Stu's Favorite Quote: "My fans, what about my fans?"

I had the privilege last week to attend Stu Cohen's farewell ceremony, for Chemistry's 30+ year Operations Manager. In typical fashion the affair was low key but with many nice touches. Friends and family listened to President Marburger thank Stu for his dedicated professional service to the Chemistry Department. The President recounted how Stu, the University's "first football coach helped us on the road to Division I." Al Silverstein, the Director of Labs, recalled how he cleverly changed Stu's title to Operations Manager (loose translation: you name it, Stu will do it.) Al was emotional at times remembering the crises they both faced together and finding it hard to say good bye to a colleague and friend. Al concluded by comparing Stu's work at Stony Brook as "being the head of the household."

When it was Stu's turn, true to form he left the prepared remarks in his coat and had to speak from the heart which was great. During Stu's remarks George Marshall and I remembered the decision to turn power back on Grad Chem. Stu's fans were down for awhile. Fortunately, Stu was there when needed; he had a funny knack of being right and being there when needed.

Thanks Stu, for the mentoring you have given me. I will try and make sure that your fans get the care and feeding they are accustomed to. We have the tee shirt that states you survived 30 years of Chemistry; the real question is: how will Grad Chemistry survive without you?
