- Professor, Symposium Explore Italian-American Experience
- Graduate, Professional School Fair At Stony Brook October 5
- Catacosinos Winners Earn Salute

EXPLORING THE ITALIAN-AMERICAN EXPERIENCE:

The Italian-American experience goes way beyond old ladies in black, street fairs, pizza and other such stereotypes repeated endlessly in the media. There is a rich, varied culture to explore, with its own history, social realities and literature, says Richard Gambino, scholar and teacher of Italian American studies at the University at Stony Brook.

Dr. Gambino, a visiting professor who established the first Italian American Studies Program in the nation at Queens College in 1973, is author of Blood of My Blood: The Dilemma of Italian Americans, and other books and articles on American ethnic groups. He will be among the speakers next month at a university symposium on the Italian-American experience.

Brooklyn-born of Sicilian parentage, Professor Gambino earned his doctorate in philosophy from New York University in 1968 and has lectured widely and hosted radio and television programs on ethnic and educational issues. He has taught courses on the Italian American family, Italian Americans in film, the Italian American experience through literature, ethnicity in American history, and more.

The symposium, sponsored by the university's Center for Italian Studies, is in its 10th year here. This year's conference will focus on "Italian American Studies Programs and Organizations: Interface with the Community." The conference will be held in the Alliance Room of the Frank Melville, Jr. Memorial Library on Friday, October 28, 2-6 p.m., and Saturday, October 29, 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Admission is free and open to the public. Sessions will consider ethnic and cultural studies, cooperative collaborations between universities and civic organizations, and goals for the future. For more information, call the Center at 632-7444.

AT THE FAIR: Stony Brook holds its first Graduate and Professional School Fair next month for USB undergraduates as well as those from surrounding institutions and the community. Area residents interested in pursuing full and part-time graduate work are also welcome at the event to be held on Wednesday, October 5 from Noon to 7 p.m. in the Stony Brook Union Ballroom. There's no admission charge.

Recruiters from more than 50 graduate and professional schools nationwide, will be on hand to meet, advise and provide information about their respective institutions including medical and law schools, schools of social work and education. You don't have to register in advance. For information, call 516-632-7040.

THREE WIN CATACOSINOS AWARDS:

Two USB researchers who are studying new ways to treat breast cancer received this year's William and Florence Catacosinos Awards for Cancer Research at the University at Stony Brook.

James Bliska, an assistant professor of microbiology, received the Catacosinos Young Investigator Award and Iwao Ojima, leading professor of chemistry, was named the 1994 Catacosinos Professor in Cancer Research. Bliska's honor carries with it a $10,000 award; Ojima will receive $5,000.

In addition, C.R. Ramakrishnan, a graduate student in Stony Brook's Department of Computer Science, has been awarded the William W. and James W. Catacosinos Fellowship for Excellence in Computer Science. As the Catacosinos Fellow, Ramakrishnan received a $4,300 cash award and a full tuition scholarship.

Dr. Bliska investigates the effect of abnormal protein tyrosine phosphatase activity on the intracellular function of a protein (tyrosine kinase (HER-2) found in human breast cancer. Dr. Bliska proposes to change the action of the proto-oncogene on cell transformation by introducing a phosphatase that acts in opposition to the kinase. Successful suppression may lead to the design of new therapeutic strategies with which to treat certain human breast cancers.

Dr. Ojima, an internationally recognized

BANNER DAY: Joe Tangel, an employee of the university's woodworking shop, places one of more than 100 flags in a specially built holder that will be on stage at the Staller Center today for the university's first convocation. Convocation Committee chair Anne Forkin, director of Conferences and Special Events (left), looks on. The flags represent every state in the Union and every nation represented by the student body. President Shirley Strum Kenny will be the keynoter at the campus-wide event which begins at 12:40 p.m. today, September 28.

