

In Brief

- Autumn Evening's Wine and Food
- Mexican Politics, Caribbean Poetry
- Tutorial Registry on the Way
- Wanted: Long-Time Employees

SIP AND SUP FOR SCHOLARSHIPS: Thai grilled duck salad with soba noodles, wild field greens, spiced apple polenta cake topped with caramel sauce. Sounds good, doesn't it? Those dishes and more will be among the delicacies from more than 30 of Long Island's best restaurants and caterers at "An Autumn Evening's Wine and Food Tasting" on Thursday, November 17, 5:30-8 p.m. in the Indoor Sports Complex. The event is expected to draw 1,000 people and yield over $60,000 in scholarships for high-achieving undergraduates at Stony Brook.

An open wine auction will begin at 8 p.m. Over 100 other distinguished bottles will be offered at a silent auction.

The open auction features exceptional French, Italian and domestic wines, including a Ferreira Port, bottled specifically for the Prince of Wales in 1815. Other items are rare Bordeaux - Chateau Le Pin from Pomerol (1986), Chateau Margaux (1966, 1934), Mouton Rothschild (1991). "Grand Cru" vintages from Burgundy and the greatest red wines of Italy will be auctioned. Also, distinguished wines from Napa, Sonoma and San Benito in California, and from Oregon and Washington will be offered.

Tickets are $50 at the door. Call 1-800-451-5866 for information.

MEXICAN POLITICS, REGGAE: Stony Brook's Latin American and Caribbean Center puts the accent on Latin music, contemporary history and culture this month with two programs. CUNY professor June Nash speaks on "Neo-liberalism and Ethnic Revindication in Chiapas" on Wednesday, November 16, 12:30 p.m. in Social and Behavioral Sciences Room N320. Professor of Anthropology at CUNY Graduate Center and City College of New York, Dr. Nash has written ethnologies on Mayan communities, Bolivian tin miners, and factory workers in Massachusetts, and edited scholarly volumes on women, political protest, and economic development in Latin America; and related topics. This lecture is cosponsored by the Peace Center and the Department of Anthropology.

Reggae poet Oku Onuora will present "The Spirit of Jamaican Dub Poetry from One of its Masters," on Thursday, November 17, at 7 p.m. in the Poetry Center, Humanities Building, Room 239. For further information, call 632-7517.

IF YOUR ORGANIZATION PROVIDES ACADEMIC TUTORING, you are invited to list your services free of charge in the new USB Tutorial Registry, currently being compiled by the USB Tutoring Center. The Tutoring Center is a resource that helps students and academic departments in their efforts to provide one-on-one and small-group instruction. To be included in the registry, call 632-7090 or stop by the center in the Frank Melville, Jr. Memorial Library, Room W-3520, for an application. The deadline to submit completed applications is Wednesday, November 30, for inclusion in the 1995 Spring Semester listing.

PLANS ARE UNDER WAY FOR SERVICE AWARDS to honor those who have worked at the University for 35, 30, 25, or 20 years. The event will held Wednesday, December 7, in the Staller Center Recital Hall at 4 p.m. and will be followed by a reception. If you're eligible to receive a service award, please check with Victoria McLaughlin in Human Resources (632-6159) to be sure you're on the list.

PROFESSIONAL EXCELLENCE :

Nominations are sought for the 1994-95 President's/Chancellor's Awards for Excellence in Professional Service. C.N. Yang Wins Bower Prize

Benjamin Franklin and his accomplishments have always held special significance for Dr. C. N. Yang. Long an admirer of Franklin's, Dr. Yang renamed himself "Franklin" when he arrived in the United States in 1945.

So it was particularly apt when Philadelphia's Franklin Institute announced recently that it had selected Dr. Yang, Albert Einstein Professor at Stony Brook and director of the University's Institute for Theoretical Physics, to receive its 1994 Bower Award and Prize in Science.

The award is presented annually to a distinguished scientist for outstanding work in the life or physical sciences. It includes a cash prize of $250,000.

Dr. Yang was recognized for his 1954 work with physicist

Robert L. Mills on the "Yang-Mills Equation." The theory became the basis for current understanding of all the fundamental forces of subatomic particles. In 1957, Dr. Yang and physicist T. D. Lee won the Nobel Prize for their discoveries in particle physics. Dr. Yang received the National Medal of Science in 1986, and is chairman of the John S. Toll Society at Stony Brook.

