

Alumni Association President Joe Van Denburg and Soccer Coach John Ramsey hold new Stony Brook Cup to be presented to outstanding Suffolk high school soccer coach.

SB Alumni Earn Reputation As Soccer Boosters

The Alumni Association is making a name for itself locally and throughout the state as a true booster for soccer. Alumni Board members Jack Guarneri and John Bockino traveled to Albany early in the month to present, on behalf of the Stony Brook Alumni Association, a team championship trophy to the winner of the University Center Tournament at Albany.

At the urging of the Alumni Association here, alumni groups at Buffalo, Binghamton and Albany joined together to present for the first time a Team Cup and a plaque to the Most Valuable Player in the annual University Soccer Tournament.

Teams from Stony Brook and the other three centers met in Albany Nov. 3 and 4. The trophies, donated by the Alumni Associations of the four university centers, went to tournament winner Binghamton; Stony Brook placed third, above Albany and behind Buffalo in the event.

On the local level, the Alumni Association, together with the soccer program at Stony Brook, is sponsoring the "Stony Brook Cup," a perpetual trophy in recognition of the outstanding high school soccer team in Suffolk County. Jack Guarneri and Soccer Coach John Ramsey will present the trophy to the coach of this season's winning high school soccer team in Suffolk County in an awards dinner on Dec. 3. In founding the award, Coach Ramsey noted that the Stony Brook soccer team has always depended heavily on players that graduated from high schools in the county.

The annual reunion for alumni soccer players was held on campus Nov. 18.

Alumni Association Arranges Buying Plans

Information is now being mailed to alumni on two discount buying plans arranged by the Alumni Association.

One plan offers wholesale prices on appliances, television sets, stereos, carpeting, power and riding mowers, snow throwers and a variety of other major items. The second offers automobile buying or leasing at $100 above dealers' costs.

These plans are being started at no cost to the Association and without releasing alumni mailing lists for non-Association use. And, the Association receives a small commission for each alumni purchase.

Watch for your discount buying information in the mail. If you have any questions or problems using the services, please write Mr. John Bockino, Chairman, Discount Buying Committee, c/o the Alumni Office. John also would like to have your general reactions to the services, for use in considering future use of such buying plans.

Make Reservations for Dec. 9, 2nd Annual Basketball Reunion

One of last year's most successful alumnievents was the first annual ALUMNI BASKETBALL NIGHT program in February. Now, the second annual ALUMNI BASKETBALL NIGHT is coming up on Saturday, December 9, offering alumnia chance to see the Patriots in action just a week after the 1972-73 season gets underway.

University Committees Include Three Alumni

Stony Brook alumni are taking a more active role in advisory and governing bodies at the University of late. The new trend is evident in the appointment recently of three alumni to membership on the campus Equal Employment Opportunity Committee, the CED Policy Committee, and the University Drug Advisory Committee.

At least seven other members of the Alumni Association are being considered for appointments to various boards and committees of the University.

Alumni Association President Joe Van Denburg '69 described the new trend as a "heartening sign that the University recognizes the special contributions that alumni can make to the daily life of the campus."

Alumni recently appointed to committees are Ms. Jeanne Behrman '70, CED Policy Committee; Dr. Everett Silverman '64, Drug Advisory Committee; and Mrs. Ellen Schlesier '67, Equal Employment Opportunity Committee. In addition to these appointments, Mr. Van Denburg is working very closely with the University Re-evaluation Steering Committee headed by Dr. James Bess, and Leonard Spivak '64 has been serving as a member of the Long-Range Planning Committee since last year.

At its December meeting the Stony Brook Union Governing Board will consider a change in its constitution, which would allow alumni representation on the board by specifically defining the Union as a facility for the use of faculty, students, staff and alumni of the University. The change would formalize the Union's present policy of welcoming the use of its facilities by all paid members of the Alumni Association.

About a dozen flabby and not so flabby former varsity hoopsters will be testing their talents as an alumni team meets the current Stony Brook junior varsity team in Basketball Night's preliminary game at 6 p.m. Then, at 8 p.m., returning alumni will be able to watch the Patriots meet University Center opponent Binghamton in the varsity game.

Tickets for the evening are $3 per person or $5 a couple. Call the Alumni Office (516-246-3580) NOW for reservations. Tickets will be held for you at the Alumni Ticket Table in the gym lobby on the evening of December 9th. Your ticket covers:

—Reserved seat for both of the evening's games.