Campus Gets Ready To Celebrate Hispanic Heritage Month Here

Art exhibits, performances, merengue lessons, films, guest speakers, student programs, parties and more are in the works for this year's Hispanic Heritage Month all through October to celebrate the rich and varied cultures of the Spanish-speaking world.

"Hispanic Heritage Month has become one of the cornerstones of Stony Brook's efforts to celebrate the diversity of our campus and of our regional community," says Dean of Students Paul Chase. "The events planned range across the board from cultural and social activities to scholarly programs, so there should be something to appeal to every taste and a lot of opportunities to learn and to have fun. It will be a great kickoff to the university's 1994-95 monthly diversity theme programs."

The official opening ceremony will be on Wednesday, October 5, 12:30 p.m. in the Stony Brook Union Fireside

Lounge, complete with flags, a proclamation by University President Shirley Strum Kenny, music and refreshments. The complete schedule of events is listed in the calendar inside.

Here are a few highlights:

- Gala opening of an exhibition in the Latin American and Caribbean Center Conference Room (LACC), SBS N-320, on Thursday, October 6, 4 p.m. On view all month will be prints and drawings by Lilibian Rodriguez and a painting by Tabo Toral.

- Lectures by visiting Howard University Professor Asuncion Lavrin will be held Friday, October 7. At noon she will speak on "Latin American Women: A Visual History" and at 2:30 p.m. on "Feminism, Sexuality and Gender Relations in Early 20th Century South America." Both talks are in the LACC, SBS N-320.

■ Art of Reflections and Refractions ■ American Premiere of CPE Bach Cantata ■ Season Opener for Stony Brook Symphony Orchestra

Acrylic sculpture by Norman Mercer will be shown at the Stony Brook Union Art Gallery from Monday, September 26-Tuesday, October 22. On opening day of the show, "Reflections and Refractions," the artist will present an informal talk at 3 p.m. in the gallery. He will be available from 1 p.m.-5 p.m. to meet with visitors.

Mr. Mercer's sculptures are transparent, and bend, reflect and refract light and color. Working in his East Hampton studio, he creates the acrylic material, then colors, casts, sands and polishes each piece to its final form: His work is geometric, with repeated images of cubes, octagonal columns and interlocking rings. "Reflections and Refractions" will also include sketches, models, on-site photos and a videotape of the process he employs.

The Union Art Gallery is free and open to the public. Located on the second floor of the Stony Brook Union, the gallery is open Monday-Friday, noon to 4 p.m. For additional information, call 632-6828.

The American premiere of C.P.E. Bach's Cantata for the Feast of St. Michael will be performed on Sunday, September 25, at 3 p.m. in the opening concert of this year's Baroque Sundays at Three. It will be the first documented performance of the piece since 1786, and the first ever in the United States.

Concerts in this series are held in the Staller Center for the Arts Recital Hall, and all are free and open to the public.

Vocal and instrumental chamber music by Caccini, Montclair, Handel and Rameau are also on the program. Long Island harpsichordist and conductor Eric Milnes will lead the St. John's Chorale and Orchestra, performing on period instruments.

Baroque Sundays at Three will offer five concerts this year. The next performance will feature the Baroque harp on October 30. All concerts in this series are free and open to the public.

The Stony Brook Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Bradley Lubman, will mix serious and light music at the first concert of the season on Saturday, October 1, at 8 p.m. on the Main Stage of the Staller Center for the Arts. Join Maestro Lubman and Mark Lederway, classical music host of WUSB 90.1 FM, for a pre-concert lecture at 7 p.m. in the Recital Hall.

The program will open with Shostakovich's Symphony No. 15 in A Major, op. 141. This was the composer's last symphony, completed in 1971. The work evokes German Romanticism but incorporates elements of 12-tone music. Also on the program are Aaron Copland's Music for the Theater; and Johann Strauss' Die Fledermaus Overture. Both these pieces are upbeat, lively and "pure fun," says the conductor.