Dr. Yang was honored at the Stony Brook Foundation Donor Recognition Dinner, held November 5 in the University's Indoor Sports Complex. Dr. Larry Tise, executive director of the Benjamin Franklin National Memorial of the Franklin Institute, presented Dr. Yang with a framed certificate in recognition of his "outstanding achievement, leadership, dedication and commitment to the University at Stony Brook."

The Franklin Institute was founded in 1824, to promote scientific inquiry and to recognize scientific achievement. The Institute will formally present Dr. Yang's Bower Prize at convocation ceremonies to be held in May.

■ An Autumn Evening's Delights ■ Art Celebrates Diversity of Relationships ■ Scholar, Banker and Reggae Master: Three Poets to Read on Campus ■ Baroque Concert on Sunday

Don't miss the chance to be good to yourself and the University. Come to "An Autumn Evening's Wine and Food Tasting" on Thursday, November 17, 5-8 p.m. in the Indoor Sports Complex. Featuring gourmet foods, exquisite desserts and a selection of the finest wines from all over, the gala will please the palate while raising money for undergraduate scholarships.

More than 100 wineries and over 35 restaurants will provide tastings. The highlight of the evening will be the live auction that begins at 8 p.m. A silent auction runs throughout the event. Tickets are $50 at the door.

"Seeking Justice," a celebration of the diversity of relationships, is an exhibition in two parts, one called "A Simple Matter of Justice" and the other, "Just Us." Both are sponsored by the University's Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual Alliance (LGBA) and will be in the Stony Brook Union Art Gallery through Tuesday, November 22.

"A Simple Matter of Justice" is a photographic essay composed of photographic panels depicting the Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual March on Washington in April, 1993, created by Rose Collins. Ms. Collins is a Stony Brook alumna, a psychotherapist, and a lesbian mother and grandmother. "Just Us" is a ceramic assemblage by Union Crafts Center artist-in-residence Lizzie Zucker Saltz. Based on interviews with 10 students, the artist produced a grouping of small sculptures that incorporate key words, images and symbols for each individual. Gallery visitors are encouraged to handle each piece, read the words and consider the symbols they embody.

Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, noon to 4 p.m. For additional information, call 632-6822.

The Poetry Center presents readings in Room 239 of the Humanities Building, free and open to the public.

On Wednesday, November 16, poet and guest host Donald Axinn will welcome Phil Appleman and John Barr at 8 p.m.

Mr. Appleman is distinguished professor emeritus of English at Indiana University, now living in Sagaponack, NY. Author of six volumes of poetry, three novels and several works of nonfiction, he was founding co-editor of the scholarly literary journal, Victorian Studies. He has won awards from the Poetry Society of America, the National Endowment for the Arts, and numerous others.

Mr. Barr is an investment banker and financial advisor who is also a published poet. He founded Barr Devlin Associates in 1990, after working at Morgan Stanley for 18 years, heading the firm's Public Utility Group in the 1980s and serving as managing director. His poetry has been published widely over the past 20 years and been collected in editions by Warwick Press. A resident of Bronxville, NY, he is a member and officer of the Corporation of Yaddo and chair of the Board of Trustees of Bennington College. He has been nominated to serve as the next president of the Poetry Society of America.

On Thursday, November 17, at 7 p.m., reggae poet Oku Onura will present "The Spirit of Jamaican Dub Poetry from One of Its Masters." Born in Jamaica, Mr. Onura is a widely anthologized "dub" poet who has performed, published and recorded his distinctive verse for the past 10 years in Europe and the Americas. He is among the best known living Caribbean poets.

Mr. Onura opened for Bob Marley at the "One Love Peace Concert" in Kingston, Jamaica, and more recently at the first international dub poetry festival in Canada. His reading is in conjunction with Timothy Brennan's course, "Poetry and Popular Music of the Caribbean," and is cosponsored by the Latin American and Caribbean Center.

The Baroque Players, under the direction of Arthur Haas, will present vocal and instrumental chamber works from the 17th and 18th centuries on Sunday, November 20, at 3 p.m. in the Staller Center for the Arts Recital Hall.

