RECYCLEMANIA = Recycle(means adapt to a new use)
+ mania(means intense enthusiasm)

(Submitted by David Weiner)

As you all know, Stony Brook University is participating in the National Collegiate Recyclemania Contest to see which university campus can reduce, reuse and recycle the most campus waste. We're one of only 200 universities in the United States, and the only one on Long Island participating. This program expires on April 7th.

As a member of the "Green Team," I (aka David) think that it's vital that we do our part to help with this environmental friendly program.

In order for the Library to do its part please check your areas for any documents, reports or any other files that can be recycled. Either bring them to the Circulation bins or order your own department bin!

I have two large canvas recycling bins upstairs or you can contact Recycling in order to have a bin delivered to your area: <http://www.stonybrook.edu/centralservices/recycling/>. I've heard through the grapevine, that Harvard is averaging about 1 ton of paper a day from their libraries. We're averaging a few pounds! OK, I made that one up. In Main Circ., we've recycled old documents, copies of articles and reprints, bills, and card applications; handouts that had misinformation; date due cards that are no longer used; Gift Books that couldn't be sold, etc. So, look through some of your old file cabinets and start recycling paperwork that is no longer needed.

Thank you all. Let's help make this program a success for Stony Brook!
