STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK AT STONY BROOK

November 2, 1987

Veterans Home Groundbreaking Nov. 10

Governor Mario Cuomo will head a list of dignitaries attending groundbreaking ceremonies for the Long Island State Veterans Home, to be built on the Stony Brook campus and operated by the Health Sciences Center.

The program commemorating the groundbreaking and a reception will take place on Tuesday, November 10, at 2 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center. All members of the campus community, especially veterans, are welcome.

Scheduled for opening in 1990, the 350-bed nursing home for veterans will be located in a wooded area to the east of HSC, approached by an access road off of East Loop Road. The site is bordered on the east by Pond Path.

Total construction costs for the State Veterans Home will be approximately $25 million, with the federal government funding 65 percent of this cost and New York State the remainder. When the facility is in full operation, it will have a staff of about 400 full-time employees.

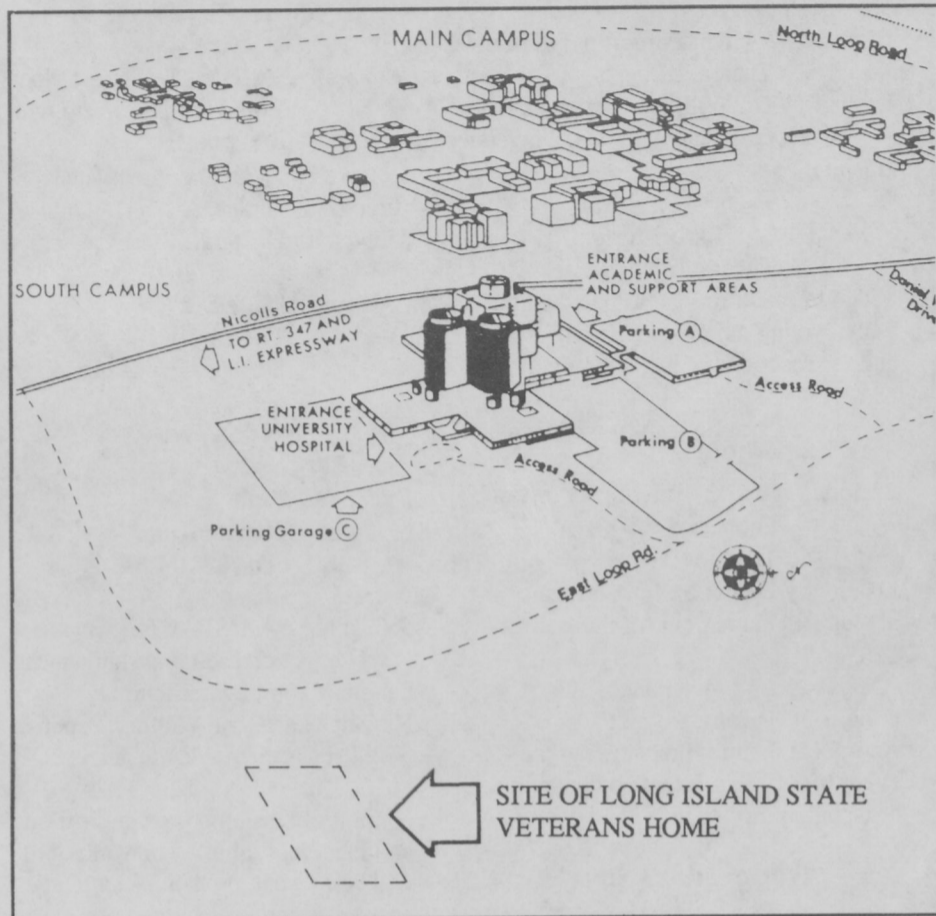

The home will provide comprehensive care to meet the medical, nursing, rehabilitation, and social needs of its residents. Faculty physicians of the School of Medicine will provide medical services to patients and, when necessary, will transfer patients to University Hospital. Regular clinics will offer medical, dental, optometric, podiatric, and speech-audiology services.

There will be two special-care units at the veterans home, each containing 25 beds. One will serve patients with senile dementias, including Alzheimer's disease, and the other, patients requiring respiratory care.

Nursing services will be offered by a staff working closely with the faculty of the School of Nursing. Therapeutic services—physical, occupational, recreational, and respiratory therapy—will be offered at the home in conjunction with the faculty of the School of Allied Health Professions. In addition, a day-care program will serve up to 50 patients from the community on a daily basis.

By 1990, there will be an estimated 2.8 million veterans in the state, of whom 10.5 percent will live in Nassau and Suffolk Counties. A large number of area veterans is expected at the groundbreaking ceremony.

On-Campus Travel Agency Opens

By WILLIAM OBERST

If you travel for business or pleasure—that includes flying in airplanes, checking into hotels, and renting cars—you stand to profit from a new campus travel service that guarantees the lowest rates available. If you can find a lower rate, the service will double the difference and put that money in your pocket.

Omega World Travel, a travel organization headquartered in Virginia, has just opened an agency in a corner of the Barnes & Noble bookstore on Main Campus. The firm had $76 million in bookings during 1976 and is one of the largest contractors for U.S. government travel. It is managing, and staffing, the university's travel agency in the same way that an outside food service manages cafeteria service.