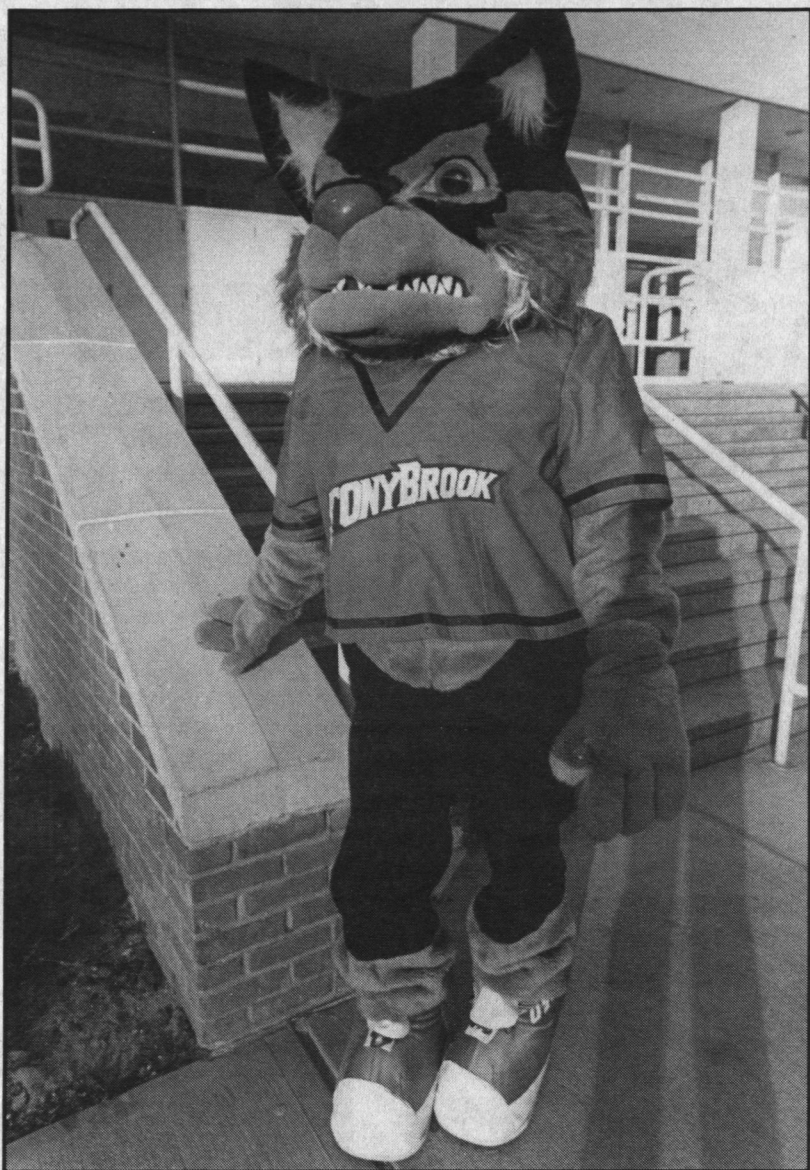

The ensemble includes soprano, violins, violas, cellos, recorder and harpsichord, all outstanding performers in the graduate music program.

Featured works include string fantasies by Henry Purcell, rarely-heard virtuoso sonatas by Schmelzter and Cima, the prologue to Monteverdi's Orfeo, a chamber concerto for recorder and strings by Vivaldi, the Darmstadt Concerto by Telemann, and two intimate duo suites by Couperin.

Admission is free, and donations are welcome. For further information, call the Department of Music at 632-7330.

University Medical Center at Stony Brook, Planned Parenthood of Suffolk County look at the future of women's health

CONSIDERING THE QUESTION: Dr. Mary E. Hibbard, Commissioner of the Suffolk County Department of Health Services, and Clinical Associate Professor of Preventive Medicine at University Medical Center, confers with Dr. Valerie Parisi, Chairman of the Department of Obstetrics, Gynecology and Reproductive Medicine at Stony Brook. They were among many forum panelists who said what is most needed in this country is access to primary, preventive care.

A BRIGHTER FUTURE: Rose Brown (left), Executive Director of Planned Parenthood of Suffolk County, and Dr. Roxanne Fahrenwald, Clinical Assistant Professor of Family Medicine at University Medical Center, share a light moment at the panel discussion. The event, co-hosted by Planned Parenthood and University Medical Center drew leaders in women's health and advocacy from across Long Island.

I recently had the honor of participating in a forum on women's health issues sponsored by Planned Parenthood of Suffolk County. I sat on a panel with a distinguished group of physicians, attorneys, healthcare providers and a congress member. Although we were all there because, either personally or professionally, we have an interest in women's health, our points of view often differed—except on one question. At the end of the session, the moderator asked each panelist to talk about his or her one wish for women in terms of health care. And just about everyone on that panel had the same answer. That was, that every woman have access to basic, preventive health care—from pre-natal care to mammograms to Pap tests. But, whatever our specific points of view were during the rest of the discussion, we all agreed that this basic care is the cornerstone on which any kind of health care reform must be built.
