STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK AT STONY BROOK

May 9, 1987

Commencement May 15 On Athletic Field

There will be several changes in Stony Brook's commencement ceremony, to be held this year on May 15.

The ceremony will begin at 11 a.m., several hours earlier than in previous years. It will be held on the athletic field behind the gymnasium, which will become the permanent site. Faculty and staff volunteers should line up on the Zebra stripe between Graduate Chemistry and the library, at 10:15 a.m. behind Post Number One. At 10:30 a.m., the north and main entrances will be closed. All cars will be directed to the South P-lot, where an express bus will take them to the commencement site. IF IT DRIZZLES, the main ceremony will be held, but shortened. If it rains, a decision on whether to cancel will be made at 8 a.m. Tune in to local radio stations.

Faculty and staff planning on participating in the academic procession may rent caps and gowns at the bookstore during working hours or on Commencement Day, beginning at 8 a.m.

Summa cum laude graduates will be recognized for the first time. Doctoral degree recipients will be hooded in place and will rise as a group with their advisors, rather than approaching the stage individually.

The commencement area will be fenced in, and gates will be closed once the ceremony starts. Graduates who leave the area will not be permitted back in; deliveries of items to graduates will be prohibited.

Bagpipe music will precede the graduates, as they are led from assembly

Marburger Announces Changes In Administrative Staffing

Several major administrative changes, part of an on-going transition to a new management structure, were announced May 2 by President John H. Marburger.

The actions include:

- the appointment of Vice-President Carl E. Hanes to the position of Deputy to the President for Special Projects.
- the appointment of Associate Vice-President and Controller Richard Brown to Acting Vice-President for Campus Finance and Management.
- the appointment of Richard Wueste from Director to Assistant Vice-President for General Institutional Services.

The changes are the second stage of an administrative reorganization plan recommended by a Presidential Ad Hoc Committee on Administrative Organization after a four-month study of the university's administrative operations.

The first stage was announced in March when President Marburger appointed Presidential Fellow and management expert Professor Stan Altman as Deputy to the President. At that time, Dr. Marburger also created a search committee to find a candidate to fill a new position, Vice-President for Campus Services which replaces the old position of Vice-President for Campus Operations.

In his new position as Deputy to the President for Special Projects, Mr. Hanes, Stony Brook's most senior administrative vice-president, will assume responsibility for what Dr. Marburger termed "certain large and extremely important projects that profoundly affect the future of the entire campus." The most urgent of these, he said, is a power co-generation facility (electricity and heat) that has the potential of resolving long-standing campus financial and operational problems related to provision of utilities to the campus.

For the past two years, the university has been running several million dollars in arrears on its Long Island Lighting Company bills, a reflection of inadequate State funding for utilities coupled with the downstate region's high energy costs. Dr. Marburger said that Mr. Hanes' "experience with the campus and his

Barnes Off To Albany, Young Acting Director

Public Safety Director Gary Barnes has requested and received a special presidential assignment to work in Albany over the next several months with Dr. Bruce McBride, State Director of Public Safety Services for 29 SUNY public safety departments.

Mr. Barnes will work with Dr. McBride in exploring SUNY-wide problems in public safety. The assignment is effective May 9.

Richard Young has been named acting director of Public Safety. In addition, John Delamer, reporting to Mr. Young, will oversee Public Safety operations at the Health Sciences Center/Hospital.

Volunteers Ignore Showers, Clean-Up A Big Success Here

Almost 200 faculty, staff and students braved threatening skies and occasional showers to participate in Stony Brook's first campus clean-up April 29.

Spirits were high despite the weather. "We had a great time," said Eileen Dellaposta, of the Office of Institutional Studies, who helped repaint the "Zebra Stripe" walkway. For many, pride at pitching in for a common goal was just as satisfying. "I think it's a good idea for people to accept ownership of the campus," said Lee Brossoit, G Quad Director, as he raked and leveled a bed of wood chips. "We all spend time here and we're all responsible for our university."

When the day was through, volunteers had washed windows and repainted in several buildings, picked up 150 bags of trash, built a split-rail fence, cleared brush and planted shrubs, and used shovels, rakes and feet to create a wood-chip path. Among the work crews were legislatures Kenneth LaValle and James Lack.

The event concluded with a "thank-you" party that was an opportunity for volunteers to celebrate their own accomplishments. Aching muscles were forgotten as clean-up workers—sporting complimentary visors and buttons proclaiming "I Cleaned Up At Stony Brook"—lined up for cake bearing the same message. Clean-up coordinator Ann Forkin thanked the crowd for "working out there in the thunder and lightning". Rod Crowell, custodial services supervisor, praised the university's grounds crews, who had done preparatory work at the clean-up sites earlier in the week. "Sometimes we get darts thrown at us, so this was our time to feel good," he commented. "We worked together, accomplished what we set out to do, and everyone had a good time."

site to commencement area by members of the Saffron Kilts piping organization.

