Justification of cost for Mike Barnett:

- Assists with film analysis
- Assists head coach with miscellaneous activities

Mike Barnett is currently serving as the head coach of the Division 3 Stony Brook Rugby team, as well as the assistant coach of the Division 1 team. Having played for stony brook rugby himself, he possesses valuable knowledge of both of the playing and coaching aspects of our team. This understanding gives him great insight as a motivator, knowing when to push the student-athlete and when to concede, which harbors a positive and upbeat attitude that is reflected at every practice. Without Coach Barnett, the development of the younger players would come to a screeching halt, and Stony Brook rugby would slowly fade back into obscurity. He exudes leadership, teaches fun, and expects nothing less than each and every player's best.

Coach Barnett is also a necessary member of the rugby coaching team for safety reasons. New kids come in every day to practice, which is excellent for the program, but also creates many players at different levels in their development. Before, this meant a safety hazard, since new athletes with bad technique are much more likely to hurt themselves and other players than more experienced players. However, Coach Barnett created a comprehensive practice plan that incorporates all these players of different levels and safely brings them together.
