

First of Six Convos: 'SB in Its Fourth Decade'

Six convocations will be conducted during the 30th anniversary academic year, sponsored by the Office of the Provost, as a forum to recognize excellence at Stony Brook.

The first in the series will be conducted on Sept. 17—exactly 30 years after the university's first class was held at the Oyster Bay campus. President Marburger will speak on "Stony Brook in Its Fourth Decade."

Each convocation will be coordinated by the head of an academic unit and will have two purposes: to recognize members of the university community who have won prizes and awards, and to present a speaker, theme, or program of interest to the university community.

The remaining convocations will be conducted on this schedule: Oct. 7, prepared by the Office of the Vice Provost for Undergraduate Studies; Nov. 4, the Office of the Vice Provost for Research and Graduate Studies; Feb. 3, the Office of the Provost; March 2, the Center for Continuing Education; and April 6, the Office of the Vice President for Health Sciences. Each will run from 12:15 to 1:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Recital Hall.

Group Shop Offers 22 Free Classes

Students, faculty and staff are welcome to take one or more of 22 free classes offered this fall through the Group Shop program of the University Counseling Center.

Stress management, meditation, AIDS, time management, assertiveness training, post-divorce parenting, procrastination, curing clutter, and the use and misuse of credit are some of the topics covered in the workshops. Deadline for submitting application forms is Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Teacher Training For Laid-Off Workers

Stony Brook this fall will be assisting laid-off Fairchild-Republic Corp. engineers and applied scientists to embark on new careers in teaching.

An $82,000 grant from the Suffolk County Department of Labor will provide high school science teaching certification training at the university.

The grant will cover tuition and a stipend for those individuals who want to become teachers of physics, chemistry, or physical science, according to Director Lester Paldy of the Center for Science, Mathematics, and Technology Education. Paldy feels that the grant will improve Long Island's technological competitiveness while allowing those who have contributed to Long Island's economic base to continue to live in the area.

Nobel Laureate To Address Human Disease Colloquium

A Nobel laureate will be one of several internationally acclaimed researchers who will speak at the Second Annual Stony Brook Colloquium on Human Diseases Monday, Sept. 21 in the Health Sciences Center. The conference's topic this year is "Dementia and Neurotropic Infectious Agents" and will cover Alzheimer's disease, Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease, herpes, and AIDS.

Dr. D. Carlton Gajdusek of the National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders and Stroke, one of the featured speakers, received the Nobel prize for his discovery of an "unconventional agent" virus which causes a slow chronic cerebellar degenerative disease, called Kuru, common among the youth of a New Guinea tribe.

State Reclassifying NTP Salaries, Titles

A statewide project to revamp the promotion and classification of university non-teaching professional employees is underway this month. New ranks and titles are being considered at this time.

Supervisors are to meet with their NTP employees to review the proposed changes and to advise them of any proposed new title or rank changes affecting them. The new recommendations are then to be forwarded through normal administrative channels to the Human Resources Office by Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Human Resources personnel will review the changes to see if the proposed titles are reasonable and descriptive, fair and consistent within the employee's department and the campus. By Thursday, Oct. 1, the campus determination concerning each individual's title and professional rank is to be forwarded to SUNY Central Administration. Employees will receive written notification of their new positions and will have the opportunity to appeal their titles and ranks by December 1.

The project is being implemented in response to a years-old bargain struck by United University Professions and the State. NTP's considered the current classification and compensation system outmoded, vague and administered inequitably. The current proposal has expanded the professional ranks from four to six with new overlapping salary ranges.

The new systems will mean raises for some NTPs. There will be no salary reductions as a result of the reclassification.

The conference is organized by the Department of Microbiology and School of Medicine in conjunction with the Departments of Neurology and Psychiatry. Funding has been provided by the SUNY Center for Biotechnology and the Center for the Study of Aging. ## Elevator Phones To Be Installed

Don Marx of Communications Management Engineering has recently received approval for the purchase and installation of new emergency phones for the elevators in the academic buildings.