Honorary degrees will be awarded this year to: Sir Richard Doll, an eminent epidemiologist who has pioneered the study of environmental determinants of cancer; Bernard Greenhouse, cellist of international reputation and professor emeritus of Stony Brook's Department of Music; Barrett Hazeltine, leader in the development of engineering education and associate dean of the college of engineering at Brown University; Theodore Lowi, John L. Senior Professor of American Institutions at Cornell University and one of America's most distinguished political scientists; Frederick Morgan, editor of "The Hudson Review", a leading literary publication; Carl Schorske, distinguished scholar of modern European history and Emeritus Professor of History at Princeton University; and Robert Weinberg, progenitor of oncogene research to explain the etiology of human cancer. Schorske will give this year's commencement address.

effectiveness with external agencies" are essential ingredients for the success of the power plant and other projects which will come under his wing.

Mr. Brown will serve in his new post until a search is concluded for a permanent Vice-President for Campus Finance and Management who will be responsible for finance, budget and management control functions in the Budget Office, Grants Management Office and an array of financial offices previously reporting to the Associate Vice-President and Controller. The Vice-President for Campus Finance and Management will also supervise the Public Safety and Environmental Health and Safety Departments and other campus operations whose functions are more related to management and control than to the provision of services.

Three remaining units previously under the arm of the Vice-President for Administration, a position which has been eliminated under the reorganization, will report to the Office of the President: General Institutional Services, Physical Facilities and Human Resources.

Dr. Marburger has asked Mr. Hanes to assist in the supervision of these three areas until a Vice-President for Campus Finance and Management and a candidate for the previously announced position of Vice-President for Campus Services are in place.

Other changes being implemented under 1986 SUNY "flexibility" legislation that is making it possible for the university to increase accountability and reward good management and service, include the promotion of Mr. Wueste who, Dr. Marburger said, "already has been managing with exemplary energy, imagination and effectiveness." As Assistant Vice-President for General Institutional Services, Mr. Wueste will also be responsible for purchasing and transportation services, areas closely allied with those he presently oversees.

Physical Facilities will continue to report to Assistant Vice-President Tuncay Aydinalp who, Dr. Marburger noted, "has provided superb leadership for this area during the time he has been at Stony Brook."

Human Resources will continue to report to Assistant Vice-President Jurgen Krause under a provisional administrative structure established in the fall of 1986, in which there are two Directors, one for the Health Sciences campus, Alyce Hobbs, and another for the main campus. Louis Rose, Director of Employment at the University of Chicago, has been named to the latter post, Dr. Marburger announced.

"These actions affect the lives of some of Stony Brook's most loyal and able employees. I am grateful for the understanding and cooperation they have shown as we worked together to forge a new administrative configuration to meet the challenges of our rapidly changing environment," Dr. Marburger said.

30th A Hit!

From music makers to proclamation presenters (like County Executive Halpin's representative, Steve Israel (below, left) and Legislator Steven Englebright (right) everyone had a good time May 1 as thousands joined to celebrate the university's 30th year. Photog Sue Dooley captured the flavor of the event.

New Chemical Biology Lab Made Possible By Grant

The Leo and Judy Zickler Laboratory of Chemical Biology in the Department of Pharmacological Sciences was formally dedicated recently, the facility made possible by a $250,000 donation from prominent businessman and philanthropist Leo Zickler of Bethesda, Maryland.

The laboratory, which contains state-of-the-art molecular biology and cell culture facilities, was created to further the work of Dr. Edward Reich, who joined the department last year.

Reich, distinguished professor of pharmacological sciences and professor of medicine, is internationally renowned for his work on growth factors as they relate to human melanoma and for studies that provided the foundation for an understanding of the enzyme plasminogen activator, used to dissolve blood clots.

Leo Zickler is president and chief executive officer of the Bethesda-based Oxford Development Corporation, one of the five largest residential builders in the nation. He was named the National Housing Conference's "Man of the Year" last year for his work in the development of low- and middle-income housing. Zickler is also a member of a congressional task force charged with making recommendations on housing policy, production and finance.

The laboratory dedication was highlighted by a lecture given by Dr. Daniel Nathans, professor of molecular biology and genetics at Johns Hopkins University and 1978 Nobel Laureate in Medicine. Nathans, whose lecture was titled "Genomic Response to Growth Factors," had worked with Reich at Rockefeller University.

The laboratory donation was not the first gift to the university from Zickler. Three years ago, he donated $75,000 to establish a microinjection facility at the Department of Pharmacological Sciences. The equipment purchased allows researchers to develop techniques to further replication of DNA by injecting it directly into cells.

"Establishment of the Zickler Laboratory was an important factor in attracting Dr. Reich to Stony Brook," says Dr. Arthur Grollman, chairman of the Department of Pharmacological Sciences. "We are grateful for Mr. Zickler's generous support."

Addendum

Last week's story on the May 8 Sunwood Chamber Players 2 p.m. concert inadvertently omitted the location. The concert will be held at the St. James Lutheran Church, Woodlawn Avenue, St. James. For information, call 2-7002.