For tickets, call the Staller Center at 632-7230. Ticket prices are $10.00; $8.00 for senior citizens and students.

"Hombres Viajando," linoleum print by Colombian artist Liliana Rodriguez, will be exhibited in the Latin American and Caribbean Center conference room, Social and Behavioral Sciences Room N-320, all through October in honor of Hispanic Heritage Month. See calendar above for details of the Hispanic Heritage Month celebration.

Ms. Rodriguez will attend the formal opening reception on Thursday, October 6, 4-5 p.m. to discuss her work. Also featured in the exhibition will be a painting by Tabo Toral of Panama, the first permanent acquisition for the conference room. The Latin American and Caribbean Center is planning a series of events this semester, including lectures, seminars, and colloquia by Stony Brook faculty, visiting scholars and graduate students. Distinguished historian Asuncion Lavrin of Howard University will speak on topics relating to women in Latin America on Friday, October 7 at noon and 2:30 p.m. in the center. For further information, call 632-7517.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

INTERNSHIP available (off campus) involving the analysis of the size and structure of various markets, predominantly in the health care area for the purpose of determining the commercial potential of a new technology in that area. The position will involve working two days per week performing literature searches, telephone or in-person interviews and the generation of a report that overviews and quantifies the market under scrutiny.

The candidate for this position should be comfortable in technical discussions, have a knowledge of biology, chemistry, biochemistry or medicine and strong analytical ability and communications skills. Familiarity with market analysis and financial analysis would be a plus. Those students wanting to be considered for this unique opportunity should forward their resumes or curriculum vitae and cover letter ASAP to Warren Wartell/FSA Student Staffing Resources, Stony Brook Union Bldg, Room 282, Campus Zip 3209.

INTERNSHIP available (off campus) which involves the collection and analysis of technical and market information for use in validating the financial and technical feasibility of candidate technologies that may form the basis for defense industry conversion strategies. This excellent opportunity has the following requirements: graduate student with outstanding grades; two days/week minimum availability; ability to make "cold calls" on the phone to extract technical and market information; science or technical background in mechanical engineering, electrical engineering or electro-optics; good written and verbal communications skills; business experience - academic and real world - a big plus.

Graduate students who wish to be considered for this excellent internship position, should send a resume or curriculum vitae and cover letter to Warren Wartell/FSA Student Staffing Resources, Stony Brook Union Bldg, Room 282, Campus zip 3209.

School of Medicine at Stony Brook wins $350,000 state grant for primary care education

In the face of massive changes in the way we Americans approach our health care system—and in recognition of the fact that many people do not have access to the most basic medical care—primary care is the one area of medicine that is receiving more and more attention from medical educators and from medical students.

The resurgence in primary care medicine as a career for students at the School of Medicine at Stony Brook is getting a major boost through a $350,000 New York State Department of Health Primary Care Education Grant. The grant will focus on four areas: Family Medicine, General Internal Medicine, General Pediatrics and Primary Care OB/GYN.

The recently announced award will enable the School of Medicine to further develop its primary care curriculum with the ultimate goal of seeing that 50 percent of School of Medicine graduates choose primary care careers.

PRIMARY CARE: E. Robert Schwartz, M.D., Associate Professor of Clinical Family Medicine and Chairman of the Department of Family Medicine, in a moment that illustrates the satisfaction a Primary Care physician gets. Dr. Schwartz's department is the recipient of the New York State Primary Care Education Grant.

Don't Forget: The October 8 "Walk for Beauty" to endow a boutique for women who have had cancer, will begin at 8 am (registration, 7:30 am) at the Stony Brook Post Office and wind through the village onto Rhododendron Drive and back to the Center Court of the Village Green. Participation is $12 per person or $50 in pledges. Families of up to four people can participate for $25 or $75 in pledges. Pledge sheets are available in shops throughout Stony Brook Village or by calling 444-7880.
