LIBRARY SELECTIONS FOR TIME CAPSULE :

A group of staff gathered to use suggestions and add more ideas for the Time Capsule which will be opened in 50 years. This is what was selected. Kristen Nyitray will send this summary to Office of Communications. A committee will review all campus submissions this month and, by the end of July, qualified entries will be selected. The capsule installation ceremony will happen in the fall.

1) iPod

The University Libraries will download audio and video content to an iPod that represents the collections, services, and programs it offers. The files will include: podcasts (tour of the Main Library and other programs); photographs; digitized books; maps and aerial images of the campus and Long Island; the fanfare from the Music Library opening; and the current library strategic plan.

2) Book

Stony Brook: State University of New York by Kristen J. Nyitray and Ann M. Becker (Charleston, SC: Arcadia Publishing, 2002).

This book documents the University's evolution from a small teacher preparatory college into a world-renowned research institution. The images presented in this book highlight the significant scientific, technological, academic, and artistic achievements of the University. Each photograph is accompanied by descriptive narrative.

3) Library Stress Reliever

In 2006, the library successfully brought up version 17 of its integrated library system, Aleph. This effort established Stony Brook library as a major player in the development of large academic library systems. This spongy, hand-size object looks like a keyboard with Aleph 17 written on the monitor. It was given to all those who worked on the upgrade.