-Free Beer and Late Night Snacks at an Alumni Reception following the varsity game at the Buffeteria in the Stony Brook Union Building next door to the gym. (For non-beer drinkers, a cash bar will offer drinks at $1 each at the reception.)

—A good chance to meet other alumni, head coach Donald Coveleski and his staff and this year's players who will be guests at the reception.

Nominations Open For Alumni Board

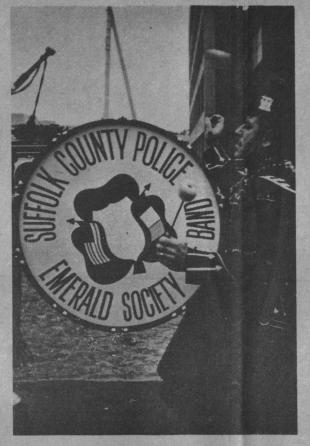

Election of members of the Alumni Association Board of Directors will be coming up this spring. Twenty-four directors will be elected; two to represent the classes of 1961 through 1963, which were small classes, and two to represent each of the classes from 1964 through 1973.

The Board at its November meeting declared nominations now in order for these 24 positions. Nominating letters should include information on a nominee's campus and post-graduate activities and general qualifications for a directorship. Letters should be sent to the Nominating Committee, c/o the Alumni Office, Room 328, Administration Suilding.

Community Month

October was Community Month at the University. Over 100 events drew thousands of local people to the campus. The Alumni Association helped sponsor a fence painting contest and an alumnicommunity reception.

OPEN LETTER TO ALUMNI

Nov. 1972, vol. 3, no. 5.

Upon being elected President this year, I have taken the opportunity to review our progress. The good news

In the first few months of our membership drive we have more active members than we had all of last year; consequently our financial resources have improved from our previous nickle-and-dime stage.

Perhaps of even more importance, we are getting more help to run our activities. Most of the Board of Directors positions have been filled and volunteer Board affiliates have been helping with special committees

CURRENT PROGRAMS

The Alumn: A: ociation sponsors two scholarships, each named after outstanding former members of the University community: the $200 Ashley Schiff Scholarship, named for Dr. Schiff, a social scientist renowned in the field of ecology and environmental control before the movement became socially popular; and the Elizabeth B. Couey Scholarship, named for Mrs. Couey, a source of inspiration and advisor to students from many classes.

Much debate among board members has taken place regarding these scholarships. On one side some mbers feel we should give out much more substantial awards, while others feel we should wait and accumulate more money in our scholarship accounts so as not to deplete our small principal.

Mini-Reunions

In addition to our traditional once-a-year spring reunion, we have recently launched several minireunions throughout the year. So far these have revolved around athletic activities; they are the:

1. Alumni-Varsity Soccer Game and Reception, November 18. At the first annual match last year, the Alumni team trounced the varsity 3-1.

2. Basketball Night and Reception on December 9. Basketball alumni will return to play the junior varsity basketball alumni and fans are encouraged

3. Annual Alumni-Varsity Squash Match. This relatively long-standing event usually pits an out-ofpractice and frustrated alumni squad against a slippery and crafty Coach Snider team. The play is usually more humorous than accomplished.

4. Annual Crew Weekend. The start of another athletic tradition, begun last year, in which alumni participated. Crew Weekend, a large crowd drawer, will be scheduled annually in the spring.

Though our paid membership this fall already exceeds the total for all of last year, the Board is very aware that the great majority of alumni (80%) still are not active (paid) members. And, despite great strides in building our address files, we still are unable to reach many "lost alumni" due to outdated addresses and other record-keeping problems. If your address has changed or, especially, if you know an alumnus who doesn't receive Stony Brook People regularly, please contact the Alumni Office.

Alumni Association Function:

Why have an Alumni Association at a state school in the first place? After all, the traditional function of raising money for building programs does not apply to us; but as many of you will attest to, the need for scholarships is unlimited. Alumni funds and personal involvement can be used in a variety of special programs, both off and on campus. The University clearly needs and wants our support. We, in turn, can benefit in many ways from active personal involvement with the campus.

I strongly feel alumni can provide many specialized services through, for example, a speaker-counselor program for undergraduates; one that would concentrate on the "real world" and what courses alumni the campus governance process by serving on standing bers, in terms of library borrowing privileges, mittees - Drug Advisory, CED, FSA, Union Governing Board etc.