"We're creating a total travel program for members of the university community," said Paul Madonna, assistant vice president and business manager, who conceived of the idea for Stony Brook. "It's based on the idea that contractual services can provide benefits to the campus without cost to the campus."

Madonna said that Omega paid for renovations to the bookstore. Its southeast corner now looks like self-contained, walk-in travel agency, with an entrance inside the store, another on the Library-Fine Arts Center plaza, and a full-time staff of three Omega travel professionals.

Richard Wueste, director of general institutional services, said that the university is "moving into a process called travel management, where you look at travel as a manageable expense. Up to this point, travel has been rule-bound and regulated. It hasn't been effectively managed. The payback can be in the hundreds of thousands of dollars for this campus."

OPEN FOR BUSINESS: Scarlett Goldstein, manager of the campus's new travel agency, will find you the lowest rates available.

If you're planning a trip, the number to call is 632-7799. Travellers who make two or more trips a year should submit travel profiles to Omega (obtainable from the agency) giving their airline-seating, hotel, and car-rental preferences, along with their home phone in case the agency has to call at the last minute with a flight cancellation. Omega will deliver tickets right to your office. Faculty, staff, and students are also entitled to membership in Omega's discount vacation club.

Paul Mulligan, assistant director of auxiliary services, is coordinating the travel program for the university. He said that because of deregulation, there can be big differences in air fares. "Omega will scan every fare between two points and guarantee that the fare you get is the lowest," he said.

Stony Brook's on-campus travel agency is a first for SUNY. If it works, the state will extend the concept to other campuses, he said.

Yeats Archivist Is Appointed

Peggy Leadaman McMullen has been appointed assistant librarian and archivist for the William Butler Yeats Microfilmed Manuscripts Collection in the Department of Special Collections at the Frank Melville, Jr. Memorial Library.

McMullen has been serving as assistant archivist for the Yeats Collection. In her new title, she will be responsible for the final processing of the reformatted manuscripts as well as the preparation of finding aids for the unique collection of copies of more than 80,000 pages of manuscripts and letters of the Irish playwright and poet.

Innovative Program In Endocrinology Being Established

By MAXINE SIMSON

The Endocrine Division, Department of Medicine, is establishing a program in Clinical Neuroendocrinology aimed at evaluating and treating patients with hypothalamic-pituitary disease.

Dr. Marie Gelato, who recently joined the department as the director of University Hospital's metabolic unit, has a special interest in neuroendocrinology and is heading the new program. She was previously at the National Institutes of Health and has done many studies investigating the utility of hypothalamic factors in the diagnosis and treatment of patients with pituitary tumors.

The metabolic unit provides a unique setting in which to approach patients' problems in a multi-disciplinary way. Physicians can evaluate situations in depth and investigate hormonal, metabolic, nutritional, and psychological factors.

The metabolic unit also serves as an avenue to test new diagnostic and therapeutic tools under clinical investigation. The Brookhaven National Laboratory extends the unit's services by providing the latest in scanning techniques to visualize the brain and the pituitary gland, both functionally and structurally.

The last 10 years have seen an explosion of knowledge in how the brain regulates the pituitary gland. These advances have been possible because of new technology. These contributions have led to a clearer understanding of how the brain regulates pituitary gland function.

Stony Brook

AIDS 1987. The Facts of Life.

Stony Brook presents a two-week series of theatre, film, video, lectures, conversations, and symposia on AIDS beginning Nov. 9. All programming will take place in various theatres in the Fine Arts Center. Below is a schedule of events. For additional information, call the Department of Theatre Arts at 632-7300.

Monday, Nov. 9

12 noon "AIDS: Portrait of an Epidemic" Theatre III
Lecture by Dr. William Greene, associate professor of clinical medicine, University Hospital.

8:00 p.m. "An Early Frost" Theatre III
Video of made-for-TV movie dealing with a young man's diagnosis of AIDS, and the reactions of his lover and family.

Tuesday, Nov. 10

12 noon "AIDS: The Impact on our Economy" Theatre III
Lecture by Daniel M. Fox, professor of humanities in medicine at Stony Brook.

8:00 p.m. "Parting Glances" Theatre III
An upbeat feature film showing the effect of AIDS on New York's young, hip, punk, party culture.

Wednesday, Nov. 11

12 noon "AIDS: Relevance to the College Student" Theatre III
Lecture by Dr. Rachel Bergeson, acting director, University Health Services.

8:00 p.m. "Safe Sex" Theatre II
Written by Harvey Fierstein, the author of "Torch Song Trilogy" and the musical hit "La Cage Aux Folles." "Safe Sex" had its premiere last season at the famed Cafe La Mama. Three one-acts that offer decidedly different views on the impact of AIDS.

Thursday, Nov. 12

12 noon "AIDS: The Psycho-Social Impact of Death and Dying" Theatre III
Lecture by Lynn Davis, assistant director of nurses, AIDS Unit, University Hospital.

8:00 p.m. "Safe Sex" Theatre III
See Nov. 11 listing.