The phones will be vandal-proof, state-of-the-art instruments mounted for wheelchair access. In an emergency dialling 333 will bring an immediate response from the Department of Public Safety. Installation is expected to take approximately two-to-three months to complete.

Jiffy Fundraiser Sets Record

While raising $3,076 for University Hospital's Burn Center, the Jiffy Lube in St. James established a new world record for the number of cars lubed in one day.

In a heavily promoted radio campaign, Jiffy Lube offered around-the-clock bargain prices and contributions to the Burn Center for each car lubed. On Aug. 15 1,038 cars were lubed, breaking the record of 822 previously set in Maryland.

Steve Peisner, Jiffy Lube district manager for Suffolk County who organized the event, said, "The response went way beyond our expectations...The surprising thing was the tremendous amount of support and concern expressed for the Burn Center."

The Next 30 Years

"2017—The Next 30 Years" is the theme for the sixth annual Student Affairs Convocation at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 30 in the Stony Brook Union Ballroom.

Dr. Robert L. Woodbury, chancellor of the University of Maine, will be the keynote speaker at the convocation, which will focus on the future of higher education.

Architectural drawings and aerial photos of the campus from its beginnings to the present will be on display as part of the university's 30th anniversary celebration.

Our Second Melville Building

The building above will officially become the Ward Melville Social and Behavioral Sciences Building at dedication ceremonies Sept. 17. The Melville Library was named for Frank Melville, Jr., Ward's father.

About a year after Ward Melville died at the age of 90 on June 5, 1977, a new building was opened on campus to house the social and behavioral science departments.

This month that building is being dedicated as the Ward Melville Social and Behavioral Sciences Building to honor a man who gave generously to preserve the historic character of Long Island. It is no coincidence that the History Department is housed in "his" building.

Retired Stony Brook administrator Karl Hartzell will be the keynote dedication speaker at the ceremony and plaque unveiling at 10:30 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 17 on the Social and Behavioral Sciences East Terrace. President Marburger will also speak. Margaret Blackwell, one of Melville's daughters, is expected to attend.

This will be the second building named Melville on campus. The library, which opened in 1963 and has been expanded manifold since then, is named for Frank Melville, Jr., Ward's father. It was Frank, who died in 1935, who began many of the community restoration projects completed by his son.

Chinese Ambassador Here for Two Days

The Honorable Han Xu, ambassador of the People's Republic of China to the United States, will speak on "The China-U.S. Relationship" Tuesday, Sept. 15 at 8:30 p.m. in Old Chemistry, 116.

His talk, arranged by Dr. C.N. Yang, Director of the Institute for Theoretical Physics, is free, sponsored by the Sir Run Run Shaw Distinguished Lecture Program.

The following day the ambassador will address a one-day campus trade conference on the topic of how Americans can, and do, succeed in China.

The conference will bring together high-level Chinese public officials, successful American exporters and Long Island companies currently doing business in China. It will convene from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the Alliance Room of the Melville Library.

The registration fee for the one-day conference is $50. The fee includes coffee, lunch, and registration material. For more information, contact 632-6320.

WHAT TO DO WITH WASTE. Provost Jerry R. Schubel and N.Y. State Senator Caesar Trunzo drop ashblocks into Setauket's Conscience Bay this summer to complete a test reef of the blocks. The condition of plant and animal life as well as the water is being closely monitored by the university to verify the safety of marine disposal of ash from resource recovery plants. If the test confirms the results of laboratory tests, Long Island's solid waste disposal problem may be one step closer to solution. N.Y. State Senator James Lack (not pictured) also attended the ashblock testing.

Historical Supplement

The 30th anniversary supplement to Campus Currents, originally scheduled for this issue, has been postponed until our next issue, Sept. 28. There will be no issue of Sept. 21 because the Publications Office will be moving from Central Hall to 138 Administration Building.

Corrections

The talk by the Chinese ambassador Tuesday, Sept. 15 will be in Old Chemistry 116. The Chinese trade conference will be Wednesday, Sept. 16, Alliance Room, Melville Library, first floor.