Speaking of committees, the University is going through a two-year self-study program, in which the alumni have been asked to play a vital role. Not only will a questionnaire be sent to graduates but alumni have also been asked to serve on the numerous working committees preparing the study - housing, instruction, environment, etc. If you would like to become involved in this important program for University improvement, please contact me or Dr. James Bess in the academic vice-president's office.

Need Additional Staff

Second to operating funds and scholarship funds, the Association desperately needs a full-time University Alumni Office. If our services are to expand hich they must, just to keep pace) we now need a full-time staff. Several budget "lines" are needed to carry on the daily work our all-volunteer force is presently staggering under.

Personally, and on behalf of the Board, I would like to thank the University Relations Office and its staff, especially the secretaries, who have invested great effort in helping us to maintain our headquarters.

For several years the Association has been trying to get alumni representation on the Stony Brook council - the top policy-making body on campus.

The Council members are political appointees, nted by Governor Rockefeller, but nominated by local party leaders (currently there is a vacancy The Board of Directors feel the logic and precedence for having alumni representation on University Boards of Trustees has long been established. Most private universities reserve several seats on their Boards for alumni. Council appointments are usually for nine years, but

I feel the Alumni Board of Directors should be able to fill at least one chair on the Council, and for twoyear terms, thereby better insuring representation for the younger and larger graduating classes. So far we have been unable to get any representation and also give what you can to help build our scholar-

on the Council and I strongly urge alumni to support this important issue. Become an active member (pay the nominal $3 dues) ship program. Several other young schools in the area ask their alumni to contribute one dollar for each year since graduation - we think this is a fine idea and hope you can help us in the same way. Remember your gifts are tax deductible.

We also need volunteers for the previously mentioned programs, or for any new ones you would like to

If you have any comments or suggestions please send them to me c/o the Alumni Office.

And remember, if you or any other alumnus, are not getting our mailings - only you can correct this. Please send in your new or correct address.

Hope to see you at a coming alumni event.

JK Van Derburg.

400 New Members Swell Alumni Ass'n

During 1971-72, about 350 alumni paid their annual membership dues. The 1972-73 membership drive is now just entering its second month, but already last year's record has been broken with about 400 members

The active membership drive is continuing at a fast pace with the Alumni Board hoping to enroll another 400-600 members during the next few weeks.

Dues this year are $3. The membership coupon may be used to pay your dues. Paid members receive a 1972-73 membership card which gives them "University Community" status on campus, in many In addition, alumni can provide important input for respects the same as faculty and staff memreduced prices for campus events and special send a contribution to the scholarship rates for alumni programs. The Class of 1972 continues to surpass all others with 60 new members enrolled in recent weeks. The Class of '70 had 33, 1971 had 32, 1969 had 23 and 1968 had 19 new members. The remaining classes have added from two to eight members each, with the exception of the Class of 1965, which is solidly in last place with no paid members!

Rolf Kraehmer '72 Works to Clear Up Alumni Accounts

If you've tried to get a transcript from the registrar, or attempted to register for graduate courses at Stony Brook, then there's a good chance that you have already done battle with the system.

Each year hundreds of graduates and former students run into a problem if they need documentation from the University, and inquiries inevitably get routed through a personnel maze, taking considerable time and effort to resolve. Just when that transcript is in sight, the system grinds to a halt at the Bursar's door.

Suddenly, somewhere, on reams of computer printout your name comes out with a deficit next to it. Out of the forgotten past materialize $2 phone bills from 1966, charges for overdue library books from 1969, or a fee for repainting your room — the Housing Office's response to your artistic efforts as a senior. (Oh, for the old days when Ann Dabiero knew which out of the hundreds of shoe boxes contained last year's phone bills for your room.)

Rolf Kraehmer '72 is using the experience he gained during his undergraduate days to solve the problem. Rolf, the moving force behind "Action Line," a student-run trouble shooting and complaint service, has taken his considerable skills in cutting through bureaucracy and red tape, and put them to use coordinating the University's Student Accounting Office.

Under his direction, a dozen account clerks process the financial records of former students, investigating discrepancies, checking out inquiries, and in some cases sending out bills or notifying former students that they have a damage deposit coming to them.

The clerks exhaustively follow a student's records through a master file, checking accounts in Admissions, the Bursar's and Housing Offices where individual errors might have occurred.

Eventually all 12,500 "inactive" files should be cleared up, but since the process just started recently, it still might be some time before an alumnus can expect a quick and accurate response from the University.

