

The Stony Brook Chamber Singers, under the Direction of Professor of Music Amy Kaiser, will perform its first concert of the season this Sunday, November 17.

Concert Marks Conductor's LI Debut

An evening of Bach, Brahms, Scheidt, and Schultz will highlight the opening concert of the season for the Stony Brook Chamber Singers.

The concert, set for this Sunday, will mark the Long Island debut of Amy Kaiser, who joined Stony Brook this fall as an assistant professor of music and conductor of the Chamber Singers. The public is cordially invited to attend this musical evening free of charge.

The Stony Brook Chamber Singers, a select group of 28 vocalists, includes music majors, graduate students, and voice students. For this concert, they will be joined by a full string quartet, a wind ensemble, and other orchestral members in performance of Bach's two cantatas, "Gottes Zeit ist die allerbeste Zeit," and "Gott, der herr, is Sonn' und Schild." In addition to these major works, the motets "O Heiland reiss die Himmel auf" by Brahms, "Lobet im Himmel den Herrn" by Scheidt, and "Die mit Tränen saen" by Schultz will be performed.

Ms. Kaiser was a faculty member of Smith College prior to coming to Stony Brook this fall. A former Fulbright Fellow at the University of Oxford (England), she has studied conducting under John Nelson and Flora Contino. While the November 17 concert will be her Stony Brook debut, Ms. Kaiser has become a familiar face at the university. This fall she inaugurated an informal series of outdoor madrigal interludes during class breaks.

The concert will be presented in the Lecture Center, Room 105.

HSC Seminar Series Explores Health Issues

Is medical care really good for your health? Do we, in fact, need more health workers? Will better health care come from the health professions—or from Congress? Who's checking on quality—what kind of health care are we getting? What's in the future—will man be reshaped by genetic engineering?

Questions like these—being raised today by people who see themselves not as passive recipients of prescriptions, but as active "health consumers"—are the starting point of a 19-week lecture series being offered to the campus and community by the Health Sciences Center.

This public lecture series, entitled Contemporary Issues in Health Care and Public Policy, has been planned by the Health Sciences Center as a means of examining and exploring the health issues affecting people today. All the lectures will be held on Monday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m., in building F, room 147 of the south campus, off Nicolls Road, beginning November 11 and ending April 14.

The topics chosen were those defined as having a present or future impact on all people, consumers and health care workers alike. Professionals with respected reputations as experts in different areas of contemporary health concerns have been invited to be participant guest lecturers.

Included among the speakers are Dr. Bentley Glass, Distinguished Professor of Cellular and Comparative Biology, speaking November 11 on gene therapy, genetic engineering and genetic counselling and asking if man will be reshaped by man, and if so, for better or worse?

Dr. Mildred Moorehead, from the Department of Community Health at Albert Einstein College of Medicine, nationally known for her work on evaluating the quality of health care, will look into the outcomes of health care on November 18 and ask, does it do any good?

Health needs demand response—but how do medical institutions respond to these needs?

On November 25, Dr. Quentin Young, Chairman of the Department of Medicine at Cook

County Hospital in Chicago, will discuss this problem.

What about the cost of health care—how does it affect the individual as well as the nation's economy? Dr. Gerald Rosenthal, Director of the Bureau of Health Services Research at the Department of Health, Education

Commons Room Open Daily for Breakfast

The Senior Commons Room has begun serving continental breakfast to Stony Brook Association members and their guests on weekdays between the hours of 8 and 11 a.m. The Commons Room is located on the second floor of the Graduate Chemistry building.

Over 300 faculty and non-teaching professionals attended the inauguration of the Room last Monday.

The Stony Brook Assembly Association, the sponsor of the Room, is continuing to actively solicit members among faculty and non-teaching professional staff.

The Association currently has a membership of 260, and hopes that the number will rise when the faculty and non-teaching professionals who have pledged membership redeem their pledges.

All faculty and non-teaching professionals are invited to attend a reception at the Commons Room on Thursday, December 5, to celebrate the opening of a cocktail bar. After the cocktail bar formally opens, the Room will open weekdays between 3 and 6 p.m. for afternoon tea and sherry.

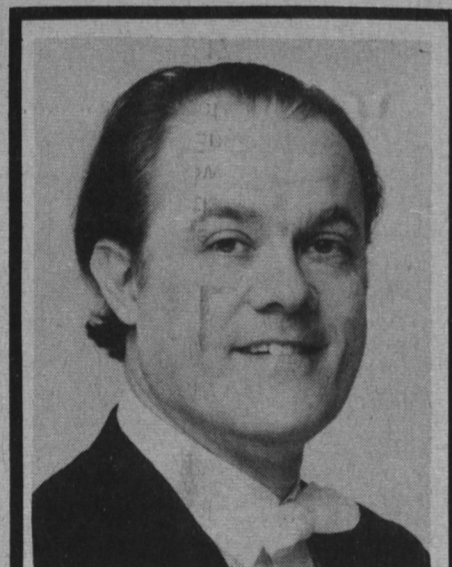

Membership in the Association ranges from $20 to $30. Full professors may become members for $30; associate professors, $25; and assistant professors, $20. For non-teaching professionals, membership is $30 for those earning over $24,000; $25 for those earning between $15,000 and $24,000; and for those earning below $15,000, the cost of membership is $20.

Faculty and non-teaching professionals who wish to become members should send a check, payable to the Stony Brook and Welfare, will deal with this on December 2.