It was the Residence Hall Association, rather than the Division of Residence Life, which co-sponsored the T-shirt design contest with Barnes and Noble Bookstore.

The Stony Brook Union flea market is held Thursdays only.

Why So Few Women Scientists?

A new series of lectures on women in science and engineering has been announced.

Ruth Schwartz Cowan, professor of history and director of the Women's Studies Program, said the GTE Foundation has provided a grant for the series on the general subject, "Why are there so few women scientists and engineers—and what can be done about it?" The fall series will be held in Javits Lecture Center 101 and will feature:

- Bonnie Spanier, assistant professor and director of Women's Studies, SUNY Albany, and editor, Toward a Balanced Curriculum. Her topic Thursday, Nov. 5 will be "How Can the Study of Women and Gender Be Integrated into the Science Curriculum?"

- Margaret Rossiter, visiting professor in the Program on History and Philosophy of Science, Cornell University, and author, American Women Scientists: Struggles and Strategies to 1940. She will speak Tuesday, Dec. 1 on "What Has Happened to Women Scientists Since 1940?"

Three more lectures will be offered during the spring semester. A sixth lecture, by Ruth Bleier of the University of Wisconsin at Madison, originally scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 22, has been cancelled. For information, call 632-7498.

Crafty People Needed

A Homecoming Craft Fair to display the work of 70 artisans is being planned for Saturday, Oct. 17 in the Stony Brook Union. To be sponsored by the Stony Brook Child Care Services, Inc. and the Department of Stony Brook Union and Activities, the Fair will include many activities for children, such as face painting, clowns, balloon art, games and computer drawing. Artists and craftspeople interested in participating are encouraged to call 632-6822 or 331-3615.

Retreat

The planning committee for the 1987 Student/Faculty/Staff retreat to be held Nov. 6-7 is accepting applications from members of the university community who would like to be considered for participation. The deadline for applications, available in Stony Brook Union 266, is Friday, Oct. 2. For information, call Norm Pruslin, 632-6826.

Video Seminar

Thinking about buying video equipment, producing a videotape, utilizing video as a teaching aid? Then attend a lunchtime seminar on television techniques Wednesday, Sept. 23 at noon in Educational Communications Center 119. Edward Rugino, television manager of the Educational Communications Center will discuss equipment, VCR formats, procedures and resources available on campus. For reservations, call 632-7155.

Produce TV Programs

The Educational Communications Center is looking for 10 or more highly-motivated students to help produce a series of television programs. Students who have used consumer television equipment, or who have a background in photography, graphics or design are requested to call 632-7155. Students will be trained as camera operators, frame-by-frame editors, and special effects editors.

Fifth in Nation

The university's equestrian team ranked fifth in the 1987 national Intercollegiate Horse Show Association championships. Individual national winners were Lisa Feig, alumni champion, and Karen Wagner, novice champion on the flat.

Scholarships for Four

Four students at Stony Brook are among 50 statewide recipients of Regents Health Care Scholarships in Medicine and Dentistry for 1987. They are Enrique Garcia, Dave A-F Livingston, and Edward Tavaréz in the School of Medicine, and Kevin J. Grant in the School of Dental Medicine. Each will receive up to $10,000 a year for up to four years of approved study. The program, administered by the State Education Department and the University of the State of New York, has two major aims: to expand educational opportunities for under-represented minority and economically disadvantaged students, and to improve the state's health care by requiring Regents Scholars to practice in underserved areas after completing their professional studies.

Counseling Accreditation

The University Counseling Center has been accredited by the International Association of Counseling Services, Inc. (IACS). The Center was evaluated by IACS against high standards of counseling practice and found to offer competent and reliable professional services. Approval by IACS is also dependent upon evidence of continuing professional development as well as demonstration of excellence of counseling performance. The Center, directed by Edward E. Podolnick, offers crisis intervention, psychotherapy for individuals, couples, families, and groups, and preventive mental health programming, outreach, and consultation to the campus.