Alumni Favor Move To Protect Mail List

The response to the Alumni Board's decision, announced in the May issue of Stony Brook People, not to sell the alumni mailing list to an encyclopedia company for a mail sales campaign has met with the approval of alumni, if notes written to the Alumni Office can be taken as an accurate consensus.

Jerry Reitman '70 said he supports refusing to sell the addresses "for any junk advertising." Lucille (Ehrlich) Bookbinder '69 wrote, "I agree completely with the Association's refusal to sell our mailing list."

Allan L. Edelson '68 wrote: "I wish to register my strongest opposition to your making the alumni mailing list available to any solicitors. This is a very common practice, but I consider it an infringement of privacy, and strongly support legislation outlawing such practices."

Barry Harrow '70 reacted similarly: "Money is nice, but it is not worth the degradation that an encyclopedia action might incur. Many, many alumni would be very discouraged to see some encyclopedia commercializing our mailing list. For once in the history of the world, let's stay out of that nonsense and keep Stony Brook's name clean and bright as ever."

Scholarship Funds Grow, But Need Is Critical

Gifts during the last few weeks have bolstered the Alumni Scholarship Program, but the need for scholarship aid on campus during the coming semester is expected to be greater than ever before.

The Ashley Schiff Alumni Scholarship Fund now totals about $1200. A gift expected to be announced soon by the Class of 1966 will start the new Elizabeth Couey Scholarship Fund off with $750. About $50 in other preliminary gifts to the Couey Fund have also been received. The Alumni Association's third specific scholarship fund, the Class of 1970 Fund, now has a balance of about $1050.

Alumni are urged to contribute to any of these specific funds, or to make an unrestricted gift for general alumni scholarship purposes.

As this issue went to press, President Toll reported to the Alumni Scholarship Commit- The Stony Brook Foundation is a private tee that the financial aid needs of current students are likely to reach a critical level during the coming semester. There are about 500 more students on campus this year than last, and tuition is higher but far less financial aid money is available. Hundreds of students are not receiving anything like the amount of aid they need. The University has very limited flexible funds available for aid purposes and is hoping that alumni contributions to the alumni scholarship program will make it possible for the Alumni Association to aid a number of students this winter, perhaps helping some of them avoid having to drop out.

Here's how to make a contribution: if your gift is to be for unrestricted scholarship use, make your check payable to "Stony Brook Alumni Scholarship Program." If your gift is specifically for one of the three current scholarship funds, your check should be payable to "Stony Brook Alumni Schiff Scholarship Fund," or "Stony Brook Alumni Couey Scholarship Fund" or "Stony Brook Alumni 1970 Scholarship Fund."

For convenience, you may send a scholarship gift in the same envelope with your membership payment (see coupon on page 2). And, remember that whether it's $5 or $500, your scholarship gift is most welcome. And, a reminder, gifts made by Dec. 31 are eligible for a 1972 tax deduction.

Alumni Finances To Be Supervised By SB Foundation

The Alumni Board at its November meeting entered an agreement with the Stony Brook Foundation that will give the Alumni Association professional management and accounting services for both operating and scholarship funds.

As a result, alumni funds now will be handled through the offices of the Foundation. Alumni Board members said the new financial arrangements should be particularly helpful in assuring the most efficient use of alumni scholarship funds. Investment of these scholarship monies now will be handled by the Foundation's Investment Committee which includes senior members of the Long Island banking community. Now that greater interest returns can be assured on alumni scholarship funds, Alumni Board members said they hope alumni scholarship fund-raising efforts will gain organization, headquartered on campus and closely affiliated with the University. The Foundation accepts and actively seeks gifts and grants to provide flexible funds for scholarships and special campus programs that can not be funded through the University's regular state budget. During the present period of state government fiscal austerity, the Foundation's role has become increasingly important in helping the University function effectively.

Representing the Stony Brook Foundation in preparing the new fiscal arrangement with the Alumni Association was the Foundation's Secretary John F. Burness. In a letter regarding the merger of fund handling, Mr. Burness said in part:

"It is clear that the Foundation and the Alumni Association share a common goal in working to provide what services they can to the University to improve the quality of life and the quality of our academic programs. The goals of the Foundation and of the Association are in many ways the same. I feel we all would be much better off by merging appropriate activities so that we can provide the best possible service to the University, to its alumni, faculty and students."
