for it, so why should we have to suffer?

In the past few months, there have been numerous budget cuts, and ultimately everyone is effected. Clubs have been cut, and it's getting harder and harder to put out even a lousy eight-page paper. With no money, publications like Statesman can't pay writers. Look at the editors of the Press, do you think they like writing all that copy themselves? Look at us, do you think we like printing all those stories by Ap (our most prolific writer)?

With the lack of funds, maybe it's better to just eliminate the University altogether. In having to cut corners and not being able to afford certain activities basic to life (such as concerts by the Rolling Stones, The Who, the BeeGees, etc.), we are being forced to settle for less.

If the University is closed, there would be no need for any campus publications such as States...wait a minute. They can't close Stony Brook! Where will we go to hang out, at sleazy end-hall parties? Where will we get our drugs if everyone is shipped off to Albany? What do they have there, anyway?

We feel that Carey has his priorities screwed up. Why not close the hospital instead? What's more important, health or parties? We have enough hospitals, anyway, what with Mather and St. Charles and Smithtown General.

Statesman urges students to protest this latest move by Carey and his administration cohorts.

Pool Tables' Rights

As of last night, 22 Stony Brook students had died through the actions of seemingly faulty pool tables in the Stony Brook Union Bowling Center. Bowling Center Manager Sam O'Steinfeld and Director of Public Safety Robert Cornute have received many complaints from friends and families of the deceased about the alleged tragedy. We feel, however, that the pool tables side of the story is being completely ignored.

O'Steinfeld said that as far as he knew, the pool tables only attacked when students tampered with them by inserting their hands into the pockets. If this is true, then one is to assume that the pool tables merely acted in self-defense.

Furthermore, this issue brings to light the full-scale violation of pool table's rights on campus. Pool tables are not represented in Polity. There is not one pool table on the Stony Brook Council. A pool table has never been a Class A member of the FSA or in any other position of responsibility at Stony Brook, nor has one ever been editor of Statesman. In addition, no provisions have ever been made or even suggested to allow pool tables to easily get around campus. For example, the corridors in Hendrix and Dreiser Colleges are too narrow to admit pool tables.

This is clearly the result of discrimination. Statesman urges students, faculty and administration to recognize pool tables as active and vital members of the Stony Brook community and, especially, to give them a fair trial in this most recent case against them.

Statesman Staff Saladified

In an as yet unexplained incident, all of the editors of Stony Brook's student newspaper Statesman turned into lettuce by Saturday afternoon.

The first indications of change, according to Infirmiry nurse Toots LaRue, came at 9:30 AM on Friday when Statesman editor-in-chief Mark Schussel "came into the Infirmiry complaining of a greenish tinge on his fingertips and an inexplicable fear of salad forks." She added, "We immediately sent him to Walter Matthau hospital but there was nothing they could do but suggest immediate refrigeration."

Within four hours of Schussel's admittance to the hospital, News Director Nate Rabinovich was brought to the Infirmiry after he had reportedly tried to wrap himself in cellophane. "At that point," said LaRue, "we saw a pattern emerging, and decided to bring in all Statesman editors for testing."

However, it was to no avail. Although all of the editors were located and admitted to Matthau Hospital, nothing could be done to prevent their vegetation. Dr. Heinrich Blutzeit, head of Pathology at Matthau, said, "We were totally unequipped to deal with this problem — we thought it had already been eradicated in the Metropolitan area."

All of the editors were placed in intensive care. As soon as they were admitted the remainder of the Statesman staff was there to interview those editors who were still able to communicate. While Schussel, Rabinovich, and News Editor Howie Saltz lay green and immobile in their hospital gowns, Statesman spoke with Associate Editor Ben Berry.

"It's crazy; I was in my room, alone, with my cello, when all of a sudden Security came in with a giant crisper." When asked if he was upset that he was about to become lettuce, he replied, "It could be worse. At least I won't have to do production nights."

Artie Rothschild, a sports editor, was also interviewed. He appeared optimistic. "I'm rarely down there. It won't happen to me. And now, I can put in all the classifieds I want."

But 24 hours later, he, too, had succumbed to "saladification," which it quickly came to be called.

By 1:30 PM Saturday the transformation was complete. The victims, all editors of Statesman, resembled ordinary heads of lettuce in every way except for the hospital gowns and identification bracelets placed on each lettuce. They were kept at 45 degrees until early this morning, when they were returned to campus with hopes that their recovery will be quicker in their natural environment. They are now in the Statesman refrigerator. Doctors from across the country are still working on a cure.

ONCE HUMAN Statesman editors are now little more than vegetables.

JUNIOR BOB TOASTMASTER being drawn into a faulty Union pool table.

22 Students Killed By SB Pool Tables

"Aaauggghh!" quipped junior Bob Toastmaster as he was sucked into a pool table at the Stony Brook Union Bowling Center at 10:33 last night. He was the 22nd student to die in this manner in the last two days.

According to Gary Cats, President of the Stony Brook Volunteer Ambulance Corps, Toastmaster and the 21 other students died instantly as they were drawn into the tables. "They died because the human body cannot be forced into the shape of a regulation pocket without death or serious injury resulting," he explained.

When asked why the previously harmless pool tables had suddenly turned killer, Director of Public Safety Robert Cornute replied, "New parts were installed in them over the weekend. We checked with the factory which supplied them, Hoover Incorporated, but everything seemed to be in line." He added that in the meantime the Union pool tables are being held for questioning and will not be available for student use for "an indefinite amount of time." When asked why they were not removed after the first death, Cornute replied, "At first we thought they were just freak accidents."

Why have only 22 died and not everyone who has come in contact with these pool tables? Bowling Center Manager Sam O'Steinfeld theorized: "It's probably when they [the students] scratch and stick their hands into the pockets. We can't be sure; it happens too quickly."

Several billiards partners of the deceased were interviewed. "We were just getting in a quick game of eight ball before the Health Shop opened when all of a sudden Joe was gone," remarked Roth resident Robert Rotifer. "He had the room keys in his pocket, too."

Patriots Hung Better Than Hofstra

Uh, oh yeah. You shoulda seen it. The Stony Brook Patriots Hanging Out Team ripped apart those Hofstra muthas in the Pats' first meet of the season, which ran from Thursday to Saturday, by a score of 92-4. (Drink beer.)

Junior Tom Scungilli of the Pats (burp) was the leading scorer in the game, managing to sleep for three days straight (except for daily beer-and-pizza breaks), missing all eleven of the classes, and not changing his socks at all (awright!). A close second was our Bob Carbonara, who accidentally bought a textbook — that cost him ten points.

The only moment of worry for the Patriots came on Friday afternoon, when senior Brutus Deltoid went to hang out at SCOOP records and bought a Springsteen album. The referees called a penalty, but Coach Pinbrain argued that Springsteen is great hanging out music, and the decision was reversed. (Drip pizza grease onto Pro-Keds.)

Coach Pinbrain was happy about the victory. "The boys deserved it," he said. "They practiced all month for the meet."

The next meet is the week of April 13 against Suffolk Community College, Stony Brook's toughest competitor. We wanna see ya there! (Wipe mouth off with sleeve.)