Sept. 17, 1957

UPPER BROOKVILLE, L.I.—A group of 148 educational "pioneers" registered here today as the first freshman class of the long-awaited New York State University College on Long Island. The 56 women and 92 men were briefed, registered, and taken on orientation tours of their temporary campus, the beautiful 409-acre aboretum-estate known as Planting Fields. It is two miles from the village of Oyster Bay. Designed to prepare teachers for science and mathematics for secondary schools and community colleges, the new college is the first free, public teachers college on Long Island. Deeded to the State University by the late William R. Coe, sportsman and philanthropist, Planting Fields will be the site of the college until the permanent campus at Stony Brook in Suffolk County is completed in 1962. Plans are being made to expand the curriculum to that of a complete university. — The New York Times

Sept. 18, 1957

History was made today on Long Island when 148 freshmen started their college careers at the State University Teachers College in Oyster Bay. The first day of classes climaxes a long, hard battle to bring a tuition-free, state college to Long Island to accommodate the thousands of high school students who cannot afford to attend private colleges because of the high cost. The 56 girls and 92 boys will attend classes at Planting Fields on the Coe estate... In his welcoming address this morning to the "pioneer" class, Dean Leonard K. Olsen said: "We have the rare privilege of starting new. We do not need simply to imitate what is being done in large universities and colleges." The students were taken on a tour of the mansion, where classrooms have been set up in seven of the 60 rooms. Dormitory rooms for 30 men are in former servants' quarters in one wing. — The New York Times

Sept. 20, 1967

More than 68,000 students have enrolled this semester at 14 Long Island colleges as Nassau and Suffolk campuses boom in student populations and physical expansion. The enrollment total represents an increase of nearly 10,000 over last year... The State University at Stony Brook will open a new $3.2 million social sciences building and a 1,000-student dormitory complex costing $6.5 million. Another 1,000-student dormitory will be completed during the fall semester, and next month, the university's $2.7 million nuclear structure laboratory will be opened. — Newsday

Awards, Honors

The Dudley Observatory of Schenectady has given Michal Simon of the Earth and Space Sciences Department a Dudley

Award of $7,000 to be used for his astronomy project titled, "Infra-Red Lunar Occultations of the Galactic Center."

Throughout the month of September the Shoreham-Wading River Public Library is displaying the varied artworks of Tang Ye Zen, visiting scholar at Stony Brook.

In the News

A summer Newsday Magazine feature on "Working the Hamptons—12 Whose Jobs Keep the East End Happy," included a photo and report on Beth Massey, a Stony Brook senior from East Quogue who worked as a bartender at a Hampton Bays club. She said: "I hope to make enough to put a deposit down on my tuition."

Long Island Jewish World, in a story on summer schools, noted that "up to 40 per cent of the students earning credits during the summer semester hail from out-of-state colleges." Megs Shea, director of Summer Session, is quoted: "Stony Brook is almost better known off the Island than on." The story notes that Shea's son, an engineering student at Boston University, earned needed credits in philosophy and psychology last summer at Stony Brook, fitting classes around his summer job with a sailmaker.

Terrence Netter, director of the Fine Arts Center, was the subject of the Long Island Business July 20 feature, "Closeup." Reporter Elisa Hendrey wrote: "Balance is the key to programming in a university setting, he maintains. 'If we ran 'A Chorus Line,' we'd sell more tickets, but many, many times we present things knowing that we can attract only a small audience' ...In short, Netter's philosophy is 'to raise consciousness but not torture people.'"

John Partin, professor and chair of pediatrics, was a major source for a syndicated column by Judith Randal on erythema infectiosum, a children's condition known as fifth disease.

Lenore McLean, dean of the School of Nursing, was quoted in Smithtown News' reports on a strike by nurses at St. John's Episcopal Hospital, Smithtown. She urged high school guidance counselors to provide more information on nursing. "There is a lack of status attributed to nursing by guidance counselors," she said. Few fields offer women the opportunities that nursing does to rise to executive levels, she said.

DANISH THERAPISTS from the University of Arhus visit the School of Allied Health Professions August 28 as guests of Jay Schleickorn, chair of the Department of Physical Therapy.