Friday, Nov. 13

7:00 p.m. "Safe Sex" Theatre III
See Nov. 11 listing.

9:00 p.m. "AIDSFACTS: Symposium" Location to be announced.
Co-chaired by Drs. Robert O. Hawkins and Rose Walton. Panelists will discuss the epidemic and its effects on the Long Island community. Methods of prevention and facts regarding its transmission will be presented. A question-and-answer period will follow.

Saturday, Nov. 14

8:00 p.m. "Safe Sex" Theatre II
See Nov. 11 listing.

Monday, Nov. 16

12 noon "AIDS: Sex in the 80s" Theatre III
A "how-to" presentation by Bette Coppola, M.Ed., coordinator, AIDS Education Project, School of Allied Health Professions

8:00 p.m. "AIDS: Changing the Rules" Theatre II
A video. From the free-wheeling, 'free-love' of the 1960s, through the 'me generation' of the 1970s, to the new conservatism of the 1980s. How AIDS has caused us to look at the rules of sexual intimacy.

Tuesday, Nov. 17

1:00 p.m. The People with AIDS Theatre Workshop
Location to be announced.
A performance of a work-in-progress by this New York City group. Designed as a testament and record of those most affected by AIDS, and a focus for their creative energies. Seth Glassman, artistic director, describes the production as the "Chorus Line" of AIDS.

8:00 p.m. "Can AIDS Be Stopped?" Theatre III
This video provides recent facts about AIDS, explains the disease, and explores significant research findings.

Wednesday, Nov. 18

12 noon "The AIDS Show" Theatre II
A video about artists involved with death and survival. Award-winning play by the Theatre Rhinoceros, San Francisco.

8:00 p.m. "An Enemy Among Us" Theatre III
A video. The touching story of a high-school boy who contracts AIDS through a transfusion. The board of education bans him from class; his girlfriend rejects him. Gladys Knight (of the Pips) is the voice of reason in this compelling story.

Thursday, Nov. 19

12 noon "AIDS: A Political Discussion" Theatre III

8:00 p.m. The People with AIDS Theatre Workshop
Location to be announced. See Nov. 17 listing.

Friday, Nov. 20

12 noon Discussion with members of high-risk groups Theatre III

8:00 p.m. "Safe Sex" Theatre II
See Nov. 11 listing.

Saturday, Nov. 21

8:00 p.m. "Safe Sex" Theatre II

(part of the brain) can either decrease or increase pituitary hormone release. Abnormalities in these factors may cause pituitary disease. This information has given physicians a new approach to patients with pituitary disorders. In the past, the only method for treatment was surgery. Now, with this new understanding, medical management of the disorders is an option.

The pituitary gland, located at the base of the brain, controls most of the glands in the body, such as the thyroid, adrenal gland, ovary, and testis. Pituitary tumors may arise when brain function becomes abnormal. The tumors can cause overproduction of some of the hormones made by the pituitary, or, in some cases, destroy the gland and prevent it from producing hormones. These problems can lead to growth failure in children, infertility, diabetes mellitus (increased blood sugar), hypertension, and arthritis. Since the consequences of pituitary disease are serious, it is important to have sensitive ways of diagnosing the disease. New knowledge of brain factors has provided ways of diagnosing the disease early.

Mystery Man Identified

Former SUNY trustee James J. Warren has written that the individual mis-identified as Sam Gould in a groundbreaking photo in our September 28 "We're 30!" edition is Birch McMoran, former New York State Superintendent of Public Works.

Appointment

Rhoda Selvin, assistant vice provost for undergraduate studies, has been selected by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the State of New York to serve on the grievance committee for the Tenth Judicial District. Her term will expire in 1991.

On the Road

Sheldon J. Reaven, Department of Technology and Society and the Waste Management Institute in Marine Sciences, gave the keynote address at the 6th National Recycling Congress held in Austin, Texas on Oct. 13-17. His talk was titled "Long Island's Garbage Barge: What Really Happened—and Why?"

Herbert Herman, Department of Materials Science & Engineering, gave a series of three lectures Oct. 19-21 at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City on thermal sprayed protective coatings and the plasma spraying of oxide coatings. The lectures were part of the university's Special Lecture Series in Metallurgy.

Elaine Kaplan will attend a meeting of the Association for Continuing Higher Education in Indianapolis on Nov. 8-10. She will present a paper in the "New Directions in Adult Learning" session titled "Joint Admissions and the Adult Learner."

THE GREAT APPLE GIVEAWAY launched Stony Brook's 1987 SEFA/United Way Fund Drive. In the spirit of communal generosity, Davis Peach Farm of Mt. Sinai shared the bounty of their harvest of newly picked apples to encourage the rest of us to share the bounty of ours with those in need. Members of the Academic Physical Plant constructed a United Way thermometer similar to those in cities and towns across the country to mark the campus's quest of its $75,000 goal. The Stony Brook SEFA/United Way Fund Drive, co-chaired by Aldona Jonaitis and J. Howard Oaks and coordinated by the Office of Human Resources, will run through Nov. 13.