Details on the remainder of the program are available in brochure form from the Office of the Vice-President for the Health Sciences, at Building C, south campus, and may be received by calling 44-2331. The lecture series is open to the public.

Professor of Music Charles Rosen.

Phi Beta Kappa, one of the nation's most distinguished academic honorary societies, has selected Concert Pianist Charles Rosen, Professor of Music at Stony Brook, as a Visiting Scholar for the academic year 1974-75.

Recognized both for his accomplishments as a performing artist and as a writer on music, Dr. Rosen was awarded the 1972 National Book Award in arts and letters for his book, "The Classical Style: Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven." He has been a concert pianist since 1951, performing in the United States and Europe and recording works by a variety of composers.

Stony Brook Union Adopts New Security Measures

The Stony Brook Union, campus center at Stony Brook, will be restricted to use by students, faculty, staff and authorized guests after 6 p.m. daily, effective tomorrow, November 15.

Dr. Elizabeth L. Wadsworth, Vice President for Student Affairs, said the new 6 p.m. restriction, developed by the Stony Brook Union Governing Board, is aimed at reducing vandalism and disturbances believed to result mainly from unauthorized use of the building by teen-aged students from various junior high and high schools throughout the local area.

"We have tried to avoid the need for such a regulation," said Lou Bauer, Director of the Stony Brook Union, "since the University seeks to make its facilities available for the broadest possible use by community residents. However, it has now become clear that unless use of the Union Building's facilities by non-college teen-agers from the local area is restricted in some way, our vandalism problems will continue to multiply and the building will become increasingly less attractive to our own student body, faculty and staff members."

Mr. Bauer said that effective Friday, November 15, registration desks will be in operation from 6 p.m. daily at the Union's entranceways. All persons entering the building after 6 p.m. will be asked either for some form of campus identification—I.D. card, dormitory key, bursar's office receipt, etc.—or will be required to be entering the building for a specific function which they have arranged to attend.

The regulation will not affect use of the building by community civic organizations and other community groups. Dr. Wadsworth said that such use, which has been increasing and which is considered an important part of the Union's service mandate, may even be enhanced by the improved atmosphere expected as a result of the new restriction.

"We hope the 6 p.m. restriction can be relaxed at some future point once the immediate problem has been eliminated," Dr. Wadsworth said.

The regulation was recommended for immediate implementation by the Stony Brook Union Governing Board at a meeting November 7. Mr. Bauer said that implementation was held until November 15 to permit full communication about the new policy with area high schools, commuting students and others who would be affected.

Effective immediately, the Stony Brook Union Building's security measures will be increased and any persons believed to be in the building without authorization after 6 p.m. will be approached by Campus Public Safety Officers.

Drug Course

One of the world's authorities on drug research, Professor Dr. Reich of the Rockefeller University, is at Stony Brook this year as Visiting Professor of Pharmacology. Dr. Reich will give a lecture and discussion course on The Principles of Drug Action (HBH 372) intended for senior undergraduates with majors in Chemistry and Biology. Enrollment will be limited and interested students are urged to contact the Department of Pharmacology (4-2236) for further information.

Education

Elementary Education majors who plan to enroll for the required methods courses (EDU 330, 351, 364) must make application for permission to register for those courses. Applications are available in the Library outside room N-4017. Applications must be submitted by November 18.

Food Co-op

Hong Kong Club Food Co-op has now officially moved to the Freedom Food Co-op headquarters in Stage XII Cafeteria. Service hours: Every Wednesday 4 to 5:30 p.m., offering Bak-Chok, Bean Curd, Bean Cake, Chinese Cabbage and a fifth rotating choice of vegetable. For further information contact Ming Mui 6-6356 or Carole Moy 6-8174.

Dance

A Modern/Jazz Dance course is being sponsored by the S.B. Union Governing Board. Classes begin on November 19. Cost is $5 for seven sessions. For further information please contact Susan at 6-7107 or come to the Union, room 266.

Day Care

The Benedict, Toscanini, and Point of Woods Day Care Centers are now accepting applications from students wishing to work in the centers during the spring semester. Applications and further information can be obtained at the centers through November 27.

Farm Workers

The United Farm Workers Support Committee will sponsor a 30-hour picketing marathon of Pathmark Supermarket in the Smith Haven Mall beginning at 6 p.m. on Friday, November 22. Please join us, if only for an hour. For further information, contact Sherry at 6-4147.

Divorce

Divorced and legally separated women are invited to participate in a telephone survey being conducted at Stony Brook during the period of November 11-22.

The survey is part of the independent study project of Eileen Stec, a senior sociology major and a member of the Stony Brook Women's Center. Ms. Stec's 15-question inquiry covers such areas as alimony, child support, the attitudes of lawyers and legal agencies, and the general manner in which the women were treated by the courts.

Interested women are asked to telephone the Women's Center (246-3540) between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday during the 12-day period. Anonymity is guaranteed.

SB to Host Rotary Classic

The Long Island Rotary Basketball Tournament, the largest confrontation between Long Island schools during the year, will be held at Stony Brook from December 2-5.

Always one of the most exciting events on Long Island, this year's competition will feature a special guest, the Czechoslovakian National Team. Czechoslovakia is one of the top five national teams in the world and will compete against many major American Universities during its tour of the United States.

The first day of competition will feature the beginning of the community college and four year school tournaments. Stony Brook's opening game is December 3 at 9:00, against Adelphi. This is the first year that the tournament has been held at Stony Brook.
